In God's Name 15,000 Killed, A City Crushed

EDITOR'S NOTE: As the Pakistani army moved in force into Dacca last week to crush Sheikh Mujibur Rahman's 23-day-old independence movement, all foreign journalists in East Pakistan, confined at gunpoint in the Intercontinental Hotel since the beginning of the fighting, were rounded up and deported to Karachi. However, Simon Dring of The London Daily Telegraph evaded the roundup by hiding on the hotel roof, despite repeated attempts by the army to find him. With the only other foreign newsman believed to have escaped the net, Associated Press photographer Michel Laurent, Dring managed to make an extensive tour of the burning city. He flew to West Pakistan Sunday and then reached Bangkok. He cabled the following report.)

The London Daily Telegraph

DACCA, East Pakistan — In the name of "God and a united Pakistan" Dacca is a crushed and frightened city.

After 24 hours of shelling by units of the Pakistan army as many as 7,000 people are dead, large areas of the city have been levelled and East Pakistan's fight for independence has been put to an end.

Despite claims by President Yahya Khan, head of Pakistan's military government, that the situation is now calm, as late as Sunday tens of thousands of people were fleeing to the countryside, the city streets were almost deserted and the killings were continuing in other parts of the province.

There was no doubt that the army was more or less in control of all the towns and major population centres and that resistance was minimal and apparently ineffective.

As of Sunday, people were still being shot at what appeared to be the slightest provocation, buildings were still being destroyed and the military appeared to be more determined than ever to assert its control over the 73 million Bengalese in East Pakistan.

Conflicting reports are reaching the west from Karachi and New Delhi. Radio India says the "liberation army" in East Pakistan has regained control of much of Dacca and key military areas.

But Pakistani officials deny this saying that Dacca and other cities in the east are calm and that life is returning to normal.

Although an accurate estimate of civilian casualties is impossible, reports filtering in from outlying areas, including Chittagong, Comilla and Jessore, put the figure, including Dacca, at about 15,000 dead.

★ ★ ★

The depth of death and destruction in Dacca was obvious: Students dead in their beds, butchers in the markets killed behind their stalls, women and children burned to death in their houses, Pakistanis of Hindu religion shot en masse, bazaars and shopping areas razed by fire. By Sunday, the Pakistani flag flew over nearly every building in the city.

Military casualties are not known but at least two soldiers have been wounded and one officer killed.

Whatever, the Bengali uprising seemed to be over for the moment. Sheikh Mujibur was seen being taken away by the army and nearly all the top members of his Awami League Party have also been arrested.

Leading political activists were arrested, others were killed and the offices of two newspapers that supported Mujibur's independence movement were destroyed.

The first target of Pakistani army tanks that rolled into Dacca Thursday night was the students.

An estimated three battalions of troops were used in the attack on Dacca — one armored, one artillery and one infantry. They started leaving the barracks shortly before 10 p.m.

Ottawa Names Peking Envoy

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's first ambassador to China will be Ralph E. Collins, a high external affairs department official who was born in China and speaks the Chinese language.

Informed sources disclosed Monday that Collins, 56, has been officially accepted by the Peking government as Canada's nominee.

Similarly, Canada has accepted the candidate proposed by Peking as its first ambassador in Ottawa.

Railway Dispute Talks Set for Today

VANCOUVER (CP) — Talks aimed at settling a railway work stoppage that has paralysed traffic in British Columbia and threatens to close the port of Vancouver were scheduled here today.

Contract negotiations in which the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National promised to "negotiate to a conclusion" were to be held in Montreal.

Don Tysoe, a federal mediator, and Ray Perrault, parliamentary secretary to Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey, were to meet in Vancouver with engineers who have been booking off sick in British Columbia and Alberta to protest delay in the contract negotiations.

Mr. Tysoe said in an interview Monday: "The name of the game is to get the men to listen to reason and return to work."

Talks in Montreal concern the engineers' contracts with CP Rail, which expired March 15, 1970, and the CNR, which ran out April 30, 1970. The talks broke off last week after a three-man conciliation board reported to the federal government that it was unable to reach agreement on a wage settlement.

L. O. Hemmingson of Montreal, the union's assistant grand chief engineer, said in an interview Monday:

"We have had nothing realistic in better than a year of negotiation."

This had led to the work stoppages on the West Coast.

SERVICE PARALYSED

Meanwhile, in Vancouver, spokesmen for both railways said Monday that freight and passenger service is paralysed in B.C.

Acting Port Manager William Duncan said the port of Vancouver will be closed in about a week if work does not resume.

About 200 Vancouver-area engineers booked off work last Wednesday and about 5,000 railway employees have been laid off by CP Rail and CNR.

Some 7,500 railway carloads containing more than 15 million bushels of grain have been stranded between Vancouver and the Prairies.

"The grain picture is bad," Mr. Duncan said, "with elevator stocks already far below normal. Coal shipments are practically at a standstill. The stockpile of bulk products such as potash and sulphur will hardly last the week.

"I'm very pessimistic," he said. "We can expect diversions of cargo to Seattle or other ports very soon."

MAY SET EMBARGOES

CNR and CP Rail said Monday in a joint statement that total embargoes may become necessary in B.C. and the affected parts of Alberta if the work stoppages continue to keep rail operations at a standstill.

Russia Proposes End Of Red, NATO Pacts

REALISTIC MODEL of a 10-foot killer whale, held here by Ray Beckett (left) and Dave White, has been made in plastic by the provincial parks department at Langford and will be erected at the Miracle Beach parksite south of Campbell River. The department has taken on extra men and organized two shifts in order to meet the demand posed by the new parks that will be in operation this year.

World N-Talks Also Sought

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Leonid Brezhnev, Soviet Communist party chief, proposed today that the world's five big nuclear powers sit down at a disarmament conference and also offered to dismantle the Warsaw pact alliance if the West did away with NATO.

Brezhnev announced the Soviet peace plan in his wide-ranging televised address to 5,000 delegates at the opening of the 24th Soviet Communist party congress.

The nuclear powers he named are the Soviet Union, the U.S., China, Britain and France.

The Russian party secretary also proposed a world-wide disarmament conference, the liquidation of military bases on foreign territory, curtailment of military expenditures—especially by the major world powers—and a series of bilateral and multilateral treaties.

THINGS ARE BETTER

On another critical subject, Brezhnev said Moscow is sure that good relations with China will be restored but warned that the Kremlin will not yield to Chinese demands that it change course.

Brezhnev said there has been a certain normalization in Sino-Soviet relations in the last 18 months and described an exchange of ambassadors and signing of a new trade agreement as "useful steps."

But Moscow also sees anti-Soviet propaganda continuing in Peking, he said, and it rejects "slanderous" accusations against Soviet policies spread in China.

Brezhnev said the current situation calls for solidarity

Geneva Deadlock End Near?

GENEVA (Reuter) — The Soviet Union and its allies today tabled a draft convention to ban biological warfare which they said is aimed at ending a deadlock in the 25 - nation Geneva disarmament Conference on biological and chemical weapons.

The new draft would ban biological weapons separately first, thus dropping previous Soviet insistence on outlawing them together with chemical weapons in one composite agreement.

The new Soviet-sponsored draft was immediately welcomed outside the conference hall by officials of the United States and British delegations.

They, together with other Western delegations here, have been, backing a British draft which would also ban germ weapons separately first.

BRITISH PLAN SIMILAR

The new Soviet draft is similar in general content to the British one, but there are a number of differences of detail.

Soviet delegate Alexei A. Roshchin told United States Ambassador James F. Leonard — Roshchin and Leonard are co-chairman of the Geneva conference—of the new Soviet draft Monday, the sources said.

He also told the heads of most of the other delegations here.

On their way into the conference hall, United States and British delegation officials welcomed the new Soviet draft.

Communist delegation sources said the draft is being supported by the delegations here of Poland, Czechoslovakia, Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Mongolia.

NEWS BRIEFS

Building Rocked

NEW YORK (AP) — An explosion outside the Communist party headquarters early today blew in the front door and shattered several windows.

Wheat Pact Signed

TUNIS (Reuter) — Canada agreed today to supply Tunisia with 14,000 tons of wheat worth $1 million in an accord signed here.

Kidnapped, Again

MONTEVIDEO (Reuter) — Left-wing guerrillas Tuesday kidnapped Ulises Pereira Reverbel, administrator of the Uruguay state electricity and telephone company, for the second time. Police said the official apparently was shot and wounded as he resisted capture by four men and a woman.

Not Many Finish

OTTAWA (CP) — Only 2,000 of 22,000 public servants who started the government's second-language training courses finished them, the Commons committee on miscellaneous estimates was told today.

Convention Set

FREDERICTON (CP) — New Brunswick Liberals will hold a leadership convention here Oct. 15-16 to choose a successor to former premier Louis J. Robichand.

Tories Send Down 'Rich Man's Budget'

LONDON (CP) — Higher old-age pensions and lower corporation income taxes were among changes announced by Anthony Barber today as he sought to apply a stimulus to Britain's sluggish economy.

Hugh Scanlon, left-wing leader of the big engineers union, immediately labelled it a "rich man's budget" with little in it for the average working man.

In one of the longest budget speeches since the Second World War, Barber, the chancellor of the exchequer, also promised far-reaching tax reform during the next few years.

He said this reform will simplify Britain's complicated tax system and reduce the over-all burden.

Old-age pensions, now $12 a week for a single person and $19.50 for a married couple, will rise next September by $2.40 for a single person and $3.80 for a couple.

The corporation tax, which was trimmed last fall to 42.5 per cent from 45, is to be reduced again to 40 per cent.

The chancellor of the exchequer estimated that his over-all measures will boost the economy by about three per cent this year, leaving businessmen wondering whether this will be sufficient to prevent large-scale unemployment.

Some of Barber's measures seemed to favor the Conservatives' best friends — the wealthier members of the community.

For example, the peak income tax surcharge rate of 91 per cent on the extremely wealthy is being reduced to 75 per cent during the next tax year beginning April 6.

Tax on capital gains is to be eliminated for the small investor, those making profit of $2,200 a year or less. The current exemption is $220.

Soviets Mass At Border

LONDON (CP) — The Soviet Union had between 30 and 32 divisions in the area of its border with China by the end of 1970, says a London-based military study group.

They included two or three divisions in Mongolia and were backed up by about 1,000 combat aircraft, the Institute for Strategic Studies reported in its latest survey of defence and world security.

The independently-financed institute said the general effectiveness of the planes "was increased during the year by the installation of a co-ordinated air defence system in Mongolia."

Extra Court Guards After Tate Sentence

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — Extra guards were posted at the Hall of Justice here today amid threats of reprisals after a jury recommended that Charles Manson and three women followers be sent to the gas chamber.

Additional guards moved in almost immediately after the jury delivered its death-sentence recommendations for the convicted killers of actress Sharon Tate, four friends and a middle-aged married couple.

LED AWAY SCREAMING

Judge Charles Older, prosecutor Vincent Bugliosi, and jury members were escorted to their homes by special sheriff's deputies.

Manson threatened last week that if he were sentenced to death "murder and bloodshed would follow."

In the courtroom Monday, as the jury returned its verdict in the penalty phase of the 10-month-old trial, defendant Susan Atkins, 22, was led away screaming: "Lock your doors. Watch your kids. It's gonna come down hard."

Patricia Krenwinkel, 23, shouted: "The whole system is a game." And 21-year-old Leslie van Houten yelled at the court: "You've all just judged yourselves. Watch your children."

Manson yelled at Judge Older: "You don't have any authority over me. Half of you aren't even as good as me." He was led from the court before the verdicts were read. The girl defendants broke into shouts of "Judge yourselves", and "You're all blind." They also were taken from the courtroom before they heard the verdicts.

LIFE IN PRISON, OR DEATH

Calley Returns for Sentence

FORT BENNING, Ga. (AP) — Bright-eyed and cheerful after his first night in the stockade, Lieut. William Calley Jr. returned to the courtroom today for a sentence of life or death that can be tempered only by a long string of reviewing authorities.

He was escorted by six military policemen to the little one-storey courthouse where a jury of six combat officers convicted him Monday of murdering at least 22 civilians in the blood bath of My Lai.

Lawyers were in court this morning to work with the military judge on instructions he'll give to the jury. The arguments on the sentence were to begin at 1 p.m. and were likely to be concluded today.

During the night someone threw a bottle of gasoline at the courthouse where Calley's trial spanned the seasons from autumn into spring. The bottle landed on the lawn and burned only a small patch of grass.

SHAKEN BY VERDICT

Calley, of Miami, Fla., took the jury's decision with head high, his manner soldierly correct. But he was shaken by a verdict he didn't expect.

The night in the stockade's private officers' quarters—in a two-room suite—was Calley's first time in confinement since he was charged 1½ years ago.

SAIGON (Reuter)—South Vietnam's militant anti-war Buddhists called today for clemency for Lieut. William Calley.

Venerable Huyen Quang, general secretary of the Unified Buddhist Church, said "What good is it to kill one more man after more than 100 people have already died?"

Philippine Jet Hijacked to China

HONG KONG (AP) — Five young men hijacked a Philippine airliner to Communist China today, but the Chinese are expected to send the plane and the 25 other persons aboard back quickly. It was believed to be the first airliner hijacked to China.

The passengers were flown to Canton, on the South China mainland, after five armed men diverted the twin-engine jet from a domestic flight in the Philippines.

An airline spokesman said the hijackers were all 17 to 25 years old, spoke a central Philippine dialect and told passengers they were seizing the BAC-111 jetliner for "ideological reasons."

One passenger said four of the hijackers were Filipinos and the fifth appeared to be Eurasian or Chinese.

Hong Kong airport officials said they expected Chinese authorities to return the plane, passengers and five crew members "rather quickly—possibly even later today."

The plane was diverted about half an hour after taking off from Manila for Davao, on Mindanao Island. It first made a 90-minute stop for fuel in Hong Kong, and there 20 of the 45 passengers were released.

The airline spokesman said four of the hijackers carried .22-calibre pistols and one a pair of scissors. They were "very courteous to the passengers," he said, although one of the hijackers threatened to blow up the plane unless it went on to China.

One hijacker told airport control officers they wanted to go to Peking, the Chinese capital but airport officials said the plane could not hold enough fuel for the 1,200-mile trip. Canton, South China's largest city, is 90 miles northwest of Hong Kong.

Filipino Foreign Secretary Carlos Romulo said he has asked the British and Indian embassies in Manila to ask the Chinese to return the passengers and crew. Both countries have diplomatic relations with Communist China while the Philippines does not.

One thing about Soviet conferences—even when they're in public y' don't know whut's goin' on.

dday, again without warning, columns of troops poured into the old section of the city where more than a million people live in a sprawling maze of narrow winding streets.

For the next 11 hours they proceeded to systematically devastate large areas of the "old town" as it is called where Sheikh Mujibur had some of his strongest support among the people in Dacca.

"They suddenly appeared at the end of the street," said one old man, "then they drove down it firing into all the houses."

The lead unit was followed by soldiers carrying cans of gasoline. Those who tried to escape were shot. Those who stayed were burned alive. About 700 men, women and children died there that day between noon and 2 p.m.

The same was repeated in at least three other areas, all of them covering anything up to a half square mile or more.

As they left, the soldiers took those dead they could away with them in trucks and moved on to their next target. Police stations in the old town were also attacked.

"I am looking for my constables," a police inspector said on Saturday morning as he wandered through the ruins of one of the bazaars. "I have 240 in my district and so far I have only found 30 of them — all dead."

★ ★ ★

One of the biggest massacres of the entire operation in Dacca took place in the Hindu area of the old town. There the soldiers made the people come out of their houses and then shot them in groups.

This area, too, was eventually razed.

Meanwhile, troops of the East Bengal regiment were being used in the suburbs to start moving out toward the industrial areas of the city — Tongi and Naranganj — both about 10 miles from the city centre and both areas of leftst support for Mujibur.

Firing continued in these areas until early Sunday morning but the main bulk of the operation in the city was completed by Friday night.

★ ★ ★

One of the last targets was the daily Bengali language paper "Ittefaq." Over 400 people had taken shelter in its offices when the fighting started.

At 4 p.m. Friday four tanks appeared in the road outside. A half hour later the building was an inferno. By Saturday morning only the charred remains of corpses huddled in back rooms were left.

As quickly as they appeared the troops disappeared off the streets. On Saturday morning the radio announced the curfew would be lifted from 7 a.m. until 4 p.m.

It then repeated the martial law regulations banning all political activity, announcing press censorship and ordering all government employees to report back for work and for all privately owned weapons to be handed in to the authorities.

★ ★ ★

Magically the city returned to life and panic set in. By 10 a.m., with palls of black smoke still hanging over large areas of the old town and out in the distance toward the industrial areas, the streets were packed with people leaving town.

By car, in rickshaws, but mostly on foot carrying their possessions with them the people of Dacca were fleeing.

By midday they were on the move in the tens of thousands.

"Please give me a lift, I am old man" — "in the name of Allah help me" — "Take my children with you."

Silent and unsmiling, they passed and saw what the army had done. It had been a thorough job, carefully planned and meticulously executed and they looked the other way and kept on walking.

Those who were not fleeing wandered aimlessly around the smoking debris of what was once their homes, lifting the blackened twisted sheets of corrugated iron used in most shanty areas as roofing materials to salvage what they could from the ashes.

Nearly every other car — if it was not taking people out into the countryside — was flying a Red Cross and convoying dead and wounded to the hospitals. And in the middle of it all occasional convoys of troops would appear, the soldiers peering equally unsmiling down the muzzles of their guns at the silent crowds.

On the Friday night as they pulled back to their barracks they shouted "Narai Takpir," an old Persian war cry meaning "we have won the war." On Saturday, when they spoke, it was to shout "Pakistan zindabad" — "long live Pakistan."

Most people took the hint. Before the curfew was reimposed the national flag of Pakistan, apart from gasoline, was the hottest selling item on the market.

As if to protect their property in their absence, the last thing a family would do before they locked up their house would be to raise the flag.

At 4 p.m. the streets emptied again, the troops reappeared and silence fell once more over Dacca.

But firing broke out again almost immediately. "Anybody out after four will be shot," the radio had announced earlier in the day.

A group of Hindu Pakistanis living around a temple in the middle of the race course were all killed, apparently for no reason at all except they were out in the open.

And refugees who came back into the city when they found roads leading out the city were blocked by the army told how many had been killed as they tried to walk across country to avoid the troops.

Beyond those road blocks was more or less no man's land, where the clearing operations were still going on Sunday. What happened out there is anybody's guess, except the army's. Only one thing is sure — it was a one-sided battle.

★ ★ ★

Hardly anywhere was there evidence of organized resistance to the troops in Dacca or anywhere else in the province. Even the West Pakistani officers scoffed at the idea of anybody putting up a fight.

"These bugger men," said one Punjabi lieutenant, "could not kill us if they tried."

"Things are much better now," said another officer, "nobody can speak out or come out. If they do we will kill them — they have spoken enough — they are traitors and we are not. We are fighting in the name of God and a united Pakistan."

As the evacuation of the city continued over the weekend it became increasingly obvious that the army had achieved exactly what they had set out to do. The operation, apparently planned and led by General Tikka Khan, the West Pakistani military governor of the East, has succeeded in driving every last drop of resistance out of the people of Bengal.

Federal Rail Move Sought By Bennett

Premier W. A. C. Bennett today called for immediate federal government action to end work stoppages that have tied up CN and CPR rail operations in B.C.

Bennett said the railway work stoppages are hurting the B.C. economy including the forest industry.

He said it was federal inaction that started severe economic difficulties last spring during the towboat strike, which was also under federal jurisdiction. He also referred to an earlier tie-up by longshoremen as further evidence of Ottawa's failure to protect B.C. economic interests.

"It is time for the federal government to have legislation to deal with these important matters, such as Bill 33," Bennett said.

"I call for immediate action."

Bill 33, otherwise known as the Mediation Commission Act, allows the B.C. government to stop strikes and lockouts under its jurisdiction by passing a cabinet order.

Plane, 2 Men Reported Lost

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP) — A float plane with two men aboard was reported missing Monday on a flight along the southern British Columbia coast.

The Trans Mountain Air Services Cessna 180 from Campbell River was piloted by Gordon Jeune, 39, and was carrying a passenger identified only as H. Young. Both men were reported to be from Campbell River.

An air search begun late Monday afternoon was to resume today, joined by a Canadian Coast Guard cutter.

. . . RAILWAY DISPUTE TALKS

CP Rail has already placed embargoes on shipments of livestock and perishable commodities to and from Field, B.C., Crowsnest, Alta., and points west.

The book-off spread Sunday to Prince George in northern B.C. CP Rail services in Calgary and Lethbridge have also been hit by the stoppage.

A CNR spokesman said in Vancouver that only three or four engine crews had not stopped working on the CNR line between Jasper, Alta. and Prince Rupert, B.C. But these crews were at the ends of the line and could not keep traffic moving.

CP Rail has one B.C. system still operating—the dayliner service between Victoria and Courtenay.

About 200 enginemen in Edmonton have voted to withdraw from service if engineers in B.C. are disciplined for booking off.

B.C. Hydro and Power authority said 80 employees on its Lower Mainland rail operation were laid off, effective Sunday midnight, because there was no work on lines connecting with CNR and CP Rail.

More than 3,300 CP Rail employees have been laid off in the Pacific region and the jobs of another 1,500 employees are threatened if the book-off continues.

The CNR has laid off between 500 and 600 men between Kamloops and Vancouver.

About 790 workers on both railways are involved in the book-offs.

In the report made Friday, the three-man conciliation board reported on only two of 24 points of dispute—and they failed to agree on these two points: Wages and duration of agreement.

SUGGEST INCREASES

Board Chairman R. A. Gallagher of Winnipeg, appointed by Mr. Mackasey, suggested the engineers receive pay increases of eight per cent the first year and seven per cent in each of the succeeding years of a three-year contract.

A. William Cox of Halifax, board member appointed by the CNR and CP Rail, urged increases of 6.5 per cent the first year and seven per cent in each of the remain ing two years.

Marc Lapointe of Montreal, named to the board by the enginemen, recommended a 13-per-cent increase in the first year and an additional nine-per-cent raise in the second year of a two-year contract.

All three suggested the wage settlements be retroactive to the expiry dates of th contracts.

The board members also said they decided not to deal with other issues because of their technical nature. It was felt these could be settled after the wage dispute was ironed out.

No Push For Family Act Changes

No recommendation for action on major amendments to the Wives and Children's Maintenance Act will be made by the legislative welfare committee because of lack of opportunity to hear testimony from the community.

The committee today voted to recommend that the bill be referred back to it next year during the legislative session.

The bill, which makes women equally as liable as men for the support of children and widens the definition of children to include mentally or physically infirm persons over the age of 19, was referred to the committee about two weeks ago.

The committee recommendation does not specifically say that the government shoudn't proceed with the bill.

Uvic Music Sound Fills Packed Gym

The huge gymnasium of the University of Victoria was filled to standing room only Monday when the university's chorus and orchestra presented Faure's Requiem and Poulenc's Gloria.

Led by George Corwin, the 250 singers and musicians completely conquered the awesome acoustics of the former army drill hall.

The Sanctus in the Requiem proved to be an outstanding choral presentation. Soprano Audrey Farnell met the challenge of the sound chamber effects with ease and soloist Charles Dorrington had excellent control and tone.

Composed in 1959, Poulenc's Gloria is in modern idiom, with a gay veneer overlaying a sadness and pathos that was well interpreted by the musicians.

The well-balanced chorus of 170 singers was outstanding in its rendering of the In Parisium which concluded the Requiem, showing a coupling of tight discipline and feeling of excitement.

Held to raise funds to support the Taylor Scholarship Fund for deserving students of music, the concert's popularity might indicate the worth of a repeat performance.

Five Killed In Plane Crash

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Five persons were killed in a plane crash near Benny, 50 miles northwest of here Monday when a plane went through the ice of Bannerman Lake, police said today.

Killed were the pilot and four passengers, apparently fishermen from the area of Pogamasing almost 80 miles northwest of Sudbury.

Names of the victims were not released.

The Sudbury Aviation Ltd. plane apparently plunged nose first into the ice. One body was flung clear and it was six hours later before the others were recovered.

The bodies were brought to Sudbury for an autopsy.

and the Soviet Union is ready for "the re-establishment of good neighborliness and friendship, and we express the certainty that in the final analysis this will be achieved."

He said China has demanded that the Kremlin go back on the course adopted at the 20th party congress in 1956, when former premier Nikita Khrushchev denounced Joseph Stalin and assured Russians there would be no return to the late dictator's methods.

Brezhnev also said that international Communist solidarity is stronger than ever despite certain difficulties in the last five years.

PROMISES VIETNAM AID

He said North Vietnam could continue to rely on Russian help, warned that delay in ratifying a Soviet-West German non-aggression treaty could lead to distrust of Bonn and that the position of the Arab countries is a realistic basis for peace in the Middle East.

Brezhnev said in his keynote speech htat the only way to solve the Vietnam question is to accept proposals put forward by North Vietnam, which has the firm support of the Soviet Union.

Referring to U.S. policy in Indochina, he said: "The principal atrocity of modern colonialists, the shame of America, is the continuing U.S. agression against the peoples of Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos."

He was greeted with loud applause from delegates when he assured them that "the Soviet Union will continue firmly to support our Arab friends."

He declared that Israeli leaders surely could not believe they could succeed in holding on to conquered Arab territory.

By its stand Israel had clearly shown who stands in the way to peace, the Soviet leader said.

He called for the Mediterranean to be turned into a sea of peace and friendship.

MENTIONS PROBLEMS

On relations among the Communist states, Brezhnev said: "Some difficulties and complications have continued to appear in the socialist world, and this has also had an effect on the development of relations between individual states and the Soviet Union.

"However, this has not changed the dominant tendency of strengthening friendship and cohesion of the socialist countries."

In the opening part of his report he did not name any of the difficulties and complications to which he referred, but it was assumed here he had in mind relations with China and the 1968 Czechoslovak crisis.

He was greeted with applause as he told delegates that Poland has been able to overcome difficulties which arose there, though he did not refer directly to the December riots.

Brezhnev told the congress that the events in Czechoslovakia have shown that in Communist countries there are still internal anti-socialist forces which in certain conditions become active and can "even go as far as counter-revolutionary actions, counting on support from outside—from imperialism."

Brezhnev, looking healthy and well-groomed, shook hands with foreign guests and took his seat beside President Nikolai Podgorny before starting his report on party activity at the modern Palace of Congresses.

Premier Alexei Kosygin also sat beside Podgorny, who announced that 4,949 delegates were present, each representing 2,900 of the 14 million Soviet party members.

REFORMS DELAYED

Elections act changes promised in the throne speech won't be introduced this year, Premier Bennett confirmed today.

The long-awaited reforms, expected to simplify voting and other election procedures, have been under study for several years. Bennett wouldn't say why the legislation is being delayed.

Canadian Killed

PARIS (AP) — Francois Bachand, believed to be a Canadian political activist, was found beaten to death in a friend's apartment near the Flea Market, police reported today.

Moorings Rings Would Get Spot

Mayor Courtney Haddock said today the owners of the Reid waterfront property have agreed to set off a small portion of the shoreline as an historic site to preserve some antique mooring rings.

The site, to be named Queen Elizabeth Square, would become part of the waterfront access in the Reid development should it be constructed, Haddock said.

Shorts Banned

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A Beirut newspaper has unearthed a 30-year-old law forbidding the wearing of shorts by women, just as the hot pants craze catches on in Lebanon. Al Anwar said the law, based on a 1920 French presidential decree, dates from a ruling in 1941 by the French administrator of the then-mandated territory.

DAVID MOTORS SOLD

Two Victoria men have bought the imported car business established here nearly 10 years ago by David Carere.

David Motors Ltd., 1101 Yates, will be operated from April 1 by M. A. Tony Nugent, and N. C. Cam McCallum.

Nugent is an investor and McCallum, with 22 years experience in General Motors sales, is a former sales manager at Empress Pontiac Buick Ltd.

The business they have bought was founded with the Volvo franchise, to which was added the Datsun line nearly five years ago. Carere said his firm pioneered the Japanese car in Victoria by building Datsun into a full scale dealership.

Today Japanese cars rank near the top in North American imported car sales.

Carere said he has no plans for the future.

Greene Defines Resource Watchdog Role

By DAN TURNER

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister J. J. Greene described to the Commons Monday the issues he will face in his self-defined new role as economist in charge of Canada's non-renewable resources.

Mr. Greene spoke at length during committee-of-the-whole debate on the government reorganization bill, that would create a department of the environment which would take over some of the responsibilities of the minister's energy, mines and resources department.

Debate on the bill continues today.

He said the bill does not provide for new governmental powers in the resource field.

Rather it delineates federal departmental responsibilities, giving jurisdiction over renewable resources to the environment department and non-renewable resources to "what is left in the continuing department of energy, mines and resources."

Mr. Greene's department would be more inclined to be an economics department—abandoning its essential concentration on developing resources and finding markets for them in favor of assessing the costs of different approaches to development.

No Absolute Solutions

Having defined his new function, Mr. Greene dismissed absolute solutions to resource problems in favor of resolving issues on their individual economic merits and demerits.

First, he said there is "no such thing as a static and continuing or constant energy policy."

Specifically, he dealt with hoarding resources versus exporting them, demanding public welfare in development versus offering profit incentives to developers, favoring produce provinces versus favoring consumer provinces.

National security, said Mr. Greene, "is very clearly one of the objectives of our energy policy." As a modern industrial state Canada had to achieve the most secure sources of supply possible.

On the other hand "we would not want complete security at the price of economic foolhardiness."

Exporting, Importing Oil

Canada therefore was exporting some of the oil that could be used to service its own markets and importing foreign oil to its eastern market at "a far cheaper price than at which we sell."

As for directing a fuel resource policy toward providing cheap energy for the domestic Canadian market, Canada could not shelter itself from the world energy market.

The United States had set too low a price for natural gas, and developers had gone elsewhere to exploit gas because it had not been worth while to do so in the U.S.

Canadian resources "would not be uncovered, even though they existed, if we thought we could shelter them from world conditions."

Government royalties were the best way of benefiting from resource exploitation—yet imposing too many government charges on that exploitation might well price that commodity out of the economic stream.

Also necessary, he said, was to "try to achieve a balance jurisdictionally among the interests of the various sectors of Canada."

Rapid Exploitation

Alberta would be most pleased with rapid exploitation and command of the whole domestic market, but consumers in Eastern Canada also had to be served, and in the future the current consumer provinces might be the producer provinces and vice-versa.

Michael Forrestall (PC—Dartmouth-Halifax East) was more concerned about one particular energy question—the harnessing of tidal power in the Bay of Fundy and Minas Basin.

He said a recent assessment of the Fundy tidal program review board that tidal power in the area is currently not economical was based on outdated information.

Interest rates are lower, more efficient methods have been developed, and "it is now commonly conceded that a sustained source of power could be developed on an economic basis," he said.

But Premier Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia should not be allowed to proceed on a do-it-alone approach to the project, because it would involve more than $1 billion and perhaps in excess of $2 billion or $3 billion. New Brunswick and the federal government should be brought in.

Mr. Greene said talks between the two provinces and Ottawa would begin today.

Debate moved shortly before adjournment to another section of the bill, which would allow the government to appoint a postmaster-general separate from the communications department.

Terrorism, Crime Face Crackdown

TORONTO (CP) — The Quebec government will set up special agencies to deal with terrorists, organized crime and mob violence—the three "modern forms of crime"—says Jerome Choquette, the province's justice minister.

In his first public address outside Quebec since assuming the portfolio, Mr. Choquette said Tuesday the special agencies, under direction of his department, would gather inside information on terrorists and organized crime and co-ordinate efforts of police forces in fighting these areas of "contemporary criminality."

"Democratic institutions must show their efficiency, their ability to deal with these modern forms of crime," to sustain the morale of the populace and to prove that democracy is viable, he told the Board of Trade Club of Metropolitan Toronto.

"Traditional measures of law enforcement are not sufficient" to deal with these modern criminal activities. The ability of their perpetrators to continue operation creates the "appearance if not the reality of a breakdown in the judicial system."

The need to preserve the appearance as well as the fact that institutions are functioning adequately was "one of the biggest challenges" to modern government."

POLICE HAVE TROUBLE

Traditionally-trained police have difficulty coping with the ideological background of terrorists or with the diversified nature of organized crime.

In addition, "the October crisis" hit the government of Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa before it had "the opportunity to solidify our institutions in the area of law enforcement or the delicate mechanism of the judiciary."

Mr. Choquette, who directed the police efforts in response to the kidnapping of British diplomat James Cross and the kidnap-murder of Quebec labor minister Pierre Laporte, drew applause from the 240 club members when he said he thought "on the whole, we were successful in meeting the difficult test."

And he drew a laugh when he remarked to Ontario Attorney-General Allan Lawrence, who accompanied him on the platform, that "being attorney-general in Toronto the Good is much better than in Montreal."

But he added that "law enforcement is not easy any-

Moral and Medical

THIS IS AN ERA IN WHICH medical warnings have finally caught up with two wide-spread social customs: smoking and drinking. Although the cancerous and cardiac effects of tobacco use are still denied by the tobacco industry, there is virtually no doubt left that medical findings in this regard are correct. And the ravages of prolonged and excessive consumption of alcohol are too commonly exhibited to require further corroboration.

Hence, in its new legislation designed to ban the advertisement of tobacco and alcoholic products, the government of British Columbia is concurring in some restrictions already imposed elsewhere, and in some respects is setting an example for other jurisdictions.

Health Minister Loffmark expects some legal and constitutional battles over the legislation, and there may well be grounds for these. The restrictions are far-reaching, quite apart from their immediate effects on the industries and advertising media concerned. But in view of the medical and social trend of the times it is difficult to argue against the moral basis of a ban on published encouragement of smoking and drinking. As regards alcohol, the present legislation simply extends restrictions imposed nearly 20 years ago.

The Social Credit government, as the sole legal controller of alcohol sales in the province, has long worried about its moral position in deploring a commerce from which it receives a cool $60 millions net profit a year. Now, following the recent institution of a $25-million fund to assist education, rehabilitation and prevention in regard to abuse of drugs, tobacco and alcohol, Mr. Bennett recognizes the paradox of permitting the encouragement of sales through advertising on the one hand, and the expenditure of public funds to counteract its effects on the other. The paradox implicit in government sales, however, still remains.

There will be formidable problems ahead in implementing the new legislation. Publications and broadcasts from outside the provinces will be difficult, if not impossible, to control, and this will place British Columbia publications at a serious disadvantage. But the liklihood is that the years ahead will see similar government moves elsewhere. Meanwhile, British Columbians, and others, will watch with interest the overall results of this provincial ban.

Overhauling the Machinery

THE POST-WAR DRIVE IN THE United States government to make administration more efficient and economical was highlighted by the two commissions on the organization of the Executive Branch headed by former president Herbert Hoover. Mr. Hoover's recommendations have been largely implemented but still the need for continual changes in governmental techniques remains. If politics is an "endless adventure" so is the need for government methods to be adapted to appropriate policy objectives.

Republican presidents seem to have a penchant for reorganizing the government agencies and departments which have been, for the most part, the legacy of their Democratic predecessors. Now Mr. Nixon is asking Congress to approve changes which will see many of the existing departments of the federal government brought under the control of new departments.

The most historic departments — State, Treasury, Justice and Defence — will remain, while other departments — Agriculture, Commerce, Labor, Transportation, Housing and Urban Development, Interior, Health, Education and Welfare — will come under new administrations of Natural Resources, Human Resources, Economic Affairs, and Community Development. The four new departments indicate a functional approach to government and reflect the trend to ecological concern and quality of life, as well as the movement towards greater interest in local affairs.

Mr. Nixon made it clear that no interest groups would be injured by the re-organization, but clearly the standing of workers and farmers within the new structures cannot be predicted in the bureaucratic shuffle. Government today is too vast and comprehensive to avoid far-reaching political and economic repercussions when there are monumental administrative changes. Political science remains more hypothetical than factual and the role of government organization in that science is perhaps the most bewildering puzzle of all.

A World Watches Without Seeing

TODAY IN MOSCOW THE leaders of Soviet Communism convened for the 24th Congress of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union — a constitutional gathering where the shape of things to come in the nation may be drafted, but of which no clear interpretation is expected in the immediate future.

To what degree the speeches will be ritualism or pragmatic programming remains to be seen, but pre-congress speculation from Soviet-watchers indicated heavy concentration on economic considerations. Such themes as increasing production, streamlining management, spurring new technology and encouraging higher output from factories, farms and individual workers have been stressed in recent regional congresses. Following the riots in Poland, emphasis is expected on consumer goods rather than heavy industry.

In foreign policy, no major new decisions were anticipated, but there are prospects of "re-Stalinization." The formerly discredited leader has already been restored to respectability — a course that might have been expected as the hard-liners view recent dissent among the intellectuals. The problem of preserving Marxist orthodoxy without alienating the scientists and other members of the intelligentsia appeared an issue of high priority, though one not likely to be widely publicized during the congress.

The nuances of the various speeches will be studied, and the apparent current strength of leading personalities, but foreigners are not likely to determine from the congress what courses are being chosen. These will be revealed only as Moscow's policies are implemented.

". . . it must be spring . . . the rain is getting warmer . . ."

Refuse Law

New York Times

The difference between the environmentalists of the executive branch and those in Congress revolves around the Refuse Act of 1899, a long-unnoticed gem of a statute that has been happily resurrected as a quick way to get at polluters. The law simply prohibits all discharges, except from sewers, into the navigable waters of the country and their tributaries — unless those responsible for the discharge have a permit from the Army Corps of Engineers.

The Nixon Administration is prepared to use this power as a control, granting permits in the case of interstate waters only to those who conform to Federal standards and, in the case of intrastate waters, which are far more numerous, only to those who have state or regional approval. The grave weakness here is that many state standards are ridiculously low. By issuing permits on this basis, the Federal Governenment would not only be licensing some of the worst polluters in the land but, in effect, protecting them from possible suits from irate citizens.

Meanwhile, the waters deteriorate at an alarming rate. Since the Refuse Act clearly applies to all streams and rivers, why should the Administration not use it fully and at once? If it fails to grasp the opportunity, either Congress will snatch the lead from the President or the rivers of America will continue indefinitely to roll down to the sea as open sewers.

Correspondence From Our Readers

Lack of Communication

As one of the Esquimalt 47 I would request the use of your paper to comment on the recently settled agreement between the Federal Government and the Dockyard Ship repair divisions in Esquimalt and Halifax.

When word came that a new proposal was to be presented for vote by the membership on March 14, from the newspaper reports I suspected that there would be an attempt to sell the Halifax workers short. (Our council representatives based, for reasons best known to themselves, no forewarning of the total nature of the new proposals.)

I therefore purchased a copy of the Chronicle - Herald for the purpose of comparing living expenses in the two extremities of Canada. This rule of thumb method indicated to me that no case for lower wages in Halifax could be made on the basis of living expenses.

Prices appear to be about the same with the exception of accommodation which seemed to be considerably higher in Halifax. I was prepared to present these facts in favor of a parity settlement at the March 14 meeting. However the meeting was run on the basis of what some choose to call "controlled democracy" (heavy on the "controlled") and there was no opportunity.

The resulting vote has understandably caused considerable bitterness in Halifax and talk on both coasts about regional bargaining. It is to be hoped that when the fury of the moment subsides that cooler heads will prevail.

The problem as I see it is a lack of communications between the Halifax and Esquimalt workers. — Larry Tickner, 589 Nora.

Something Cooking?

For the last few years, I have had a premonition that Premier Bennett has had his thoughts on becoming the next Lieutenant-Governor of our fair province.

And the last few instances, i.e., the $20,000 Royal Coach at Porland, the Centennial Committee inserts in small town papers, which read: "Two Premiers of British Columbia, after leaving the office, became Lieutenant Governors", plus Mr. Bennett pinning a Centennial button on Prime Minister Trudeau's lapel, (as the appointment comes from Ottawa).

Then the statement of the Provincial Secretary, Wesley Black, that it was "obvious that the government supports Government House and will continue to do so."

All I know is what I hear on the radio, see on T.V., or what I read in the newspapers, and it looks like the handwriting on the wall. It also smells like something cooking.

At this Centennial of our history, I am quite sure that a majority of our citizens would be very pleased, if one of our outstanding native sons, who had served this Province and Canada during his lifetime, was appointed to this high office.

All the politicians have been well paid for any service they may have rendered, yes well paid.

I would like to suggest that anyone interested in the appointment of our next Lieutenant-Governor write the Secretary of the Cabinet, Parliament Buildings, Ottawa, asking them to give consideration of the next appointment to a native son of British Columbia—O. J. Hutchings, 1907 Fort St.

Car-Free Victoria Day

If you are interested in ecology, commerce and tourism, this plan may interest you.

Victoria Day celebritions have always consisted of the Victoria Day Parade, then a mass confusion of vehicles trying to leave the parade route afterwards.

This year, why not ban the use of vehicles other than those participating in the parade and emergency police vehicles for the whole day. This was done in Ottawa last year, successfully, but not on such a spectacular day as Victoria Day, Centennial '71.

To make up for any loss in attendance to the parade, have the transit system run for free.

After the parade, hold a street fair, with merchants and people filling the empty streets — a stret fair such as the one held in Langley last year.

This could become as renowned as the Calgary Stampede or the Klondike Days in Edmonton if correctly advertised. — Dale H. Brophy, 76 Menzies.

And The Effluent

During all the furore over the method of piping and shipping oil from Alaska to Cherry Point Refinery, I think an important point has been missed or overlooked. Regardless of the method, the oil will be transported; it will ultimately end up at the refinery at Cherry Point.

Nothing much has been said by those in the position to do so, about the 4,000,000 or more gallons of effluent a day which the refinery proposes to discharge into the Strait of Georgia, which will in turn wash up on all our surrounding beaches. A permit has been applied for, and very likely will be quietly granted.

I have written to Mr. David Anderson (and received a reply), and also to the U.S. Army Engineers in Seattle, who evidently have the last word on whether a permit will be granted.

I would like to hear more about this angle of the Alaska oil situation. — Mrs. R. Grant, 4865 Wesley.

Increased Income Tax

I am up in the air! I just roughly figured out our income tax and we have to pay another $300 on top of what they are already getting.

On top of it all, Mr. Benson is planning on taking the Family Allowance away from people with income over $10,000, besides pressing an additional tax on us.

Are we going to sit still and do nothing? Or are we going to drop a letter to: Mr. Benson, Minister of Finance, Parliament Buildings, Ottawa, Ontario, and let him know how we feel? It's our government and they are representing us.

I've just mailed my letter — registered. — Mrs. Louis D. Robinson, Campbell River.

A Frozen Smile

Among the few letters I have seen regarding the Smile Show, I have not noticed any from this area. This is surprising since I am sure that nowhere does more intense feeling exist.

That there were minor annoyances last summer cannot be denied. 'Checkpoint Charlie' at the intersection with Rockland was one, but usually enough cars managed to get past him to make sure that at least some of the driveways were sealed off. The extreme narrowness of the street was another, but when pedestrian density got too high it could be relieved by using people's lawns.

The figure for total attendance was published as 14,000. I did not see the figure for the percentage that dropped their programs, ticket stubs, and popcorn bags in the first block.

People outside the area may not be aware that a second show was held nightly. It was a benefit performance for insomniacs, and usually was a spirited, impromptu, open air affair with much witty dialogue and laughter. Unless it was a double feature it usually only lasted until midnight. What brought the residents to the edge of their beds was the finale. While there were no programs, it was generally though to be a re-enactment of the Indy 500. For comic relief, if we could stand any more, we might have a talk about the anti-noise bylaws. — H. B. Kelley, 802 Langham Court.

Students Used

I think that some of the students at our university have been used and encouraged to make a nuisance of themselves, often cruel and spiteful, by some of the men whose appointments there are in question.

The publicity given the affair is deplorable. The general public is not qualified to judge the situation, taxes or no taxes.

The Board of Governors and the President Dr. Bruce Partridge, are probably in the process of shaping the University of Victoria into the kind of institution of learning needed to balance the community college which will be opening here soon.—Thelma Cooke, 715 Vancouver.

One Point of View

Most readers of The Martlet, published by certain students of the University of Victoria, recognize the paper at once as not a newspaper, but a periodical expressing one particular point of view regarding various events on and off the University campus. Quite openly, The Martlet does not report news in an unbiased way throughout the body of the paper, and then offer editorial comment in a section specified as personal opinion. It functions as an organ of one group of students and faculty, and it is accepted (or rejected) as such an organ by even the casual reader.

The Victoria Daily Times, however, puts itself forward as a newspaper in the generally accepted sense and offers pages four and five regularly as a forum for the exchange of opinion. I suggest that "news" stories from the University of Victoria carrying the by-line of Mr. Steve Hume in the Times should identify that reporter as a former editor of The Martlet, a position which he held only two years ago. Readers of these articles would thereby be alerted to suspend the usual expectations of factual reporting and straightforward tone that respectable journalism assumes. — Rosalyn Kenneday Cothran, 2674 Topp.

How it was

I would like to respond to what I feel was an incomplete report in the Times on Thursday, March 25, with regard to the noon meeting of some students at Uvic. The reporter did not give this reader any feeling that there were many, if any, opposed to the meeting or to the "motion" presented by Mr. McDonell.

What happened at this meeting was that when brought to a "vote" over the "motion," most of the students did migrate to the side of the academic quadrangle designed for those opposed to President Partridge. However a good many students gathered at the opposite side and a significant number gathered halfway between to show their abstention for varying reasons.

It is this sort of reporting that greatly perturbs me, for it is through the news media that many Victorians will, of course, form their opinions.

I also wish to ask this reporter who says "Student leader Norman Weight" — Who says he is student leader? As a student I cannot say he is my leader, although in the two and one-half hours I spent at the gathering he was certainly one of the more quiet - spoken and sensible of the speakers. I cannot really support some of his ideas.

May I please conclude by stating that I feel that if a story is present it should be told as it is and fully as it is, not in a manner that will manage to sell more papers, as I feel it is up to the reader to form his or her own opinion based on the facts presented in a media, such as your own. — Graham R. Bell, 1754 Cedar Hill X Rd.

(Ed. Note: Thursday's story noted events up to press time. Further campus details were carried next day.)

No Bloc Vote

In your March 27 report of the faculty association meeting of March 26 which, by an overwhelming majority, urged the administration of the University of Victoria to accept the CAUT proposals, you stated: "There were block votes against the motion from the chemistry department and the theatre department."

This has been mis-read to imply that all members of both departments voted en bloc against the motion. This is untrue. I would not presume to speak for my present colleagues in the theatre department, but I voted for the motion. It seems to me that anything that just and reasonable men can do to persuade this administration to accept impartial adjudication of the issues must be done; perpahs we can, in such a way, prevent the university from being blacklisted, a situation under which everyone will suffer.—Prof. Richard Courtney, Theatre Department, University of Victoria.

Right to Work

It is understandable that the union-oriented New Democratic Party would react instinctively and violently to the move by the provincial government to free teachers from the legal obligation to join the B.C. Teachers' Federation.

It is, however, much harder to understand the attitude of the Liberal leader, Dr. McGeer, in stressing that non-union teachers would have a problem in "bargaining."

Surely he must realize that the position of a public servant, be he teacher, civil servant, policeman, postman or member of the armed forces, is quite different from that of the industrial worker who has (or had) to fight for his rights with profit-hungry employers; that the public servant is paid directly by the tax-paying public, even if his salary scale is set by the elected representatives of this public; and that very many of such public servants prefer to accept (or reject) employment at the salary offered, and not to be under the obligation of striking at the beck and call of a power-hungry union executive.

Associations of public employees serve very many valuable objects, but fighting employers is not one of them, and no public servant should be forced to join a union as a condition of his employment.—N. T. Porter, 245 Linden.

Looking Back

From the Times of March 30, 1911:

OTTAWA — A semblance of harmony has been restored in the opposition camp, through a compromise between the Borden wing and the Insurgents. Mr. Borden's threat of resignation, leaving the party leaderless and rent by factions, showed the necessity for retreat of the Insurgents and the stopping of washing of the party's dirty linen in public. Mr. Borden had the whip hand. All but half a dozen of his followers begged him not to leave.

The Balance of Power: Henry Holds Strong Hand

WASHINGTON — Reporters and foreign diplomats in Washington have got the picture. After the president himself, the man they seek out is Mr. Kissinger, not Secretary of State Rogers.

With an office in the White House and a staff of 100 constituting a kind of scale - model State Department, Kissinger is without a doubt the man closest to Nixon. The president calls him into the Oval Office several times a day and takes no major decision without first having asked his advice.

By JACQUES AMALRIC
Le Monde

When Nixon receives a foreign visitor Kissinger is generally at his side. When the president retreats to Camp David or the Florida or West Coast White Houses to write a speech or deal with a crisis and determine his best course of action, Kissinger invariably accompanies him. That is not the case with Rogers.

Kissinger's staff scrutinizes practically every report and file before they are sent on.

In addition, it is evident that his viewpoint generally prevails. Last spring, when an invasion of Cambodia was being contemplated, Rogers opposed it on the grounds that it would revive domestic opposition to the Vietnam war. But Nixon eventually accepted the arguments of Kissinger and the Pentagon.

Kissinger saw the proposed move into Cambodia in a much wider context. At that time Moscow was being difficult over Berlin and had sent pilots to Egypt. The moment had come, he felt, to flash a signal to the Kremlin letting the Soviet leadership know that the Nixon Doctrine in no way implied a return to isolationism, and that the United States would not hesitate to resort to force if necessary.

Rogers tends to think in terms of compromise, while Kissinger sees things in terms of the balance of power. To him the world is a giant chessboard and two super-players (perhaps three in the near future) are moving the pawns around.

The Kissinger Weltanschauung explains why so many Washington visitors get a different picture of American foreign policy in talking to the secretary of state and the presidential adviser. For example:

● West German Chancellor Willy Brandt's Ostpolitik is approved by the State Department, but the White House attitude is far more reserved. Rogers believes in the dynamics of detente. Kissinger, on the contrary, is wary of its implications.

● Soviet moves in the Caribbean are, Kissinger feels, a way of testing how far the United States will allow the Soviets to go. This explains why the

'The World Is a Giant Chessboard'

White House reacted so strongly last autumn when it was feared that the Kremlin was trying to install a submarine base in the Cuban port of Cienfuegos.

But while the White House was publicly expressing its concern the State Department insisted it could see no reason for alarm. And when the president decided to discreetly warn the Soviets against reviving the Cuban question, it was on Kissinger that he called, and not the secretary of state.

● Salvador Allende's accession to power in Chile has never been strongly deplored by Rogers, who seems to think on the contrary that a modus vivendi between Chile and Washington is possible. His view is not shared by Kissinger.

Other examples could be cited. On the Middle East Kissinger prefers to keep to the sidelines, feeling that as a Jew his opinions would be open to needless attack. Privately, however, the White House adviser has reportedly expressed very pronounced scepticism about the Rogers Plan.

Although Nixon has approved the plan, he followed Kissinger's advice last autumn when the Middle East crisis threatened to bring on a confrontation between the United States and the Soviet Union, reacting with a show of force by the American Sixth Fleet.

The contrasting backgrounds of the two men do much to explain Kissinger's front position in the elaboration of American foreign policy. Kissinger's career as a political science professor and analyst constituted a thorough preparation for the job he holds today.

Rogers, a lawyer who has known Nixon for twenty years, had taken no notable interest in foreign affairs until he was named secretary of state. He is a practical-minded person rather than a theoretician, and he relies mainly on common sense and good personal relations to settle problems as they arise. Furthermore he is hamstrung by State Department red tape, a problem which Kissinger does not have.

The congressional attacks on Kissinger are nothing new. For more than fifty years American presidents have relied on personal advisers who sometimes remained in the background but influenced policy to a considerable extent. Woodrow Wilson, commenting on his relationship with Colonel E. M. House, his "eminence grise," came close to qualifying this adviser-extraordinary as his alter ego.

Franklin D. Roosvelt relied on Harry Hopkins, while John Kennedy listened carefully to his advisers, the best known of whom was Harvard professor McGeorge Bundy. Lyndon B. Johnson relied on another professor, Walt Rostow, who has been supervising the editing of his memoirs.

Rarely, however, has U.S. foreign policy been so strongly influenced by a presidential adviser as in the case with Kissinger. His role is virtually a public one. He even makes occasional television appearances.

After Nixon himself, Kissinger is the most widely quoted member of the administration. His name is rarely mentioned; his remarks are generally attributed to "sources close to the president." Reporters and diplomats, however, are usually well advised to lend more weight to his "anonymous" statements than to one of Rogers' press conferences.

It is precisely this increasingly public role which has triggered the controversy between Congress and the White House. Senator Symington is not so much critical of Kissinger's foreign policy influence as of his failure to accept the full consequences of his role.

So-called "executive privilege" bars White House staffers from having to testify before congressional committees on the grounds that it would ruin their confidential relationship with the president. Should this privilege apply to Kissinger? Are his dealings with Nixon those of a confidential adviser, or has he moved into the position of chief architect of American foreign policy?

A number of senators argue the latter, they refuse to content themselves with second-hand reports on foreign policy decisions by the secretary of state. The question would be academic if Kissinger and Rogers were always in agreement, but generally they are not.

Certain senators have therefore begun to point out that the U.S. Constitution assigns to the Senate the duty to "advise and consent" as regards foreign policy. It remains to be seen whether the Senate has been given the means, under the Constitution, to exercise this right.

Kissinger has Nixon's ear

'EXECUTIVE PRIVILEGE' ABUSED

THE NATION

Columnists, commentators and most editorial writers have inexplicably failed to identify the real issue involved in the flareup of concern over Henry Kissinger's special role in the Nixon Administration.

The issue is not whether Senator Symington did or did not take a "cheap shot" at Henry, as the President put it, in commenting on the way in which Kissinger overshadows Secretary of State William Rogers.

Nor is it that the doctrine of "Executive privilege" should be modified or set aside. Presidents have long had special advisers who should be able to invoke "Executive privilege," if they wish, when called before Congressional committees.

But when a presidential adviser appears on a TV network program, answers questions, and pontificates about policy matters, but refuses to appear before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the doctrine of "Executive privilege" is distored well beyond its traditional and well-recognized limitations.

Dr. Kissinger briefs selected newsmen, special gatherings of editors and publishers, and diplomats, but refuses to brief the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. In such activities he is acting not as an adviser to the President but in the way that a public official might act.

He also appears at various private gatherings, speaks at some length, and answers questions under cover of an off-the-record understanding.

If he is going to brief some citizens about foreign policy, the war and security matters, then the briefings should be conducted in public so that we may all benefit from his insights.

In the supplemental role he has assumed, he is functioning as a behind-the-scenes and off-the-record briefer and pacifer of certain groups; this role contravenes the concept of "Executive privilege" and should be abandoned. That is the issue and the Senate should continue to press it.

A Falling Out in Saskatchewan

By DOUGLAS FISHER

What now, Paul Hellyer? Does one robin make a spring? A few hours after the ex-minister criticized the government's economic policies last Thursday, there was a vote in the House.

It was an opportunity to vote for or against the government on its performance. Mr. Hellyer, with an embarrassed smile, unfolded upward to be counted on the list behind Mr. Trudeau. The opposition applauded, mockingly.

Mr. Hellyer slumped back to his seat, face red, a frozen smile on his face, and went back to twisting and tugging the cord of his translation earphone. Not a very heroic epilogue to his earlier act.

Several Liberals I queried were skeptical, if not derisive, about Mr. Hellyer's attack. One pointed out how Mr. Hellyer had justified his lapse from loyalty. It was the state of the people he represents. They, Mr. Hellyer said, "have been adversely affected, some of them tragically so." He had had to speak on their behalf.

●

Wasn't he a few months late? Why now, rather than last fall? Isn't the fact that Mr. Hellyer spoke now — with the economy on the mend — an indication that he is more intent on embarrassing the government than helping his poor constituents. Where has he been these past 15 months, said this Ontario Liberal MP?

A former ministerial colleague of our new government critic was sardonic. "Anyone who ever had to argue in cabinet with Paul over economic policies has to belly-laugh at his accusations that our policies have been too conservative."

I insisted that it had been a pungent, well-ordered speech. It's impact would be considerable. My contact shrugged. It should be a good speech, he said. One must assume that preparing it is all that Mr. Hellyer has been doing for many months.

●

A bitter disagreement within the cabinet over what should replace the War Measures Act as the basic, emergency, or fail-safe power, has been transferred to the Liberal caucus.

It has some ministers very angry with others — it is tending to split the caucus — the pros being from Quebec and the antis from Ontario and B.C. It is straining the balance of the man in the middle, at this stage, John Turner, the minister of justice.

If the new bill does issue before the present law lapses at April's end, we will have to read it as another example of Mr. Turner's by now rather notorious pliability. The hawks on the issue are being force-fed imaginary crisis situations by the PM's staff.

The gimmick is the challenge: What would you do tomorrow if an insurrection broke out and we didn't have the War Measures Act?

Meanwhile, out in Regina a drama is being played out which, as I see it, couldn't have happened to a better man.

For an hour last Thursday night, I listened through a phone to a quite unique radio program. A man, Wilf Gardiner, had bought the air-time with his own money in order to attack Premier Ross Thatcher and to demand his ouster from the Liberal leadership because of his wicked ways.

What kind of nut is this? Why haven't we heard more about this down east? After all, it is news even if Mr. Gardiner is a crackpot.

He does accuse a premier of skimming money from contractors by holding up cheques due to them. He insists, with examples, that the premier abuses the truth and his colleagues and his civil servants. He claims that the premier is hoarding and controlling a huge party fund of which only he knows the sources and size.

●

Further, this odd fellow accuses the Regina Leader-Post, a well-known Liberal daily, of muffling his allegations so as to keep them down in Saskatchewan and untransmitted to the rest of the country.

Of course, it is hard to believe Canadian Press would be so femiss as to pass up this Gardiner story. Probably the papers who take the CP wire haven't considered copy on this matter to be newsworthy.

Who is this droll character sniping at the great Liberal premier?

A few weeks ago, he was executive director (a government appointment) for Homecoming '71, a Saskatchewan extravaganza. Mr. Thatcher fired him.

Before Mr. Gardiner had had another. He was a deputy minister for more than three years in the Thatcher government. Before that he was a cabinet minister. Yes, Mr. Thatcher chose him.

●

Before that, Mr. Gardiner was the Liberal who nominated Mr. Thatcher in his first bid for a Liberal nomination. This was back in the dicey days when Mr. Thatcher, a renegade from the CCF, was switching parties.

Even before this, Mr. Gardiner was known quite well in Saskatchewan. He is the son and heir of the late Right Honorable James Gardiner, for 22 years the most powerful federal Liberal in the west, before that the Premier of Saskatchewan.

Indeed, Mr. Gardiner traced Mr. Thatcher's hatred of his father. His refusal to attend the old man's funeral. His absence from the Legislature for the usual eulogies to a former premier. His attempt to block naming the big Saskatchewan dam after Jimmy Gardiner.

THATCHER
... under fire

"A man with a hate so deep," said Mr. Gardiner last Thursday night, "should not be premier or hold any top position of trust or leadership."

The SST: Benefit for the Few

By ALLAN FOTHERINGHAM

The SST typifies the whole dilemma surrounding that over-worked word, ecology.

We're now a bit beyond the point where one segment of society can trot along on its selfish mission oblivious to the welfare of the mob. The SST is not going to make traveling safer, cheaper or faster for the public.

The public desire for mass travel at economy fares will be served by lumbering 747 and its imitators, 600-m.p.h. ferries of the air.

Since operating costs of the SST are estimated at 40 per cent more than present jets, they would require a surcharge of at least 25 per cent on regular fares.

That puts its passengers, of course, into the expense account field — businessmen whose time is worth such to their companies that there would be a rationale to making it across the Atlantic in three hours rather than the usual six.

It is figured that those passengers involved would amount to less than one per cent of the population. Is the other 99 ripe to put up with the noise discomfort and the heavy government subsidies to produce this needle-nosed bauble? I think not.

Does a Robin Really Matter?

By C. BOYD PFEIFFER

Wildlife, who needs it? What does a meadow vole, a milk snake, a nuthatch, or even a red fox have to do with our modern civilization? Would it make any difference if there were no more robins — if there was never again a "first robin" of spring?

Wildlife does not create jobs, feed families, produce clothing material, provide homes or affect any of the other necessities of life.

For most, wildlife is removed from their lives. We are here, in an urban-oriented society, and the wildlife is out there, in the wastelands, the wood — away, divorced, dissociated, separated and unneeeded by modern man and modern civilization.

It is a nice theory, popularly held, but it isn't true. Wildlife needs the same things as a man, and its extinction, rareness and difficulties serve as a barometer of the quality of our lives.

Each animal, fish, bird requires the same necessities as man — basically food and shelter. And when a fox kills a rabbit, a hawk swoops on a quail, a mole digs up a backyard or a deer strips a tree of bark, they are just trying to earn a living in the only way they can, the only way they know.

There is no such thing as a "good" or "bad" animal. When left alone, they all fit into the natural scheme of things. They can be good or bad only in the artificial plan and scale of importance that man has created.

When a hawk kills a gamebird it is bad to the hunter. But the hawk kills to earn a living while the hunter kills for sport.

When a carp feeds on aquatic plants and fish eggs, destroying a fine bass pond, it is bad — but only because the fisherman values the bass more than the carp. The carp doesn't know any better.

When a fox kills a furbearing animal the fox is bad — for the crime of killing for food an animal the trapper values as a pelt.

Pesticides that cause the death of many birds and change their body chemistry to produce sterile and thin-shelled eggs give an indication of the danger of these chemicals to man.

The mercury in tuna and swordfish as a result of pollution can be passed on to man causing brain damage eventually if enough is ingested.

The annual reports of fish kills are an indication not only of a lack of sport fishing but also of the quality of our water supplies and the seriousness of our pollution problems.

That lichens and mosses survive only in the country because the city air kills them, thus evaluating the air we breathe every day.

The clean water, pure air and space needed by wildlife is needed just as much by the small city child, the factory worker, the businessman, the farmer, the housewife.

There is an aesthetic value — some would call it spiritual — in the presence of wildlife. What is the value of the song of a robin, the fleeting glimpse of a red fox darting across a country road at night, the delicate rise of a trout to take a mayfly off the surface of a quiet pool in a mountain stream, the startling and frightening sound of a great horned owl at night, the silent dignity of a buck deer browsing on a cool fall evening, the wild cries of Canada geese, flying in a wavy V overhead, going north for spring nesting?

Wildlife, who needs it?

'Pusher' Label Insults Firms, Says Capozzi

Herb Capozzi (SC—Vancouver Centre) accused Premier Bennett Monday of having insulted the liquor industry last week when he branded them as "pushers" for advertising their products.

Capozzi gave an emotional defence of the industry's advertising practices during second reading of a government bill which will ban liquor ads in the province by Sept. 1, 1971.

MLA's from every party spoke against the bill, though the majority of members voted for it as it passed second reading by a voice vote after a 90-minute debate.

Some NDP members supported the bill, but criticized the government for taking a puritanical stand toward the sale and dispensation of liquor. Others called on the government to use the bill as the first step in an attack on bad advertising practices.

CAPOZZI
. . . emotional defence

HONEST PHRASES

Speaking partly as a representative of the liquor industry because his family owns Calona Wines Ltd., Capozzi said, "I never thought that the industry would be labelled with a name like pusher."

He said provincial law permits liquor ads to show only the label of the product and print "honest, descriptive phrases" about the contents.

"I never heard the word pusher when they were developing the grape industry in the Okanagan."

Nor has the Liquor Control Board ever used the phrase when dealing with brewers, distillers and wine-makers, Capozzi added.

KEEP SHARE

He said his family told him not to oppose the bill because they believe they will keep the largest share of the market after the ads stop. This is because no advertising tends to preserve the status quo, Capozzi said.

He said he had to disagree with Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi that young people had to be protected from alcohol advertising. The law already prevents them from drinking until they are 19, Capozzi said.

He predicted the use of hard liquor will increase once the ban takes effect. And he suggested the government also prohibit advertising of high-speed cars, gasoline and guns.

He said he would abstain from voting on the issue so that no one could accuse him of working to protect his family's interests.

"REACTIONARY"

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett blamed the government's "puritanical" and "reactionary" handling of liquor sales for the seriousness of British Columbia's alcohol problem.

He said he was supporting the advertising ban because to advertise a product that is subsequently sold in a manner that leads to excessive use is in effect a form of pushing which should be stopped.

He challenged the government to show a more "enlightened and mature" attitude toward dispensing the products of its alcohol monopoly.

PUBS URGED

Among Barrett's suggestions for improvement in the liquor sales system were neighborhood pubs including "ethnic taverns, and an end to "barn-like dispensaries" in beer parlors which invite patrons to "guzzle, guzzle, guzzle."

He also called for more information to be available at government liquor stores to help customers in selection and to encourage moderation.

Barrett said the government "can't have it both ways" by banning advertising and then failing to encourage moderation getting away from its "puritanical" approach to the use of alcohol.

A "BASE"

Robert Strachan (NDP—Cowichan-Malahat) said he is supporting the ban as a "base for attacking all those corrupting forces" in advertising of a variety of products.

He said "Madison Avenue madness" has had a twisted, warped effect on life in North America through exaggerated, misleading and subliminal advertising.

The government was now headed up a path that leads toward control of all such "corrupting forces" in advertising.

NOT AGAINST BILL

Premier Bennett said no matter what Judge Morrow wrote in the liquor commission report, he has stated publicly he does not oppose the bill.

Bennett said "more and more people are dying more and more because of this (advertising) campaign." And he added that businessmen know that their sales will drop if they do not advertise.

Banning liquor adds, he said, will protect "the youth unborn."

Ernie LeCours (SC—Richmond) said he opposed the ban because it would in no way lessen consumption of liquor while at the same time would generate an unhealthy attitude toward it in the same way as other liquor control regulations.

CHANGE BRANDS

He said the only effect of advertising of liquor was to get people to change their brands. He didn't think any younger people try alcohol because of seeing newspaper advertisements.

Herb Bruch (SC—Esquimalt) said he had reservations about the effectiveness of a provincial ban on advertising but added that liquor manufacturers could still promote their products through "quality."

Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi referred to highway accident statistics related to alcohol and said the government had to have "intestinal fortitude" to do as much as it could to "stop the pressure of the pushers."

Teachers' Pension Bill Approved

Government ranks united Monday behind the bill to amend the Teachers' Pensions Act after two Socred MLAs voted against a section of the bill during debate on third reading.

Ernie LeCours (SC-Richmond) and Herb Capozzi (SC — Vancouver Centre) voted against section four of the bill, and Scott Wallace (SC-Oak Bay) abstained.

All three MLAs voted with the government when the bill passed third reading by a vote of 31 to 19. The New Democrats and Liberals opposed the bill because they said it did not give enough money to retired teachers.

An amendment by Dennis Cocke (NDP — New Westminster) which would have given retired teachers or their widows the same increases as active teachers was ruled out of order.

Cocke, who is in the insurance business, accused the government of "breaking up" the teachers' pension fund by putting retired teachers on a different percentage increase formula than that for active teachers.

"It's a clear case of another pension plan going south," Cocke said. Then, referring to comparable plans in industry, he said:

"Industry is paying a larger percentage than this government is prepared to pay. Admit it. Just say we cheat."

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell attacked the British Columbia Teachers Federation which called a one-day strike March 19 to protest the bill.

"The teachers got the taste of a little politics, a little V-O-T-E, a little V-O-T-E in the mouth," Black said.

And he pointed out that the teachers' share of the plan is a smaller percentage than employees contributions in other plans.

Campbell said the strike was a "professional disgrace" and he accused opposition members of having taken a "cynical approach" throughout the debate.

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett told Campbell nothing could have been more cynical than when Black ended second reading on the bill two weeks ago by reading from a 26-page speech printed by the Queen's Printer.

●

Barrett said if the government were sincere about teachers' pensions, it would donate to the fund the school district money it witheld as a result of the strike.

He said the maximum increase for a retired teacher would be $21. This is a "blackjack increase," Barrett said, because "any hit over 21 and you're out."

By this he meant that any combination of years of service and average high salary would not result in more than a $21 increase for retired teachers.

Barrett noted that the teachers were not allowed to hire their own actuary to advise the government, even though the one who was hired was paid out of the fund.

Black later tabled information that the government printed 40,000 copies of his speech at a cost of $3,650. They were sent to retired teachers, schools, school districts and the news media.

●

Liberal Leader Pat McGeer urged the government to take a second look at the bill. He complained that the government had adopted the pension philosophy of industry that an employee is entitled to only what he and his employer put into the fund.

"You don't have to be a genious to know that the retired teachers are getting a raw deal," McGeer said.

Wallace won jeers from the NDP for "waffling" when he said he would abstain from voting on section four. He said he was no expert on pensions but had decided that the increases for active teachers and those for retired ones are disproportionate.

Wallace claimed the teachers have not proposed specific alternatives to the government bill.

"If they want their retired colleagues to have a better deal, they should either put up one-half a per cent to be matched by the government or they should dilute their 40 per cent."

●

Capozzi did not indicate during debate that he would oppose section four, but LeCours, who also voted against the government during second reading of the bill, said he was opposed to the different increases for retired and active teachers.

LeCours also attacked the BCTF for being more interested in its active members than in its retired members.

Gordon Dowding (NDP — Burnaby-Edmonds) said the government has a moral obligation to amend the bill because it has used the pension money to finance B.C. Hydro and Pacific Great Eastern Railway projects.

William Hartley (NDP — Yale-Lillooet) commended the teachers for striking.

"They're not like these unions who, when their monopoly is threatened, start to squeal," he said, referring to objections against the government's intention to ban liquor advertising.

NDP Questions Claims Return

A bill that would restore forfeited mining claims to shareholders of Sunshine Comstock Mines Ltd., was questioned in the legislature Monday by Opposition Leader Dave Barrett.

Debate on second reading of the bill was adjourned by Barrett after he said Mines Minister Frank Richter didn't seem to understand the background to the company which had been under investigation for some years by the attorney-general's department.

Richter told the House the claims were forfeited through no fault of the shareholders. Taxes on the claims weren't paid by the officers of the company who were in a position to pay them, he said.

Barrett pressed Attorney-General Leslie Peterson for an explanation of what legal procedings, if any, are under way against George Groves Jr., a principal of the company who was charged with theft of $40,000 worth of securities from the company.

Barrett read from news reports that said Goves was released on bail from a B.C. court in June 1970 but it wasn't clear what had happened since then, he said.

Richter, in introducing the bill, said George Groves Sr. had died in New York and that his son "has no connection" with the claims.

The return of the claims would be made only after certain conditions had been met by the shareholders, he said.

Barrett, who said George Groves Sr. is a brother of Wallace Groves, formerly of the Bahamian company which was developing Cypress Bowl, said Richter appeared to be uncertain about whether Groves Jr. was a principal of the firm.

Lawyer Bill Praised, Criticized

A bill requiring new lawyers licensed to practise in B.C. to be Canadian citizens was praised and criticized in the legislature Monday.

Herb Capozzi (SC — Vancouver-Centre) said it was a "great step forward" to end special treatment of non-Canadian British subjects but Howard McDiarmid (SC — Alberni) said he hoped it wasn't "a foot in the door" for other professions to follow suit.

McDiarmid said the shortage of doctors makes it desirable to allow people from other countries to be licensed here after suitable training periods.

Ernie Hall (NDP—Surrey) said the bill will discourage, rather than encourage, young lawyers who come from other countries. He suggested a more sensible requirement would be for such lawyers to become Canadian citizens after a set period or face loss of practising privileges.

Bert Price (SC—Vancouver-Burrard) said it was a "very unusual principle" for a bill to "discriminate against British subjects" and added it was "not a right thing to do."

The bill, which ends the right of non-Canadian British subjects to become lawyers, received approval in principle by voice vote.

MLAs FAVOR TOBACCO AD BAN

MLAs from all parties gave unanimous support to the Tobacco Advertising Restraint Act Monday as it received second reading in the legislature.

The bill will ban all forms of tobacco advertising in British Columbia by Sept. 1, 1971.

Opening the debate, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson gave credit to Garde Gardom (L—Vancouver-Point Grey) and James Chabot (SC—Columbia River) who earlier had proposed similar bills.

Peterson said intent of the bill is to end the "intensive and persuasive" efforts of tobacco companies which create the image that smoking is not harmful.

AIMED AT YOUTH

The bill is particularly aimed at preventing young people from starting to smoke, he added.

Peterson noted that offenders are not liable to prosecution under the Summary Convictions Act, though anyone may apply for an injunction against a tobacco advertiser.

He also said he expected the co-operation of tobacco companies.

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett said it is easy for the government to bring in this kind of bill because there is no tobacco industry in B.C.

STRONG FEELINGS

But he said he has "very strong feelings" about the way fine minds enter the advertising business and produce the "huckaterism" which is cigarette advertising.

Barrett especially attacked the way tobacco ads degrade women by suggesting that they are sexually attracted to men who smoke.

"There is an attempt to convey the impression that manliness and cigarettes go hand in hand," Barrett said.

He said he regretted that some newspapers and publications have to rely on liquor and tobacco ads to break even. And he challenged the tobacco companies to use their ad money for medical research on the effects of smoking or anti-smoking advertisements.

NOT A NECESSITY

Gardom said a smoker's right to smoke is not taken away by the bill, but he said cigarettes are not a necessity like food. Therefore, it is not necessary to advertise them.

Gardom said he wished that the government had brought in a feature of his bill which would have required cigarette decks to carry a health hazard warning.

But Herb Bruch (SC — Esquimalt) disagreed.

"I think that if we followed this line, we would have to put health hazard notations on half the foods we consume," he said.

Bruch added that sometimes it is refreshing to have a cigarette in the open air.

Minister Without Portfolio Pat Jordan said a vote against the bill is against motherhood.

'FALSE, FATAL'

"And I've always been in favor of motherhood, so I'm going to vote for this bill," she said.

Alex Macdonald said tobacco advertising has been the most "false, deceptive and fatal" of all forms of advertising, and he said tobacco companies should have been prosecuted long ago by the families whose members had died from smoking.

Herb Capozzi (SC—Vancouver Centre) said he would vote for the bill, but he thought it might be a mistake, because it was an attack on advertising.

He said it was wrong to assume that fewer tobacco ads would mean fewer people smoking. And he wondered what the government would do if someone created a 100 per cent effective cigarette filter.

Premier Bennett said he thought Capozzi's argument is based on the wrong understanding of advertising. Bennett said the "pushing force" of advertising is one of the most powerful forces in the world.

He said an example is the way advertising made it socially acceptable for women to smoke.

"That's the power of advertising. That's the reason I support this bill."

Howard McDiarmid (SC — Alberni) called on the government to initiate a vigorous anti-smoking campaign with some of its $25 million drug, alcohol and tobacco rehabilitation fund created earlier this session.

FIREHALL 'FIRE TRAP'

REHOBOTH, Mass. (AP) — Fire Chief Walter Goff is dissatisfied with the town's fire station, a former one-room schoolhouse his department has been using for 20 years.

He wants the town to build a new station.

"It's a potential fire trap," he says of the old one.

SLIP SPELLS TROUBLE FOR DRUG SMUGGLERS

SOUTHAMPTON, England (AP) — Three South Africans drug smugglers started jail terms Monday because they couldn't spell.

They shipped marijuana into Britain in 480 cans labelled "desiccated coconut."

A sharp-eyed customs man checked his dictionary and found it should have been "desiccated," meaning dried.

Customs agents were waiting when 26-year-old Malcolm Harris arrived at the wharf to pick up the shipment. Through Harris agents traced his partners, Anthony Ritch-Bateson, 29, and Isaac Kerbel, 28.

Their nine-day trial ended Friday.

Harris was jailed for three years, Ritch-Bateson and Kerbel for four.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissue.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

You've changed.

You're in a mood to demand a lot more for your money. Good.

We've changed.

For the price of a Nova you get two cars in one: a not-too-big car and a not-too-small car.

Nova

Nova—the not-too-big, not-too-small Chevrolet. Our idea of the perfect combination. We've put together the best of the big and the smartest of the small.

Not-too-big, not-too-small Nova—the one that's big enough to make multi-lane highway driving a real breeze. Hefty weight, wide tread and 111-inch wheelbase make the big difference.

And Nova's the one that's small enough to park in a downtown eyeball and manoeuvre beautifully in downtown traffic.

Not-too-big Nova becomes a mere shadow of its former self at the mention of a garage. It moves right in with space to spare.

Just-right Nova has lots of other features. In or on, every Nova: Side marker lights and reflectors. Backup lights. Outside rearview mirror. Dual master cylinder brake system with warning light. Safety steering wheel and energy-absorbing steering column. Safety padded instrument panel. Shoulder belts. Seat belts . . .

Enough?

Speaking of seats . . . don't think Nova's too small to take all your friends out in. Five big friends and you—and room enough in Nova's 12.7 cubic foot trunk for all your luggage. You can even have the basic interior one of two ways. In cloth and vinyl. Or at slight extra cost, in all vinyl.

Nova gives you two standard engines to choose from as well. The Turbo-Thrift 250 Six and the Turbo-Fire 307 V8.

Both designed to operate efficiently, and with lower exhaust emissions, on low-lead, no-lead or regular fuels.

Big performance at little operating expense.

Nova the Economical!

Nova . . . it gives you more for your money all the way around.

Buckling your seat and shoulder belts is an idea you can live with.

Make the change to Nova! At your Chevrolet dealer's, today.

CREDIT UNION BILL

Protection for Investors

A bill tightening protection for credit union investors was given approval in principle in the legislature Monday after the government refused the opposition more time to test the reaction of credit unions to the bill.

New Democrats said the bill seemed to be a good step forward but since it was introduced last Thursday night and credit unions are closed Mondays, there hadn't been time to get reactions to the proposed changes.

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett said the government's refusal to allow an adjournment of the debate was "a new form of closure" and he accused Attorney-General Leslie Peterson of "pique" and inflexibility in his handling of the matter.

In introducing the bill, Peterson said it contains a number of safeguards such as limitations on borrowings by officers of credit unions. It also provides for an independent audit of all credit unions every year and allows credit unions to invest in common stocks of chartered banks.

Fire Hazard Forces Total Pinto Recall

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. has recalled its entire production of sub-compact Pintos to correct an engine defect which, the company says, could allow gasoline fumes to accumulate and explode under the hood.

The company began sending certified letters Monday to owners of Pintos built between the time production started last summer and March 13, when production-line modifications were made.

Between 90 and 100 explosive backfires were reported, a Ford spokesman said, with damage ranging from a scorched air cleaner to extensive charring of the car's front end. There were no reported injuries.

Ford said a total of 204,000 cars in the United States were affected, although only about 165,000 of them are in the hands of customers, the rest still being on dealers' lots or in transit.

Also recalled are 13,100 Canadian Pintos and 2,100 shipped overseas.

A Ford spokesman said the problem was located in the equipment used to control evaporating of gasoline into the atmosphere. The equipment is required by U.S. federal law for the first time on 1971 cars.

A spokesman for Ford of Canada Ltd., said Monday that corrective adjustments are being made on Pinto models being produced at the plant here following reports of about 100 engine fires in the new sub-compact car.

A restrictive plug is being installed to prevent gasoline vapors from getting into the air cleaning unit where the fires, five of them in Canada, occurred, he said.

Adjustments to cars already sold will be made by dealers, he said.

The plant at Talbotville, just south of London, produces about 30 per cent of the Pintos sold in North America.

Copper Prices Boosted

TORONTO (CP) — Two Toronto-based producers announced increases Monday in their domestic copper prices.

The International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. said its new Canadian price will be the equivalent of 52¾ cents U.S. a pound.

The increase follows three reductions since March, 1970. The latestwas to 50¾ cents a pound in January of this year.

Noranda Sales Corp., marketing arm for Noranda Mines Ltd. of Toronto, raised its price by two cents a pound to 53 cents a pound, effective today.

Other Canadian producers usually follow when major companies increase prices.

SUBSIDY SOUGHT

JUNKING THOSE HULKS

WINNIPEG (CP) — Disposing of junked automobiles is a public service that rids the environment of unsightly rusting hulks, and as such should be subsidized by government when the profit-making side of the venture is on shaky grounds.

This is the view of Sam Lazareck, general manager of General Scrap and Car Shredder Ltd. of Winnipeg, who says his business is cleaning up the polluting by-products of other industries.

"There is no excuse for any hard-litter problem in Manitoba because we can handle everything in the province," Mr. Lazareck said in an interview.

But transportation costs are a problem. If the wrecks are within a 25-mile radius of the Hammermill shredder at General Scrap, they can be moved economically to the site.

Mr. Lazareck said his company does pay truckers to cart in wrecks from as far as 200 miles away, but at that distance the truckers have to be subsidized.

The provincial government appears to be turning a sympathetic ear to the problems faced by the truckers and crushers. A study is under way on possible legislation to control solid waste.

Bud Boyce, NDP member of the legislature for Winnipeg Centre, has recommended to the government that a fee of 50 cents to $1 be assessed on top of auto licence fees, to pay for the ultimate disposal of the car.

SOUPED-UP E-TYPE UNVEILED BY JAG

LONDON (AP) — Jaguar unveiled Monday a new E-type sports car with a V-12 engine, which it said was designed specifically for the North American market.

Longer, wider and more powerful than its popular predecessor, this latest roadster is the first volume production car with a 12-cylinder engine, Jaguar said.

Producing nearly 300 brake horsepower, the all-aluminum motor provides superb acceleration and, the company said, it has been specially developed to meet United States anti-pollution laws up to 1974.

Since Jaguar introduced its original E-type in 1961, more than 65,000 have been produced, of which 78 per cent have been exported to the U.S. and Canada.

Stock Exchange Talks

TORONTO (CP) — Members of Canada's major stock exchanges will meet April 5 to vote on proposals to permit negotiated commission rates on orders of more than $500,000.

The April meetings, announced Monday by the Toronto Stock Exchange, will involve members of the Toronto, Montreal and Canadian exchanges.

BUSINESS and FINANCE

Heritage

Heritage Savings and Trust of Edmonton had a net profit increase of 29 per cent in 1970.

Profit totalled $81,730 or 61 cents a share compared with $62,992 of 51 cents a share in 1969, president William Sereda reported.

Gross income rose to $412,429 from $201,055 and assets increased to $5.4 million from $3.5 million.

Bethlehem

Bethlehem Iron Mines Inc., a subsidiary of Bethlehem Steel Corp., has signed a contract to sell its iron mines in Chile to the Marxist government of President Salvador Allende.

The sale was the first by an American-owned company since the nationalization of Chile's basic resources, large industries and banks.

A Bethlehem spokesman refused to confirm reports the firm was to receive $30 million for the mines. He said the price was to be determined by "independent auditors."

Canada Steamship

Canada Steamship Lines Ltd. reports net earnings of $8.65 million or $2.70 a share for the year ended Dec. 31, up from $8 million or $2.50 a year earlier.

L. R. Desmarais, president, and J. W. McGriffin, chairman, said the record tonnage moved last year "combined with stronger grain rates to produce an improvement in net earnings, despite increases in insurance and fuel costs."

Riley's Datashare

Riley's Datashare International Ltd. lost $4,000 on business operations during the nine months ended Feb. 28, but extraordinary revenues resulted in a net income of $101,500 or 8.6 cents a shre.

During the comparable period a year earlier, the company lost $607,100.

Total sales were $2.68 million compared with $2.66 million a year earlier.

Box Cars

Revenue freight loaded on railway cars last month totalled 13.9 million tons, down 1.9 per cent from February, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports.

Cumulative car loadings for the year showed tonnage down 2.8 per cent to 28.5 million tons.

'SMALL MAN HURT BY FISH CURBS'

PRINCE RUPERT (CP)—Anglican Bishop Douglas Hambidge of Prince Rupert, in the name of British's Columbia's diocese of Caledonia, has urged that reconsideration be given to proposed changes in fishing regulations.

In an open letter to Fisheries Minister Jack Davis, Bishop Hambidge says the executive committee of the diocese has noted that "the small fisherman can only lose from the new regulations while the powerful corporations seem to have been particularly favored by them."

The new regulations involve a salmon licence control program aimed at phasing out smaller, less economical fishboats.

It has been estimated that 255 fishermen will leave the trade in northern areas this year under the program.

Bishop Hambidge says one parish priest in the diocese, which extends along the coast, claimed his entire village will be on welfare because of the proposed regulations.

He also cites a resolution, passed by the executive committee calling on Mr. Davis to "give greater consideration to the fishermen who have invested their lives and the well-being of their families in the industry, and less consideration to the companies dominated by the great corporations."

The resolution also asked the government to seriously consider investing the profits of the fishing industry in the people as a whole.

Copies of the resolution were sent to Prime Minister Trudeau, Premier W. A. C. Bennett and federal and provincial opposition members.

Joint Labor Talks Considered

Esquimalt council will reconsider a request from Victoria to set up joint labor negotiations with employees in the four core municipalities.

A finance committee resolution that the Victoria request be refused was turned back by Mayor Art Young and council Monday night, after Young suggested there was "much merit" in a joint effort, at least in preliminary discussions.

The way things stand now, Young said, the other three municipalities are "pretty well bound to accept any settlement reached in any one of the four.

"Our bargaining position would be much stronger if we could all agree beforehand to hold the line at, say, six per cent."

He suggested at least initial discussions and a wage guideline could be worked out jointly.

The issue was referred back to finance committee for further debate before a reply is prepared to the Victoria request.

In other business, council took the first step towards improvements along Esquimalt Road which has been urged in an extensive brief presented by the Chamber of Commerce.

A sum of $4,000 was put forward for inclusion in the 1971 budget to cover such improvements as $1,500 in sidewalk repair, $1,000 worth of fibreglass and aluminum litter bins, $1,000 worth of precast planters and the sprucing up of the municipal boundary marker by the addition of a flower bed and an 80-foot grass boulevard.

Council also earmarked $5,000 for improvements at Jubilee Hall, to include washroom facilities, straightening of the partition wall, relocating doors, replacing cloakroom space and painting.

Another $600 was allowed for completing the fencing at the Bullen Park lacrosse box and providing a power outlet.

Follow the leader, Datsun 1600

Try it.
You're following a car with a list of rally wins as long as an elephant's memory. You're following a car that slides through little side streets like a greased eel. A car with the poke to put you where you want to be on the freeway. Out in front. So don't just follow the leader. Drive a Datsun 1600, and let everyone else follow you.

Here's what you see from the insides: Everything. You've got fantastic all-round visibility. Plus a list of extras that don't cost extra: Contoured bucket seats (reclining in four-door sedan and wagon). Flow through ventilation. Tinted glass. 3-speed heater/defroster. Collapsible safety steering column. Headrests, harnesses and a padded dash all wrapped up in a solid unit body construction for your own safety and protection. All-synchro 4-on-the-floor is standard, 3-speed automatic an optional extra.

Here's what you get on the outside: Front disc brakes that stop you straight and sure. All-independent suspension that irons out the roughest road. Smart styling, in two doors, four doors or a wagon and a range of colours that may just make it the most visible car on the road.

Here's what you see under the hood: A 1600 cc 96 hp. 5-main-bearing overhead camshaft engine that's designed for 100,000 mile reliability and squeezes up to 35 miles from a gallon of gas. Dual barrel carb. Alternator. Independent light fuse system.

Here's where you can see it: At any of 250 Datsun dealers all across Canada. Any one of them will be happy to arrange a test-drive. Datsun 1600. It's a tough act to follow.

ARTISTS PLEDGE $5,000

Auditorium Plans Called Inadequate

DUNCAN — The Cowichan Valley Regional Arts Council says Duncan's proposed centennial auditorium will be inadequate.

A delegation of local artists told aldermen Monday evening that if they revised architects plans for the $185,000 complex to include a theatre the performing arts groups would contribute $5,000.

The project, of which the first phase is under way, consists of a library, senior citizens' centre and an auditorium.

Ted Fox, arts council president, said the centennial centre is not offering any facility not already existing in Duncan.

He said the auditorium could not be used for any of the performing arts.

The hall which would be equipped with a small stage, will be inadequate for theatrical productions or concerts, Fox said. The seating capacity would be restricted to about 320.

He said that two-thirds of the proposed centre space would be needed to make a useful small theatre with a seating capacity for about 450.

Mayor Jim Quaife recommended that the city's centennial committee discuss a possible change in plans to include a theatre and suggested that Duncan cultural groups try to find out how the additional money could be raised.

The groups had expressed their willingness to help financially with the additional estimated cost of $50,000.

Union Backs Multiple Use For Nitinat

CROFTON — Pulp and paper workers here support the multiple use concept for the Nitinat forest area.

"The multiple use of this area serves the best interest of not only our own members but of the public at large," Pat Clements, president of the Crofton local of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, said today.

He said the area serves as a woodfibre-producing area and as a readily available recreational zone.

The union will make its position known to government and industry, strongly emphasizing that every effort must be made to safeguard resources and not directly related to the harvesting of the forest.

"Jointly they must be prepared to include in their plans extension and facilities to accommodate the public in tree farm licence areas.

"In taking this position, we recognize that CBFP is a leader in the field of public access and accommodation, but we also recognize that this attitude is largely the result brought on by fish and game conservation and related groups.

"We feel that carefully planned multiple use of the forest makes tood sense and should be applied to the Nitinat area," Clements said.

Dufferin Picked

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Voters in southwest Kamloops have decided to form a district municipality known as Dufferin. A spokesman for the Southwest Citizens' Association said Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell will be petitioned to set up the new municipality, an area of 7,000 acres containing a population of about 1,000.

Phosphorus Villain In Lakes Cleanup

LOS ANGELES (CP) — Restoration of lakes Erie and Ontario will be a longer and harder job than is generally realized.

One reason is that build-up of phosphorus on the bottom silt will complicate efforts to reverse the aging process that has resulted from a phosphorus overload from municipal sewage and other sources around the lakes.

Three Canadian scientists suggested here today that even if Canada and the United States cut the amount that goes into the lakes to the levels recommended by the International Joint Commission, stores of it in bottom sediments will continue to be released into the waters for an unknown period.

Participating in meetings of the American Chemical Society are Dr. Julian D. H. Williams, Dr. Anthony L. W. Kempt and Alena Mudrochova, all of the Canada Centre for Inland Waters at Burlington, Ont.

They were reporting on a series of measurements of phosphorus content of the bottom of both lakes made within the last two years.

Phosphorus has been the pollution villain in the two lakes since the IJC identified it in 1959 as the principal cause for the over-growth of algae blooms —masses of tiny green plants that rob the water of oxygen that normally support fish and other aquatic life.

Following the report, the Canadian government instituted a progressive ban on one phosphorus source—the phosphates used in laundry and other detergents. They are limited to 20 per cent by weight and are to be virtually eliminated by 1972.

Despite Canadian government urging, the United States has not followed suit. The U.S. has argued for greater efforts to remove the chemicals that nourish algae growth from municipal and industrial wastes.

The Canadian study concludes "that an excess of phosphate is accumulating in lakes Erie and Ontario at the present time and that this excess will continue to grow while present phosphorus loadings prevail."

"This excess phosphorus will revert into the lake water should phosphorus input be reduced to the levels recommended by the IJC report as necessary to reverse the process of eutrophication in the Great Lakes.

"The longer the present excessive loadings prevail, the greater the excess of phosphorus in the sediments and the longer the lakes may take to return to non-eutrophic conditions."

Eutrophication is the process of over-enrichment of water by nutrients and the subsequent oxygen depletion caused by decay of massive growths of aquatic vegetation.

Pianist Mona Bates Dies at 80

TORONTO (CP) — Mona Bates, believed the first Canadian pianist to tour Europe and achieve an international reputation, died Monday at the age of 80.

A native of Burlington, Ont., Miss Bates graduated from the Toronto Conservatory of Music and went on to study in New York and Budapest.

While she was in New York she appeared as a soloist with the Lewisjohn Stadium Orchestra and later gave several performances at Toronto's Massey Hall as soloist with the New York Symphony Orchestra.

Her European debut was in Aeolian Hall in London and from there she toured the continent under the name of Anom Setab—Mona Bates spelled backwards.

Miss Bates' funeral will be held in Toronto Thursday with burial in Woodstock, Ont.

Union Resigned To Truck Pact

There was little surprise Monday when the B.C. Mediation Commission brought in a contract for 3,000 Teamsters and 56 trucking firms that did not include the controversial struck goods clause.

The commission's decision was ironic, said retiring Teamsters business agent Bob Milliken of Victoria, because the struck goods clause was originally proposed by the Automotive Transport Labor Relations Association.

Milliken explained the union had wanted a hot cargo clause included in the agreement which would allow truckers to refuse to handle struck goods even if they had been handled by union workers since leaving the struck factory, regardless of how far away the factory might be.

TOO STRONG

The ATLRA felt the measure was too strong and responded with a proposal for a struck goods clause which would apply mainly to strikes in B.C. only.

The only surprise in the new contract which gives Teamsters a 12 per cent wage increase is that it is retroactive to Jan. 1. The companies began paying the increase effective March 1 pending the mediation commission's decision

The Teamsters last month were prevented from going on strike when the government invoked Bill 33, forcing a return to work. The union membership voted not to defy the compulsory law on the advice of Teamsters leader Sen. Ed Lawson.

RESUME FIGHT

Blair Whitelock, president of the Vancouver-based General Truckdrivers and Helpers, Local 31, said the battle to get a struck goods clause will resume later this year when negotiations start for a 1972 contract.

Inter-provincial trucking contracts — covered by federal labor laws, and therefore not subject to any compulsory legislation — will also be up for negotiation, Whitelock said

Larry Ryan, secretary-treasurer of the Victoria Labor Council, said during the California table grape boycott labor was frequently criticized for transporting hot grapes. A hot cargo clause would rule out the possibility of a recurrence of that situation, he said.

LEGALITY QUESTIONED

The mediation commission report said there is "real doubt" about the legality of a struck goods clause and therefore it could not be included in the current binding agreement.

"If we acceded to the union's request for a struck goods clause it is difficult to see how the goods could be removed from the employers' warehouse and the employer, no doubt, could be made liable for damages for failure to deliver."

The commission also said it could not rule in favor of the union on questions concerning better pay for loading containers, improved bereavement leave, additional statutory holidays, vacations and sick leave, and double time because the union refused to appear before the commission

"If this appears on the face of it to work an injustice on the union, we can only say that they are themselves the authors of their own misfortunes," the report said.

"They had every opportunity to come forward and place their facts and arguments before us but they did not do so."

The 11-page report was signed only by commission chairman Judge John Parker. Missing were the signatures of Allistair Pollack and Ben Baskin.

Suite Owners Form Group

J. W. Dickie president of the recently-formed Greater Victoria Apartment Owners' Association said Monday his group will co-operate with other property owners in opposing unfair taxes.

The organization, said Dickie, now has more than 60 members, representing a total of 2,000 suites.

He said lawmakers and members of the public often assume that all property owners are wealthy "landlords" and should be an easy source of more and more taxes.

Dickie said the ability of the individual to properly protect his interest is "rapidly disappearing, and that only through co-ordinated action by a strong organization can the owners' rights be protected."

He outlines some of the GVAOA's objectives:

- Co-operation but not surrender to government controls and operation.
- Committees have been set up to work on such matters as taxes, legislation and legal problems, and the advisability of approaching municipal councils on the subject of setting up landlord and tenant advisory committees.
- An experienced staff will be on standby to give advice on rental problems and to help members with the complex requirements of the laws, offering solutions based on long experience and constant contact.
- To effect more efficient management the GVAOA has prepared copies of standard rental forms with uniform rules and regulations printed on the back.
- The GVAOA members will receive discounts on service and supplies, such as paint and fuel. The association hopes to extend these benefits to a wider range.

The GVAOA will meet April 5 at the YM-YWCA.

DISASTER AVERTED (DARN IT)

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Dock workers were hoping, but it didn't happen when a tank containing 5,000 gallons of 86-proof scotch fell on a pier when a boom broke.

Goodyear Polyglas Tires mean value. The very best in mileage, traction, safety and riding comfort.

Enthusiastic customers report their Polyglas tires lasting up to 45,000 miles. And they say that's twice as long as any tires they've had before.

That's what we mean by Goodyear value. The lasting value you get with Polyglas tires.

Goodyear value starts with the know-how and experience of the leader in the tire industry. Goodyear uses the best materials, and an exclusive method of bonding the tread to the fiberglass belt. Other manufacturers make polyester/fiberglass bias-belted tires. But only Goodyear makes the Polyglas tire.

Goodyear engineers ran Polyglas tires for 40 million test miles at our proving grounds, and have kept improving their long-wearing qualities. That's why we say Polyglas tires can deliver more mileage than other bias-belted tires.

Compare. Dollar for dollar, Goodyear Polyglas tires are your best buy. But beware of imitations that cannot duplicate the long mileage and lasting value you get with Polyglas tires.

Remember. If it doesn't say Goodyear, it can't be Polyglas.

CASH BAG WITH $1,215 DISAPPEARS

City police are investigating the disappearance of a cash bag with $1,215 from Zeller's store, 1610 Hillside, during a 12-hour period last Friday.

The bag disappeared, police said, sometime between 9:30 p.m. Friday and 9:10 Saturday. A police report said the bag contained between $800 and $1,000 cash and the rest of the money in cheques and account sales.

Each till in the store, police said, has a cash bag and the bags are checked off in a book when they arrive in the office to go to the safe.

All bags had been checked off last Friday although one was discovered missing the following day, police said.

Royal Roads To Receive New Colors

Ceremonial splendor will reach a peak Thursday, April 8, at Royal Roads Military College in a public ceremony which will see the college receive the Queen's new Canadian Color.

Commanded by Officer Cadet E. K. Beselt of Calgary, the cadet wing will form up on the parade square at 1:30 p.m. Shortly afterwards, wearing their colorful caps and gowns, the college faculty will make an academic procession from the castle to the parade square.

Lieutenant-Governor J. R. Nicholson, who will be the reviewing officer, is due to arrive at 2 p.m. and will be greeted by a 15-gun salute.

The ceremony itself will take the form of trooping the old Queen's Color and the College Color through the cadets' ranks, after which the old Color will be marched off.

DRUMHEAD SERVICE

The new Color will then be consecrated in a traditional drumhead service. At the slow pace, the Color escort, commanded by Officer Cadet K. R. Sorfleet of Winnipeg, will then be trooped past the reviewing officer.

On completion of this the cadets will fire a feu de joie.

Music will be provided by the Canadian armed forces' Naden band and the college's drum and bugle band.

The gun salutes will be fired by the 5th (British Columbia) Field Battery, Royal Regiment of Canadian Artillery.

Following the parade, tea will be served in the castle, on the patio and the lawn.

Spectators should be in their seats by 1:45 p.m.

Mobile Home Action 'Unfair'

A bill establishing a scale of municipal fees for mobile homes in trailer parks was given approval in principle in the legislature Monday after opposition MLAs complained the government is unfair to deny the homeowner grant to mobile home owners.

Members from both the New Democratic and Liberal parties said the bill is discriminatory in levying charges against such homeowners through the park owner while not making the grant available.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell opened debate on the bill by suggesting municipalities and regional districts could be doing a much better job of regulating mobile home parks.

"I can only describe some parks as a mess," he said, referring to "almost incredible crowding." He said there is a "pretty good case" for development of subdivisions in which mobile home owners could own their own lot.

CAPITAL SCENE

Got a Billboard to Build? 'Reserve'—Beat the Law

For the passing motorist, three more messages.

By DOUG MacRAE

Highway billboards are frowned upon, right?

So what's that extravaganza rearing it's multi-colored head on the Pat Bay Highway near Mount Newton Crossroad?

The sign is the result of an interesting conflict in provincial and federal law, which could result in billboards peppering B.C. highways in direct contradiction of the provincial Highways Act.

Provincial law makes it illegal to erect a billboard within 1,000 feet of the highway, unless it's on your own property, in an "unorganized" area — that is, anywhere outside incorporated municipalities.

In most cases, municipal governments have gone along with the intent of the province and have outlawed billboards within their boundaries. So B.C. roads are relatively sign-free, and the admirers of scenery like it that way.

UNDERWOOD
. . . "we don't object"

The hitch in the case of the Pat Bay sign is that it is on lang belonging to the East Saanich Indian Reserve.

●

The Supreme Court of Canada has ruled that although reserve Indians must comply with municipal and provincial law, the restriction doesn't extend to land use. Thus, if an Indian wants to lease his land to a sign company, and he gets the approval of the band council, the province finds itself with its hands tied.

The sign in question is a Roto-Vision billboard, erected by Neon-Seaboard to advertise Block Brothers Realty, The Empress and Undersea Gardens. It consists of vertical triangular pillars, which are automatically rotated at intervals to present three different messages to the motorist.

In return for permitting billboards on their property, road-side land owners can collect anywhere from $10 to $60 a month from the builder, depending on size, display and complexity.

"In this case there is a considerable sum involved," band manager Victor Underwood Jr. said Monday. "We don't object so long as the builder and the land-owner go through the proper channels.

"Our position is that the signs are on Indian land, so no one can do anything about it," Underwood said.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said today it is clear municipal statutes do not govern Indian land, and suggested the conflict was something the federal government would have to decide.

●

But in Ottawa, a spokesman for the department of Indian affairs and northern development said Minister Jean Chretien felt it was "strictly a matter for the Indians to decide."

A B.C. Highways department official noted that Indian land bordering highways has always been a sensitive area, one which the province is reluctant to get involved with.

He said the Indian affairs department had been approached on a number of cases and "their attitude has varied, with the money involved being a factor. There appears to be no fixed policy. It's 'yes' here and 'no' someplace else."

Island municipalities have largely gone along with the intent of the provincial ban, but there are scattered exceptions.

Roy Ward of Bayliss Signs Ltd. notes there are clusters of poorly maintained roadside signs up-Island in the Nanoose, Parksville and Qualicum areas.

"They're eyesores, but they are apparently ignored by the provincial government," Ward said. "They are erected by local sign-painters, and they're not maintained, so weeds grow and they're not painted. They're broken, half-blown down, to the point they may become hazardous.

●

"Reputable firms don't do this. We are bound (he included Neon-Seaboard) to abide by the requirements of the province, or we don't get any more permits."

Cam Massey of Neon-Seaboard said his firm had been "coerced" into putting up the sign, and said two others were planned on the opposite side of the highway facing the northbound traffic.

"If we hadn't done it someone else was going to," Massey said.

His firm had insisted on three things before building the sign: the advertisers had to be reputable, the sign had to be an expensive one and the message had to be tourist-oriented.

"We don't suggest for one minute that the circumstances are good here," he said. "We have no intention of circumventing the law. But we were placed in the position that if we didn't do it, someone else was going to.

"And we felt we could do the best job."

Marina Expansion Cleared By Esquimalt Zone Change

Marina improvements and dredging costing $600,000 are ready to go ahead today at West Bay, following creation of a new zoning category for the area by Esquimalt council Monday night.

Council approved the zoning changes after a public meeting at which no opposition was voiced. The new bylaws create an M-2 zone category designed to govern marina and waterfront development.

West Bay Marina immediately announced it will proceed with restaurant, lounge, berthing and other facilities to cost up to $500,000. Only department of transport approval is awaited by the owners to begin the initial stage of development, which includes dredging and increasing berth capacity to 400 vessels.

The dining and lounge facilities are designed to allow patrons to look over the boats and take in a panorama including the Legislative Buildings and the Empress. The dining room will seat 176.

FISHERMEN'S BASE

Owners Rod Wells and Les Howe also see the expanded marina becoming a home base for fishermen headed for Oak Bay, Pedder Bay and Brotchie Ledge.

The rezoned area included four acres of waterfront land, previously zoned industrial, running back to Head Street from Work Point to Paradise Street.

The city owns five rocky lots of the total 35 lots. In addition to West Bay Marina, the area also includes Nu-Marine Ways and Boat Works Ltd., owned by Frank Humphries. Under the new zoning, Humphries plans dredging and other improvements to his operation, which offers boat building and repair and diving instruction.

"My first targets are a major clean-up and dredging," Humphries said.

'EYE FOR BEAUTY'

Mayor Art Young said development will be governed by the municipality "with an eye to beauty." Long-range city plans also may include development of public parkland.

Among uses permitted under the new bylaws are restaurants, boat showrooms, a marine fueling station, a store to handle bait, tackle, food, chandlery and gifts, boat rental and charter services and offices.

Off-street parking will be required to accompany any development, and boat houses, metal plate work generating too much noise and public boat-launching ramps will be prohibited.

The aim is to encourage development of a complex similar in scope and appearance to the successful Oak Bay Marina.

Time Limit Set On Project Ideas

A decision on what recreation project will be built in the Cedar Hill area of Saanich and where it will be located will be made early in May, the chairman of the study committee said today.

Ald. Alan Newberry said the Cedar Hill recreation study committee set a deadline of April 30 at its meeting Monday night for accepting briefs or hearing in person from citizens or groups.

People who want to submit their views should contact the municipal clerk at Saanich municipal hall on Vernon Avenue.

The committee, comprised of aldermen and citizens, appears to have narrowed choice of projects to three and potential sites to four, said Newberry.

* * *

Projects leading are an ice skating surface, a swimming pool or a community centre-gymnasium complex. The ice surface doesn't mean an arena, said Newberry. The budget of $260,000 precludes that.

The four sites getting close consideration are the intersection of McKenzie and Blenkinsop, the now empty old Cedar Hill school, also known as the Braefoot annex, which is on Cedar Hill Crossroad near Cedar Hill Road, a site near Reynolds school and the south end of Cedar Hill Park, at Cedar Hill Road and Finlayson.

The committee held a public hearing on the project March 5.

$3.7 MILLION FOR SCHOOLS

Surplus capital and the cancellation of certain projects has provided the school board with an extra $3.79 million which will be used to develop school sites and generally refurbish Greater Victoria schools in 1972.

At a special meeting Monday trustees were told the school district has unexpended capital left over from referendum 10, amounting to $724,922. Funds not borrowed for school projects no longer considered necessary amounts to $2,087,992.

Trustees approved spending of the funds on 1972 priorities. The decision is subject to approval of Education Minister Donald Brothers.

The new priorities have a total value of $3.79 million, $1 million more than the surplus amount, and so a referendum would have to be held to carry the building program through.

Largest of the new projects is $1.7 million year-round high school in the Colquitz-Tillicum area.

Other projects are $260,000 in site development, buildings and equipment for Esquimalt Senior Secondary, $231,000 for Blanshard Elementary, $293,000 for Lansdowne Junior, $125,000 for Oak Bay Junior, $109,000 for Central Junior, $91,000 for Oak Bay Senior and $84,000 for S. J. Willis Junior.

Projects which have been axed by the board include four proposed elementary schools in the Hillside, Glendenning, Rogers Road and Ten-Mile Point vicinities.

Radiologists Honor St. Joseph's Man

The director of radiology at St. Joseph's Hospital, Dr. Frank Stuart, was named today a fellow of the American College of Radiology at the organization's 48th annual meeting in St. Louis, Mo.

Announcement of the honor says he is being recognized for "his outstanding work in medicine and for his contribution to radiology."

There are about 8,000 members in the college, a professional society of doctors who specialize in the use of x-rays and other radioactive substances for diagnosis and therapy.

60 Jobs In City For Students

Victoria city hall hopes to provide about 60 jobs for students this summer, charging the entire cost of about $150,000 to the federal government.

Under Ottawa's $57 million make-work project to curb student unemployment expected this year, city hall expects to create the jobs in parks and public works departments, council's B Committee was told today.

There will also be about 30 jobs for students under city hall's normal summer work program, city manager Bill Hooson said.

Officials estimated that at least 150 students will have already applied for work with the city.

In 1969 and 1970 there were 47 and 35 students employed by the city.

Some of the work involved will be clean-up, trimming and watering.

Haddock Leads Move For Design Control

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE

City hall moved today to ask the provincial government to give Victoria the power to control exterior design of buildings.

The measure passed through council's B Committee over objections by one alderman that a person should be able to build what he wants on his own property.

The action is sponsored by Mayor Courtney Haddock, who says he wants to prevent recurrences of buildings like the gas station on the north-east corner of Hillside and Douglas.

The committee passed a resolution that would ask for the special power from the province. The measure must first get past council.

The legislation would "prohibit the construction or alteration of buildings or structures without the approval of the exterior design" by a special board or committee set up by the city.

Ald. Harold Olafson, who voted against the measure, said that when persons buy property for the purpose of making money, "frankly, I think they should be entitled to build what they want."

He said he agreed that he doesn't like many designs, including the Hillside gas station, but "I doubt that we can sit in judgment."

Haddock and Ald. Hugh Ramsay voted for the measure.

Haddock said he thought some developers are actually "promoters" who come into town, erect a building, "sell it for a fast buck and then they're gone."

He added that "I don't think they get a feeling for the city."

The board or committee would likely be composed of architects and report to the advisory planning commission, Haddock said.

Inside Staff Accepts 15%

Inside employees of Victoria city hall voted Monday night to accept a two-year 15 per cent wage hike settlement brought down by a mediation officer last week.

Frank Preston, president of local 388 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, said today the membership voted "quite significantly in favor" of the settlement.

The contract, which involves about 180 employees in indoor jobs, also involves a reduction of the work week from 37½ to 35 hours.

City council accepted the settlement last week.

Gov't Action 'Despicable'

Victoria Ald. Harold Olafson blasted the provincial government today for the "despicable" way it is creating parking lots around the Legislative Buildings.

During a meeting of council's community planning committee of which Olafson is chairman, he said the city loses tax revenue when the government buys houses in the government precinct, demolishes them and paves them for parking.

When Mayor Courtney Haddock objected that the government has a "long-term plan" for the development of the precinct, Olafson replied:

"There's no long-range plan."

"It's a despicable way to treat the government precinct," he went on. "Right now they do just what they darn well please in our city."

When Haddock objected that a private citizen could do the same with a house, Olafson said:

"As an individual you can't do it — you are not above God."

Normally, he said, the off-street parking lots of the government kind need annual off-street parking permits.

Arthur Mayse . . .

ABOUT ONCE A MONTH and sometimes oftener, in comes a request that goes more or less like this:

"I want to write a novel. All my friends tell me I should because they find my letters so interesting. The problem is, I don't know how to get started."

You start a novel by thinking about what goes into it, and eventually by staring down at an empty expanse of paper. In this moment of truth, many a would-be writer learns that he really hasn't anything to say, after all.

The discovery can be a painful one. But better to make it early than later — and here we come to a problem much tougher and sneakier than getting started. This is how to keep going once the novel is launched.

I can only guess how many aborted novels begun in high hopes are gathering dust in this city. From distress calls received, I can assure you that there are plenty such, with more added to the number each year.

Everything goes fine for a while. Then, mysteriously, a blight sets in. Situations that seemed solid fall apart. Characters mush out, or wander aimlessly in search of motivation.

Writer struggles on determinedly until the truth about his predicament can no longer be avoided. What looked like a broad highway has turned itself into a dead-end road.

This has happened to me. It hurts, as any fractured hope or lost endeavor is bound to do. It can even throw the victim into such a state that he will never find the confidence to make the attempt again.

And that can be a pity. I've read more than one failed effort that might have gone the course and won a publisher's nod if the writer had taken the time and trouble to fix himself up with some insurance.

If you feel you have a book-length story in your system, and that you won't rest easy until you've had a go at it, here's the nearest approach to a recipe that I can come up with.

First, think about your story — the people in it, what they're going to do, and the troubles that will come between them and their journey's end. At this point, you might note that if they haven't got troubles, it's no story.

If you think to any purpose, you should presently find that you're taking a growing jumble of ideas to bed with you, also to meals and through the day's routine.

Don't talk about your story, no matter how tempted. If you do, the chances are that you will blow off in speech what should be reserved for paper.

But do make notes. Not ordinary notes — what you want is a well-plumped set of files to which you can turn later.

As soon as they're roughly shaped in your head, note the main happenings of your story down in considerable detail. Stick this treatment in an envelope: label it 'plot' if you like. As further plot notions occur, scribble them on anything handy — backs of envelopes, odd scraps of paper, insides of match folders if need be.

But get them down before you lose them, and put them in the envelope.

Give all your important story people the same treatment. Don't stint on them. Set down even such minutae as how they react to minor emergencies and what they like for breakfast, if by so doing you can come to know them better. File each of these character studies in a separate, named envelope, and add to the contents as more thoughts strike you.

Next, take out your story synopsis and break it into sections or chapters. Allot to these, in skeleton form, as much or as little of your plot as you feel it should contain. When you've done so, enlarge each section by feeding into it those supplementary notes I mentioned earlier, along with any bits of business that may present themselves.

What you have now achieved is a story outline, and a cast to go with it.

Finish off the spadework by taking a large sheet of brown wrapping paper and drawing a map of your fiction scene, in detail, and complete with main compass points. The map will keep you from muddling the geography of your story. It can also lend what your imagination cooked up a pleasant illusion of reality. This map can be an aid and a comfort as your story proceeds.

Finally, on a day when you feel that you can't hold off any longer, begin the actual writing of your book. Follow your section outlines, expanding them if you see fit, but not departing from them in any major particular. You do so at your peril.

They, and those character studies, are your lifelines. Because of them, you aren't in the position of the hasty starter who runs himself off a cliff and has nowhere to go but down.

When trouble strikes, they may make the difference between finishing what you started and dropping out of contention. That is how the recipe has twice worked for me.

The result may not be a good book. It may never find a publisher. But it will be an accomplished fact, and you at least will be proud of it!

Tough-Checking Bruins Push Cats Out on Limb

BILL WALKER

The weekend in review, and if there was any true sense of excitement to be generated from the final meetings of the National Hockey League season between Vancouver Canucks and California Golden Seals, it all went up in smoke Sunday. Rumors that the Canucks would chuck it, and go for bust, were ill-founded, and never more than a figment of the imagination. Because nobody could be as bad as the comic opera that has been a part of the NHL way of life in Oakland this season.

And so the Seals easily preserved their title as the worst team in all of hockey. It was no contest. And now the Montreal Canadiens can breathe easier. They can have Guy Lafleur, the talented rookie star, in the NHL draft. But that's old hat, and so is Sunday's score, an 11-5 victory for Vancouver.

But, remember the time, and it wasn't too long ago, either, when a 3-1 or a 4-2 score was considered the best to have in the office pool? Not any more, because never have so many goals been scored by so few hockey greats in the history of the league. Last year, for instance, everyone was calling for a saliva test for Detroit Red Wings when they got bombed by New York Rangers, 9-5, in that crucial league game that put New York in, and Montreal out, of the playoffs. How times change!

●

Meanwhile, and in all fairness, and to keep the record straight, it will be recalled that when Los Angeles Kings trained here last fall, manager-coach Larry Regan predicted (then denied) that if nothing else happened this hockey season, the Kings would finish higher than the Canucks (Regan having replaced Vancouver's Hal Laycoe as Kings' coach). But Regan did say it, and is almost right, too. For it seems unlikely that he'll be proven wrong in the final week. Which, says hockey historian Ernie Fedoruk, shouldn't displease the Canucks, because there is another junior hockey player they can get who may turn out to be every bit as good as Lafleur is supposed to be. The hot-shot is Marcel Dionne of St. Catherines Juniors. Remember that name, predicts Ernie.

Chilliwack Bruins meanwhile have made the B.C. junior hockey playoffs an embarrassing situation for the Victoria Cougars. It was a desperate city club that went to Chilliwack last night.

But that was nothing compared to the position in which they find themselves tonight. Somehow, there are indications that the Bruins aren't running scared of the team they lost to 12 times during the regular season. It is even suggested that the shoe may be on he other foot.

There is a well-founded suspicion that the Cougars took the Bruins too lightly. But the real fact of the matter is that the Cougars haven't been playing that well, either. And the fact that the Cougars can't qualify for post-season play in the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association way of things, may have taken some of the edge off the immediate business at hand — winning the league championship. Certainly it is no time to be casual, having come so far, and it is to be hoped that the Cougars can regain their momentum. Because, actually, until now, there has been no real cause for complaint about their performance; and the odds are that they will soon kick this one bad habit — losing to a team they should handle easily.

In the parade of golfing greats who appear weekly on the TV screen, there often lurks in the heart of the viewer the evil thought concerning the leader: "Hey, maybe he'll blow it." There must have been such a case for the perverted fan on Sunday as South Africa's Gary Player, who had come with a rush, and a flock of birdies, to take a four-stroke lead with two holes to play, suddenly turned out to be Mr. Average, the weekend golfer. He hit a drive so far off line on the 17th that the TV cameras couldn't find it, or Player, either. The fact that later he put a blind approach shot near the flag doesn't alter the circumstance that, for a brief moment, every duffer had a new hero. A new fame for Player had almost come about because tournament pros just don't do those things, or get into trouble again on the next hole, as Player was to do on the 18th. He had created his own scene, and every middle-class hacker secretly revelled in it. However, Player endured to win the National Airlines tournament, and now with two straight tour victories must qualify as a leading contender for the Masters. He isn't likely to get bogies, back-to-back, again.

And by golly, it's finally happened. The Times Cup, which has been up for grabs in the Victoria Rugby Union since 1932, has finally been won by a team that at least has some Times employees on it! Saanich Velox Saturday won the trophy for the second straight season and with it the second-divisiin rugby championship. Included on the team roster are staffers Steve Hume, prop; Brian Butters, fly-half; Mark Hume, inside centre; John Neal, wing, and Bob Mitchell, second-row forward. They have performed their tasks well, and hopefully will be given the time off to contest the B.C. championship.

PS: Two other members of Velox are ex-Times people. Candide Temple is the secretary and Jim Hume, president.

Cougars Out of Playoffs Unless They Win Tonight

Hard-checking Chilliwack Bruins went hunting with a little more firepower Monday night and "treed" Victoria Cougars with a 4-1 victory before 1,709 fans at Chilliwack Coliseum.

Victory gave Bruins a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven B.C. Junior Hockey League Coastal Division semi-final and left the Cats teetering precariously out on a limb for the fifth game tonight at 8 p.m. in Victoria's Memorial Arena.

Chilliwack, which finished more than 50 points behind Victoria in regular-season play, has dominated the series thus far with some close checking, but utilized some fine power-play opportunities to outshoot the Cougars 39-32 on Monday.

Bruins scored twice with a man advantage and salted away the victory in the final period by cashing in on a two-man advantage. It was the third straight win for Bruins since losing the opener 6-4 in Victoria.

BRUINS START FAST

Bruins grabbed a 2-0 lead in the first eight minutes as defenceman Denis Anderson and Mike Randolf each notched their third goals of the series on oddman chances.

Larry Davis then scored his first unassisted goal for Bruins after stealing the puck, circling the net and beating goalie Darryl Fedorak from a narrow angle.

Cougars couldn't find the range on Bruin goalie Lee Holum, who shut them out 5-0 at Chilliwack Friday, until Greg Robinson was allowed time enough to cut the margin to two goals at 1:48 of the third period.

SPECTACULAR SAVES

Holum, however, was kept a little busier than on his shutout night and was forced to make some spectacular saves on Chris Riddell, Rob Little, Gerry Bonk and Tom Keep to stymie the Cats.

The embarrased Cougars saw their chances vanish when Bob Mayer received a minor and misconduct (for slapping his stick on the ice) to join Keep, who was assessed a minor, in the penalty box.

Chilliwack came up with a clean three-man break after a Cougar pass-out deflected in the Bruin zone and Davis trickled the puck past Fedorak for his fifth goal of the series.

METZLER SUSPENDED

Bruin-coach Orv Litchfield, although aware that a victory tonight would bring Chilliwack into the Coastal Division final, isn't counting out the possibility of a Cougar comeback.

One reason for this bit of pessimism might be the fact that he was forced to suspend Rick Metzler, who came back from an injury to star on a line with Randolph and Anderson, for insubordination.

Cougars, on the other hand, came up with one of their best games of the series and showed greater hustle and checking. Ron Poole, Jim Wilkinson and Wayne Hendry (all called up from the B.C. junior "B" champion Victoria Cubs) capably filled the positions of Lon Miles, Scott Munro and injured Pat Askew.

ROYALS CLIP CENTS

Other worthy efforts for Cats came from Robinson and captain Bond, who needed pain-killing shots for his back injury.

In the only other playoff game Monday, New Westminster Royals defeated Vancouver Centennials 6-4 in an overtime battle after the teams were deadlocked 4-4 at the end of regulation time.

John McCracken's second goal of the night, at 3:35 of overtime, proved to be the winner. Jim Dalzell added an insurance tally at 8:54 of the 10-minute extra session.

The victory narrows Centennials' lead in the other best-of-seven Coastal Division semi, 3-2.

Bucks Boost Playoff Lead Over 'Frisco

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The explosive Milwaukee Bucks used a third-period offensive spurt to claim a 104-90 victory over San Francisco Warriors Monday night in a National Basketball Association playoff game.

The victory gives the Bucks a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven Western Conference semi-final.

Down by 52-51 midway in the third quarter, the Bucks ripped off a 21-7 surge that sent Milwaukee into a 72-60 lead going into the final period.

FLOYD FLOPS OUT OF BOUNDS

Former world heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson flops atop Roger Russell as two boxers tumble through ropes in third round of their scheduled 10-round bout Monday night in Philadelphia. Patterson was also on top at finish, winning by technical knockout in ninth round after battering Philadelphia foe with barrage of punches. It was 49th career victory and 38th knockout for 36-year-old champion, who says he wants match with current champion Joe Frazier.

Vikings Keep UCLA Winless

University of California at Los Angeles Bruins seemed to hit the skids after crossing the Canadian border on a short rugby tour of British Columbia.

University of Victoria Vikings handed UCLA its third consecutive loss in the final match of the tour with a 6-0 decision Monday at Macdonald Park.

UCLA was the proud possessor of a 23-1 win-loss record prior to entering the province.

Last Thursday, UBC Thunderbirds defeated the Americans 17-10 to win the World Cup, competed for annually between the two universities, for the first time in 10 years. On Saturday, a representative Vancouver XV downed UCLA, 11-9.

FORWARDS SHINE

Viking forwards had undisputed control in the scrums and loose rucks as UCLA players seemed shaken by the soggy field conditions and slippery ball. In addition, UCLA had a near-monopoly on penalties — receiving a total of 20 out of 23 calls — mostly for forward infringements.

The match was transferred to Macdonald after Centennial Stadium was ruled unfit for use but the selected field quickly became a mudbath.

Vikings, champions of the Pacific Northwest Intercollegiate Rugby Conference, fared well under the muddy conditions despite the absence of hooker Derek Reimer, who was out with the measles.

Left-winger Reg Hoole opened scoring in the first half with a try and Frank Carson fell on the ball for another try in the second half after Viking forwards had pushed their opposing eight back over its own line.

Other outstanding performances for Uvic were recorded by Ken Wilke, Dave Slater and Jim Wenman.

Day for Gordie Howe Proclaimed by Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Mayor William Dennison has made it official—Wednesday will be Gordie Howe Day here in honor of the National Hockey League veteran who celebrates his 43rd birthday that day.

The mayor issued an official proclamation noting that Howe is in his 25th NHL season with Detroit Red Wings. It said:

"In these days of shifting loyalties and shallow beliefs, Gordie Howe stands out as a man who has remained loyal to his profession; although he plays for an American club, he has remained a Canadian. He is truly a man that the young people of today should aspire to emulate.

"I am pleased therefore, on behalf of the Corporation of the City of Toronto to proclaim Wednesday, March 31, 1971, as Gordie Howe Day, and to join the citizens of Toronto in honoring a truly fine Canadian."

Before the NHL game that night at Maple Leaf Gardens, Leaf captain Dave Keon will make another presentation of an engraved silver tray which cites Howe's "devotion, unselfish loyalty and contribution to the growth of hockey in the United States and Canada."

Rangers Pin Cup Hopes On Workout-a-Day Diet

NEW YORK (AP) — Vic Hadfield, who hasn't had a day off for the last two weeks and doesn't expect to have one for the next month, figures the steady diet of ice he and the other New York Rangers have been digesting will pay off for them when the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup playoffs begin next week.

The Rangers will be facing Toronto Maple Leafs and Boston Bruins will play Montreal Canadiens in East Division first-round matchups. In the West, Chicago Black Hawks, St. Louis Blues, Minnesota North Stars and Philadelphia Flyers will clash in the opening cup round with final matchups not yet determined.

This will mark the fifth straight playoff appearance for the Rangers—the only team in the NHL with that successful a streak. And Hadfield thinks the club will be stronger than ever before when the playoffs start. What's more, he believes the record-shattering Bruins won't be at their best for their series against Montreal.

OPTIONAL PRACTICES

"I think the Canadiens will beat Boston," he said Monday.

Hadfield's reasoning is that the Bruins have not prepared themselves properly for the playoffs.

"One Boston player told me they've been holding optional practices for the last few weeks," said Hadfield. "I don't think you can get ready for the playoffs that way."

ATTACK WON CROWN

The Bruins powered their way to the East Division crown with an awesome attack that has produced four players with more than 100 scoring points headed by Phil Esposito, whose 69 goals are 11 more than the former single season record.

Once they nailed down the division crown, though, they started resting superstar defenceman Bobby Orr for long stretches and have lost four straight games after dropping just 10 all season before that. Orr will return to full-time duty Wednesday night.

MAY BE MISTAKE

"I think they've made a mistake," said Hadfield. "You can't turn it on and off like that," he said, snapping his fingers.

The Rangers, on the other hand, have had either a game or a workout every day for the last two weeks and that's a schedule Emile Francis, coach and general manager, plans to continue even after the playoffs start.

Injuries are the one thing that worries Francis now.

If a workout a day keeps the doctor away, then the Rangers will be happy as well as healthy.

Clippers Rally To Take Crown

Nanaimo Clippers, representing Vancouver Island, sailed through a three-day, round-robin tournament in undefeated style to capture the B.C. bantam hockey crown at Pearkes Arena.

Clippers scored four goals in the third period to edge North Kamloops 5-4 Monday in their final encounter of the six-team playoff to finish with four wins and a tie.

Don Stubbs scored the winning goal with 15 seconds remaining and therefore avoided a playoff with Prince George, who finished with four wins and a loss.

North Kamloops held a 4-1 edge after the first two periods on goals by Bryan James, Greg Duncan, Frank Ramunna and Randy Takenaka. Wade Smith scored Nanaimo's first goal while Howard Beamish, Clint Eccles and Gordie Dumond set the stage for Stubbs in the tird period.

In other games Monday, Prince George downed Cranbrook 4-0 and North Kamloops 5-1, Vancouver North Shore topped Trail 7-4 and Cranbook nipped Trail, 7-6.

Bucks Reach Playoff Final

Ingraham Buckaroos blasted five goals in the third period Monday night to snap a 2-2 deadlock and down Victoria Automatic Transmission 7-2 in the deciding game of the best-of-three Stuffy McGinnis Hockey League semi-final playoff at Memorial Arena.

Tom Allen led Bucks with three goals and Ken Waet added two while singles were chipped in by Greg Otway and Dale Barber.

Sam Desimonie, Barry Goddard and Joe Miller replied for VATs.

Bucks now advance to face league-champion Empress Paint in a best-of-five final, beginning next Monday.

Cup Contest Postponed

Cosmopolitan Royals and University of Victoria Vikings will have to wait a little longer than expected for their clash in a Jackson Cup semi-final soccer match.

The match had been scheduled for Wednesday night at Royal Athletic Park but had to be postponed until Saturday because of poor field conditions.

New time and place for the match is 2 p.m. at Heywood Avenue Park.

Royal Athletic Park was "chewed up" during the Pacific Cost Soccer League game between Victoria United and UBC Thunderbirds last Saturday.

Canada Drops Plan

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — Canada today bowed to the International Ice Hockey Federation and dropped the idea of an open exhibition tournament in which Canada would be allowed to use professional hockey players.

But at the same time both IIHF president John F. (Bunny) Ahearne and Earl Dawson, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Assocation, held out hopes for exhibition games against Russia, Czechoslovakia and Sweden with a mixed amateur-pro Canadian team.

"We have not resolved the Canadian question but I see a faint ray of hope," Ahearne said.

Dawson said he was seeing "other possibilities" to get Canada back into world hockey.

FORMER CATCHER AUCTIONS PROPERTY

Owen Faces Lawsuits

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) —Sheriff Mickey Owens has auctioned off some of his personal property to help pay expenses of defending himself against lawsuits for more than $15 million.

Owen, a former major league baseball catcher, is among defendants in three federal court cases filed by prisoners who alleged they were mistreated while in his custody.

Such items as Owen's personal handgun, two bird dogs, a pickup truck, an assortment of pistols, rifles and shotguns, and a gun cabinet were sold.

Owen estimated the sale netted between $3,000 and $4,000.

Sheriff's deputies bought the handgun for $360 and said they would return it to Owen.

Owen, who blames organized crime for the lawsuits, says he has been offered free legal counsel, but he won't take it.

"Many people have told me not to be so independent and let them help me," the sheriff said. "But it's a matter of principle with me. I don't put myself in the same category as criminals who go to the judge and scream for free legal help."

Owen, 54, is in his second four-year term as sheriff.

He played 13 seasons with St. Louis Cardinals, Brooklyn Dodgers, Chicago Cubs and Boston Red Sox.

NETWORKS ANNOUNCE PLAYOFF PLANS

Cup Action Tops Oscar

Oscar is going to be upstaged by the Stanley Cup in Canada. That was demonstrated Monday when initial announcements of plans for television coverage of National Hockey League playoffs for the Stanley Cup were announced by the CBC and CBS networks.

Only two games are definite — Montreal at Boston at 5 p.m. Wednesday, April 7, and Toronto at New York at 4:30 p.m. Thursday, April 8, both on Channels 2 and 6 in this area.

The CBC also says it expects to show a game at 5 p.m. Saturday, April 10, with teams not known. But past experience has been Saturday evening games are dropped in the playoffs and Sunday morning games are held instead, to get on U.S. television.

CBS says it will show a game at 10 a.m. Sunday, April 11 (Channels 7 and 12) although the teams have not been named.

Probable games are New York at Toronto at 5 p.m. Sunday, April 11; Montreal at Boston at 5 p.m. Tuesday, April 13, and New York at Toronto at 5 p.m. Thursday, April 15, all on CBC and Channels 2 and 6.

The April 15 game is where Oscar comes in. The CBC says it will run the New York-Toronto game to its conclusion and join the annual Hollywood Oscars show, set for that night, when the game is over. If it's overtime and a long one, Oscar may not make it at all.

SOVIETS ALMOST CERTAIN . . . . . OF NINTH WORLD TITLE

It's Dull Without Canada

GENEVA (AP) — Boris Majorov, captain of five Soviet Union world championship teams, wants Canada back in the world hockey tournament.

"For goodness sake let's get the Canadians back in the championship," he said today. "This is dull. Very dull."

Majorov, skipper of the Soviet team in the Innsbruck Olympics in 1964, said:

"Without Canada I don't enjoy the championships. This one is a dull one though, of course, I like to see the Soviet Union well ahead and almost certain winners for the ninth time.

"But I'm all in favor of Canada getting back into world and Olympic hockey on their own terms.

"I just say: 'Let them play.' " Majorov is here as an observer.

The Canadians dropped out of world competition after demanding that it be allowed to play its best pros in matches against the Russians, Czechs, Swedes and others in Europe.

Talks now are going on here to try to get the Canadians back into the fold.

The Russians appear almost certain to take their ninth straight world title. They lead with 13 points from seven matches with Czechoslovakia and Sweden tied with nine points. Finland has seven points. The United States and West Germany each have two points.

The Soviet team continued its unbeaten string in this year's tournament by thumping Finland 10-1 Monday. The the only other game, Czechoslovakia defeated Sweden 3-1 to move into a tie with the Swedes for second place. However, the Czechs lead Sweden in the goals-average category.

In games today, Czechoslovakia meets West Germany and the Soviets play the United States.

Majorov was the player who scored the vital goal against the Canadians in Vienna in 1967.

"Even that year, when we won, I thought the Canadians were the best team."

The former Soviet captain also had views on today's Soviet-U.S. game.

"No doubt Russia will win. The only question is by what score. How high is it going to be.

"But I have a high regard for several of the American players they play with lots of enthusiasm. But they don't seem to play concerted hockey. They don't seem to get together reasonable moves."

VICTORIA HIGH BOYS TOP VOLLEYBALL MEET

Victoria captured the Lower Vancouver Island high school boys' volleyball championship Monday after compiling a 6-0 win-loss record in the tournament at Oak Bay High School.

Victoria scored wins over Belmont (15-4), Mount Douglas (15-6), Claremont (15-6), Esquimalt (15-8), Oak Bay (15-3) and Mount View (15-4) en route to the title.

Belmont finished second with a 4-2 record and Claremont won a playoff for third place after finishing in a three-way tie with Mount Douglas and Oak Bay. All finished with 3-3 records but Claremont downed Oak Bay 17-15 and Mount Douglas 15-10 to take third place.

Top three teams advance to the Island championships Saturday at Campbell River.

Mount Douglas finished fourth, Oak Bay fifth, Esquimalt sixth and Mount View seventh in the lower Island battle.

Bob Munn, Kenson Quon and Oreste Fannuchi represented Victoria on the all-star team along with Jim Robinson of Oak Bay, Tim Lott of Claremont and Tim Weckend of Belmont. Gavin Proudfoot of Belmont received honorable mention.

TEE TOPICS

Supporters of the decision to move the Times Island Open back into the spring season may have been the only ones to smile during Sunday's wild, wild weather.

The wind and rain forced postponement of the second round of the zone one intermediate championship at Glen Meadows. The district committee heads will get together tonight to determine the final result, but one might suppose it will be wrapped up at some future Saturday.

The Island Open comes into prominence April 18 with the qualifying round at Victoria Golf Club.

Until last year, the Island Open has always been the first event on the district committee's fixture list, usually starting the last Sunday in March. And Sunday, if you'll look at the calendar, might have been the day.

The smiles suggest the district committee was wise in setting the qualifying round back into April.

Preliminary preparation for the Island Open will include the filling of the entry form. That can begin tomorrow, when the official entry will be published in the Times.

Ron Howard Jr. managed a superb one-under-par 69 at Uplands Saturday to take a four-stroke lead in the intermediate event, but the poor unfortunates of the day proved to be Cedar Hill's Brian Gandy and Jim McMurran of Colwood.

McMurran turned in a score of 74, which included a two-stroke penalty for playing Gandy's ball. The Cedar Hill player carded 77, including a penalty for playing McMurran's ball.

Unfortunately, the players neglected to replay the shots from the original positions. Both were disqualified.

Herb Foster, a past president of the Manitoba Golf Association, rode into town on the winds from Winnipeg and with a plan to promote a "Police and Pal" tournament in Victoria.

Now secretary-manager of the Manitoba body, Foster owns the copyright on the name and hopes to spread his enthusiasm across Canada.

His plan is not intended to produce good golfers. It is meant, in the main, to bring youth into closer, personal contact with law enforcement officers.

Victoria's tournament is still in the planning stage. Foster came looking for a sponsor and support. He'll worry about the course, date and format later.

SHORT CHIPS: Doug Silverberg, a veteran of Alberta's Willingdon Cup teams, is limbering up on city courses and spending some time visiting brother Dick, the Glen Meadows' resident professional . . . Another out-of-town golfer, Owen Ellis of Courtenay, enjoyed his game at Oak Bay . . . His highlight was a hole-in-one on the 166-yard, par-three 13th . . . Russ Johnson, Al Hardy and Frank Freeland finished 1-2-3 when a group of Victoria-area golfers toured Hawaii . . . Charlie Nelson and Nita Moody won the Carlow Trophy, a mixed greensome competition for Gorge Vale members . . . At Oak Bay, captain Doug Munro's team defeated president Gord Verley's side 41-28 in the annual matchup.

There's a great revival of interest in the Centennial Foursomes tournament, coming up at Colwood this Sunday . . . A total of 62 pairings have entered, with Colwood still to submit its entry list . . . It's almost certain the entry total will top the record 75 established the first year the competition was held . . . Bruce Smith and Roy Gunter-Smith scored a net 68 to win the R. F. Williams greensome event at Uplands . . . Keith Burrell and Larry Mais, whose 73 was the best gross of the day, finished a half-stroke off the pace . . . Dennis Pearce, 75-16—59, led the qualifying field in Cedar Hill's handicap championship . . . Dave Thera and Cliff Clark finished two strokes behind while Ray Saxon won low-gross honors with a 71.

Calgary Juniors Take Four of Five Crowns

MONTREAL (CP) — Calgarians captured four of the five titles decided in the finals of the Canadian junior badminton championships Monday night.

Defending champion Doug McGillivray of Calgary, beat Mike Epstein of Vancouver, 15-0, 15-9, to claim the championship of the men's singles division.

Another Calgarian registered a second-straight championship in the women's singles. Susan Cutmore downed Lorraine Thorne, also of Calgary, 11-7, 11-3, to win the title.

Miss Cutmore teamed up with her singles opponent in the finals of the women's doubles and the two girls swept by Maureen Thorne and Barbara Alexander, both from Calgary, by 15-2 and 15-9 scores.

In the mixed doubles championship, MacGillivray and Lorraine Thorne combined to defeat Epstein and Kathy Henry of Vancouver, 15-5, 15-2. Epstein combined with fellow Vancouverite Rex Moore to defeat Pat Daly of Toronto and Ross Durdan of Niagara Falls, Ont., 15-11 and 15-6, in the men's doubles championship.

Miss Cutmore, Miss Alexander, the Thorne sisters and McGillivray are all members of Calgary's Glencoe Badminton Club.

HOWELLS OUSTED

Dave Howells was the only entrant from Victoria to reach the quarter-final rounds in tournament play. Howells was eliminated in the men's singles quarter-finals when he dropped a 15-9, 15-8 decision to Bill Marriott of Calgary.

Competition started today in the Canadian closed badminton championships with all the junior champions and many of the other junior contestants, including Howells, listed among the entrants.

Swanson Rink Club Winner

A Dockyard League rink skipped by Jim Swanson defeated Jim Chalmers' HMCS MacKenzie foursome 8-3 to capture the 10th anniversary club curling championship to Esquimalt's Sports Centre.

Sixteen club champions started in the two-day, sudden-death bonspiel.

Swanson's rink included Donna Swanson, Grant Fenwick and Nancy McLeod. Chalmers was backed by Dave Purse, Wil Wilmot and Len Roy.

Top Honors Split In Hoop Jamboree

Saanichton, Brentwood and Cordova Bay teams each won two of six finals as play was completed Saturday at Mount Newton Junior Secondary School in the annual jamboree of the Peninsula Basketball Association.

Sandra Polson of Cordova Bay and Mike Stubbs of Brentwood were voted winners of sportsmanship awards in the two-day event, while Karen Michell and Richard Michell were leaders in free-throw competitions.

Results of finals:

GIRLS' FINALS

Vancouver College Wins Midget Title

CUMBERLAND — Vancouver College caputured the British Columbia midget boys' basketball championship Sunday with a 30-15 romp over St. Anthony's College of West Vancouver in the final game of a two-day, double-loss elimination tournament.

Victoria Boys' Club, the Island champion, was eliminated in a big upset Sunday morning. Duncan, invited to the tournament after the Northern B.C. zone failed to send an entry, edged the Victorians, 23-20.

Duncan was later beaten 26-14 by St. Anthony's and nipped 29-28 by Pentiction Pogos. Boys' Club suffered an earlier loss to champion Vancouver College, 32-29.

Doug Callbeck of Victoria was named to the first all-star team along with Brian Dick and Carson Tipper of Vancouver College as well as Dave Negrin and Jim Patterson of St. Anthony's.

Doug Price represented Duncan on the second all-star squad which also contained Larry O'Brien and Joe Rogers of Vancouver College, Brad Morrissey of ePnticton and Alan Brune of St. Anthony's.

Dick was named the tourney's most-valuable player.

Sleek, Powerful Cars Substituted for Female

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Men infatuated with sleek powerful automobiles are substituting the machine for the female as a sex object, an intellectual historian contends.

Dr. Goerge Basalla, of the University of Delaware, said Monday western men, particularly Americans, have "a highly emotional and erotic relationship with the machine ... with the car, the locomotive and the computer the most endeared."

In a lecture and slide show at Carnegie Mellon University entitled "The Machine as a Sexual Object," Basalla presented manifestations of his theory in advertising, the arts and everyday life.

Basalla noted most machines in our culture are referred to in the feminine gender, with the car frequently called by endearments.

Basalla quoted a poem by E. E. Cummings, entitled "Ixi" which describes the sensuous attachment of a man for his car in love-making imagery. He also referred to Eugene O'Neill's play "Dynmamo," about a young man, sexually fascinated by an electric dynamo, who dies as he clutches the machine in an erotic embrace.

He showed an advertisement for mufflers — a tall scantily clad blonde girl entwining her body about a gold-plated muffler. "Hot for Action" was the caption atop the advertisement.

Terms such as "Hot Rod," and the "Bosoms of the Bumper" on Cadillacs in the late 50s and early 60s have "obvious sexual connotations," Basalla said.

"Seen in this light, 'Body by Fisher' takes on a new meaning," he said.

The ritual of washing and waxing the car is typical of western society's attitudes toward machines, he claimed. The male "strips toward the west" and then "caresses his mechanical mistress with balms and oils."

But the computer may usurp the car's role, Basalla concluded. "Sociologist Henry Berger is predicting computers will soon be providing mass tender, loving care," he said.

Gunmen Kill Air Marshal

BEIRUT, Lebanon (Reuter) — Air Marshal Hardan Takriti, dismissed as vice-president of Iraq in October, was assassinated in Kuwait today, Arab diplomatic sources said.

The sources said three gunmen opened fire as Takriti entered the government hospital in Kuwait accompanied by the Iraqi ambassador.

Takriti, 45, fell mortally wounded but the ambassador, Midhat Ibrahim Juma, was unhurt. The gunmen escaped.

Takriti, who went into exile in Algeria after being stripped of office in October, had been staying in Kuwait as guest of the ambassador.

VATICAN — Pope Paul has accepted the resignation of Cardinal James C. McGuigan as Archbishop of Toronto. McGuigan, 76, had repeatedly asked to be relieved of his post for reasons of health and age. McGuigan was automatically succeeded by his coadjutor, Archbishop Philip F. Pocock. McGuigan has held the Toronto post for 37 years after serving in 1930-34 as Archbishop of Regina.

CALGARY — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau will visit the Calgary Stampede and act as parade grand marshall July 12, the Stampede board announced today.

HALIFAX — Unless steps are taken to preserve Canada, "it will disappear and become part of the United States," publisher Mel Hurtig of Edmonton, a founding member of the Committee for an Independent Canada, said here Monday. Hurtig said that unless politicans are prepared to take important measures, Canada will not survive a second century. He is on a coast-to-coast speaking tour to promote support for the committee.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. — Former West Virginia Gov. W. W. "Wally" Barron was sent to prison for 25 years. Barron pleaded guilty, to U.S. District Court Judge John A. Field Jr., to paying a $25,000 bribe to a jury foreman in his 1968 federal court trial. The jury acquitted Barron of charges he sought kickbacks during his 1961-65 state administration.

VANCOUVER — Rene Levesque said Monday he is "damned confident" his Parti Quebecois will win the next provincial election in Quebec. Levesque said the party "could have been flattened" by last fall's kidnapping crisis, but separatist support now is growing stronger and other provincial parties are losing ground steadily.

WARWICK, England — Christine Brown became curious about her fiance's arms — he kept them covered and even on their wedding night put bandages on them, explaining he had cut himself. But the bride soon discovered the truth. The bandages covered tatoos which said: "True love to my dear wife Pam" and "My darling Pam". In court Ralph Smith, 34, admitted he bigamously married Miss Brown last June. He had been married for 15 years and had four children. He was fined 25 pounds, $60.

Police Band to Welcome Queen

The Victoria city police youth band has been chosen to play for the official welcome of Queen Elizabeth to the city at 7 p.m. May 3 in Centennial Square.

Members of youth groups will line the perimeter of the square and representatives of such groups as the Royal Canadian Legion and the IODE will also take part in the 10-minute ceremony.

The mayors of the Greater Victoria area will be introduced to the Queen, Prince Philip and Princess Anne with Mayor Courtney Haddock giving the official welcome.

The ceremoney will also include gifts for the royal visitors, signing of the city book, presentation of bouquets and a walk through the crowd.

The 45-strong band, led by John Baker, will perform for 30 minutes before the ceremony and then play O Canada as the royal party arrives. When the party leaves the band will strike up God Save the Queen.

Tremors Hit City

VALPARAISO, Chile (Reuter) — Four earth tremors rocked this port city Monday, where six years ago an earthquake killed more than 400 people. No one was killed in Monday's tremors, but thousands stayed out in the streets until they were sure the shocks had ended.

HOME GARDEN

SEEDS FROM EXOTIC PLACES

By HILDA BEASTALL

As people travel to places distant from their homes, inevitably they bring back seeds and plants from other climates. This has always been the way of man and is the reason we have exotics growing in our gardens today. If you are likely to be visiting another country and suddenly find yourself interested in bringing home seeds of something you see, do be sure you find out the name of the plant.

Hilda

Try for a botanical name if you can, because with it you can easily trace the plant and its culture when you come home. If you must settle for a local name, add to your notes a rough description — whether a tree, shrub, or soft - stemmed plant (herbaceous), and something too about flowers and seedpods.

SKETCH PLANT

Even if you are a non-artist like myself, make an effort to sketch some special feature of the plant which caught your attention.

It may be the overall outline of the tree, the peculiar leaf shape, or something unique about the arrangement of twigs on the stems. Whatever it is, try to capture it on paper.

Not only will this help in identifying the plant in which you have become interested, but the sketch will hold your interest while you grow the seed. You will have some idea of what to look for and expect from your tiny seedling.

And who knows but you may develop another hobby.

Botanic gardens and arboreta can be found, either well established or recently started, in all major areas of plant growth, featuring either jungle or desert, forest or sea coast native plants according to the location. Local people will always identify plants for you.

Seeds brought here from tropical or semi-tropical climates are not likely to produce plants to grow outdoors, yet you may obtain something of great personal pleasure for indoor decoration.

Former gardeners now living in apartments are most surely collectors of seeds on their travels and they find a new hobby in growing difficult things indoors.

CLIMBING PLANTS

Climbing plants are abundant in tropical countries. They climb and flower profusely because of heat, moisture and deep forest soils which are their home. In a flowerpot, with weak northern light in winter and cedar sunny, dry summers, we cannot expect similar results.

If you get seeds of these, they will likely make manageable vines if trained to miniature trellises erected firmly in large pots.

Whatever you bring home, limit your ambitions to seeds; plants or cuttings of plants are not admittable to Canada without inspection and, in most instances, a permit.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

During a recent tournament, two bridge players were arguing about the bidding of a hand they had just played. One said to the other:

"Your bid was an impossible one. There's no good bridge player in the world who would have made your bid."

"You're wrong," replied the other. "At least one good bridge player would have made the bid — me."

"I still insist," caustically answered the first brige player, "no good bridge player would have made your bid."

This is the deal that provoked the controversy. Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Six of ♣.

West's opening club lead was captured by East's king, after which the jack of clubs was returned, West overtaking with the queen. Before declarer had ever won a trick, he had lost the first five tricks.

Had the final contract been four hearts, North-South's only losers would have been two club tricks. Actually, 12 tricks would probably have been made, since East's normal opening lead would have been the spade jack. North would, in time, have then been able to discard one of his losing clubs on dummy's fourth diamond.

North's criticism of South's bid was, of course, with reference to South's jump to two notrump. North emphasized — quite vehemently — that when one jumps to two notrump, he is supposed to have protection in each of the unbid suits. And, pragmatically speaking, he did not hesitate to point out that at least 11 tricks would have been made at a heart contract.

South, in rebuttal, answered that he had passed originally on a hand that contained 12 gilt-edged points; and that his jump to two notrump was intended to tell North that South had almost an opening bid. Also, South added, if he had bid two diamonds over one heart, North had the perfect right (in theory) to pass, since South had passed originally. And South didn't want to risk that possibility.

Both North and South had merit in their respective contentions. But North would have won his case in a court of law, for when one jumps to two notrump over partner's one of a suit opening bid, he states that he has protection in each of the unbid suits. And South just didn't have it.

You must try this, it's so easy.

Each distinct letter stands for a particular but different digit. Start by noting what digit the letter P must represent. What does the layout tell you about E? Then take T and E. What does it all add up to?

DOG-GONE IT 600 OF THEM

DETROIT (UPI) — What's good for the tax collector is good for the dog catcher in suburban Oak Park.

City officials found only 1,700 dogs were licensed in the city this year, compared with 2,856 in 1970. They plan to use a computer to check this year's registered dog owners against last years.

Then if police can find the owners of non-licensed dogs, the city will collect the $3.50 fee plus a $3 fine.

EMPLOYEE HAS NO BEEF

ROTHERHAM, England (UPI) — For his loyalty for 40 years' service, Horace Clarke's boss has decided to turn his business over to him.

"I wanted to show my appreciation," said Eric Purshouse, 69, in giving Clarke, 57, title to the butcher shop he started at age 17.

Trustees Work Out Health Plan

Greater Victoria school board is taking steps to guarantee health services to schools by means of a contract with the Metropolitan Board of Health.

At a special meeting Monday school trustees approved a proposal to send a list of needed staff and estimated costs to the health board. The health board will be asked to state which services it would be able to provide, and at what cost.

The list of staff includes two full-time doctors, 15 full-time nurses, one nursing supervisor, two psychologists, one psychiatrist, three special counsellors, two psychometrists, two speech therapists, five clerks, a part-time audiologist, as well as part-time services of the medical health officer and a health inspector for an estimated cost of $370-000.

ESTIMATES

The school board submission also includes estimates of funds from various sources which could be claimed for school health costs. The total comes to $354,757.

School officials have felt for several years health services provided by the MBH have not justified the amount of money the school board allocates to the health board. Last year the figure was $125,432.

Trustee Phillip Ney, the school board's representative on the health board, said there is reason to believe metropolitan Vancouver and North Vancouver districts get better value for their health dollar than Greater Victoria. He said if the health board rejects the school board's proposal, the board will have to consider opening tenders for health services to other organizations.

110 Won't Lose Pay

Salaries of all but about 110 Greater Victoria teachers will be deducted from district operating costs for March 19, the school board was told Monday.

But the overhead cost of fulfilling Education Minister Donald Brothers' request will be taken out of the value of lost teaching time, trustees decided during a special meeting.

Following the strike Brothers sent letters to all school boards in the province informing them one-twenty-third of the provincial operating grant for March would be withheld pending submission of a statement by each district outlining costs of keeping schools open March 19.

SCHOOL OPEN

Greater Victoria board chairman Allan McKinnon said since the schools were open as usual, the district could show normal operating expenses minus the salaries of teachers who did not show up.

On a suggestion from trustee Peter Bunn, it was decided to include clerical and other costs of finding out just who showed up that day.

District superintendent Jake Longmore said the estimated 110 who are to be listed as in class on the day of the strike included teachers who were sick.

He added some of the teachers who did not strike had requested their wages be deducted anyway.

Trustee Don Shorting said Brothers' action was "unilateral and dictatorial" because it penalized the students.

•

2-Year Pact Approved

Greater Victoria school trustees gave their approval Monday to a two-year contract which will give the district's clerical employees a 15 per cent wage increase over two years.

The employees, who are organized as Local 947 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, ratified the new agreement last week.

The agreement covers the period Jan. 1, 1971, to Dec. 31, 1972, and includes provisions to reduce the qualifying period for four weeks holiday to 14 years (effective this year) and for three weeks holiday to four years (effective 1972).

Acting on a request from Greater Victoria Teachers' Association president Les Issaacson, the board authorized its negotiating committee to open negotiations with the GVTA as soon as it is mutually agreeable to both sides.

Power Passed Back to People In Hungary

By ALFRED FRIENDLY

BUDAPEST — A dose of grass-roots politics is to be administered to Hungarians this spring, a first cautious reversal of a centuries-old autocratic tradition strengthened by the last 25 years of central Communist rule.

Legislation just passed by Parliament gives 1,800 municipal councils new revenues and responsibilities. Officials hope that the new provisions, as well as altered election laws designed to encourage ballot-box contests, will improve local government and erode the entrenched apathy of the average citizen toward his government.

"Both the new council and election laws are aimed at spreading democracy," said one official who helped draft them. "We expect to see direct services to the population improve as a result," he added, "and thus involve people more in local affairs."

'HEAR THE VOICE'

A leading party theoretician defined the goal another way: "We do not want to build Hungary on a silent majority," he told a recent visitor. "We want to hear the voice of this majority and give it some effect."

Hungarians concede that the idea of consulting ordinary people about their own affairs, instead of leaving such decisions to an all-known central authority and Communist party, carries a faint whiff of heresy to orthodox Marxists. Janos Kadar in his opening speech last November to the 10th congress of the Hungarian party he heads, noted this concern.

"There are people who think that further decentralization in guidance and the enhancement of the councils' independence endanger the stability of people's power," he said. But, he added, the new developments in "socialist democracy" represent "a correct class policy that strengthens our state and the power of the working people.

HAS LIMITS

"The essence of the further development of the life of our state," he said in reassuring worried centralists, "is the simultaneous strengthening of central power and of the autonomy of local bodies."

Like most innovations in Hungary, the new local council law has its limits. Town and village governing bodies still must work within the framework of national development plans. With no direct tax-raising powers of their own, the governing bodies will instead get a four-year state allotment to spend far more freely than before.

Additionally, because some of their revenues will be tied to the earnings of local enterprises, they will, it is hoped, be stimulated to make their existing factories work better.

New industrial and farm investments, sponsored by the municipalities, should also be more thoughtfully planned and carefully supervised by the increase in local interest.

Britain Seeks Training Base

OTTAWA (CP) — A British military reconnaissance team began a two-day inspection visit Monday to the defence research board establishment at Suffield, Alta.

The British Army is interested in using part of the 1,000 square-mile area as a training base for tank units, though no formal request has yet been made to the Canadian government, a defence department source said.

VICTORIA, B.C., TUESDAY, MARCH 30, 1971 —PAGE 23

Nurse Aide and Junior League member, Dorothy Muir cuddles Caitlin, the appeal child for the 1971 fund drive on behalf of the Queen Alexandra Solarium. Work days Dorothy gives the patients loving care, in her spare time she works to help them through the many fund raising projects of the Solarium Junior League.

As well as regular school classes the children at the Solarium take part in as many outside activities as possible. They may join Cub Scouts or Brownies and have even camped out on the grounds. A class in baton twirling is being held for the first time this spring. Above, Bambi Stiles of Sidney is showing the children the proper grip.

Junior League Launches Appeal

A muster of mayors will attend the opening of the annual appeal for funds of the Solarium Junior League.

Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich will officially open the appeal Friday at 10:30 a.m. at the Queen Alexandra Solarium, 2400 Arbutus Road.

Caitlin, this year's appeal child, will present a corsage to Mrs. Curtis and a gift made by the children to the mayor.

Mayors Courtney Haddock of Victoria and Frances Elford of Oak Bay will be among the special guests.

Compared to most women's group the Junior League has a small membership. They made up for the lack of size by combining hard work and initiative in a variety of ambitious projects throughout the year.

The fund drive is their one big appeal to the public, but members work all year checking hats at Government house affairs, and manning a van at Goldstream Park during the salmon run.

This year they co-operated with a local radio station to organize a tournament at the Empress Hotel for the world's championship in monopoly.

Junior League members will mail out 20,000 appeals a week in April. Last year the appeal neeted $18,000 for the solarium. The group hopes to equal the sum again this year.

The Junior League through its appeal raises 25 per cent of the hospital's operating cost. Since the league's foundation 32 years ago they have raised more than $470,000 for the Solarium.

Margaret Brown, director of nurses, at the Solarium said that Junior League members were a great help not only in raising funds but also by visiting the patients.

Members visit the children each week end, particularly those from out of town who do not have many visitors.

Payments toward the cost of treatment including money from the government, amount to only 50 per cent of the hospital's expenditure. The remainder must be met through voluntary donations and bequests.

This year, as they have for the past 32 years, the Solarium Junior League will be counting on the public to help them make up the deficit.

India Plagued By Baby Thefts

By RAM SUNDAR

BOMBAY (CP) — Public hospitals in India have to cope with a new problem — the housewife yearning for a child and the limits to which a woman will go to get one.

A week rarely passes without Indian newspapers reporting attempts by childless married women to steal new-born babies from maternity hospitals.

Some days ago a childless woman — married for more than 10 years — donned a nurse's uniform and slipped into the maternity ward of a hospital in Baroda, Gujarat state. She took a six-day-old infant from a cradle and attempted to escape with it.

Caught, the woman said she was driven to steal the child out of desperation.

"My marriage is going to pieces," she said. "A divorce is inevitable unless I become a mother but doctors have said this is not possible. So I tried to steal the child in an attempt to pacify my husband."

Asked by police how she hoped to convince her husband that the stolen child was hers, she replied: "I never thought about it. I was that desperate."

The hospital in the town of Dharwar in Mysore state is taking special steps to secure its maternity ward against childless women. This followed two attempts to get away with new-born babies.

Social workers here said that even when a woman manages to steal a child from a hospital she invariably turns it over to the authorities after a few weeks.

"Just as she was driven to steal the child by feelings she could not control, she also comes under pressure to return it to its legitimate mother," one social worker said.

Making a beautiful pattern on the peg board is much more fun when there is an audience. Junior League members, Mrs. B. L. Bertoia and Mrs. R. A. Waters play with one of the small patients in the Solarium kindergarten. The solarium has a regular school from grades 1 to 7 with students following the public school curriculum.

THE BANDED SLEEVE

Giving an entirely new look to the current crop of suits is the marvelous banded sleeve. This new version of the band is not snugged in and fastened, but is comfortably loose, hardly narrower than the sleeve itself and slips over the hand with plenty of room to spare. The sleeve puffs out ever so slightly and gently rolls over the top of the band.

If you want your next suit to have the new look in sleeves, then borrow this idea from famed fashion innovators Tiffeau and Busch.

Here's how it's done:

Cut band about 6" long and 15½ wide on straight grain—not bias.

Interface band with good firm hair canvas. Join ends of band, press seam open.

Fold band in half, right sides out and baste raw edges together.

The lower edge of seamed sleeve should be barely 1" wider than band.

Run a gathering thread along lower edge of sleeve on seam line. Pull up gathering thread so sleeve fits band and fasten. Adjust gathers evenly. Actually this will form generous ease rather than true gathers.

With right sides together, and seams matching at underarm, baste sleev to band, raw edges meeting. Use small basting stitches. Steam press, shrinking out excess ease in seam allowance, keeping sleeve and band in same position as when basted.

Now here's the trick that makes the sleeve roll so smoothly.

Cut a bias strip of interfacing 2" wide and 15½" long (length of band).

Lap ends and stitch. Trim seam ⅛."

Baste bias to inside over SLEEVE along seam, raw edges meeting.

Now, stitch seam, through all layers.

Turn band downward. Turn seam upward toward sleeve but do not press.

In this specific case, cut sleeve lining the same length as outside, allowing no extra length at lower edge. When finishing, turn in raw edge and slip stitch lining along band seam.

Taking their first look at the Ontario legislative chambers are two of the first four girls ever to serve as pages in the history of the Ontario government. Diana Tax, left, and Christine Tukendorf are accompanied by fellow pages Jeff Marshall and Paul Figueroa, right. (CP Wirephoto)

Ontario Girls Join Page-Boy Ranks

TAUTON, Ont. (CP) — As one of the first four girls ever appointed a page for the Ontario legislature, 13-year-old Betsy Scott has been taking a crash course on what is expected: Walk smartly, bow when passing in front of a member who is speaking and no chewing gum while on duty.

Walk smartly, she guesses, means "trying not to trip over rugs and stuff."

Betsy, of this hamlet on Oshawa's northwest outskirts, will make her first appearance as a page Tuesday at the opening of the fourth session of the 28th legislature at Queen's Park.

Traditionally pages have been chosen from boys in members' home ridings. All must have 80-per-cent averages in schoolwork.

Speaker Fred Cass said he had one application from a girl about two years ago and he wrote a polite note of rejection.

Premier William Davis gave permission to include girls a few weeks ago.

Betsy, Dianne Tax of Pontypool, Christine Tukendorg of Port Hope and Annett Hoekstra of Bethany all live in Durham County, the riding of Progessive Conservative member Alex Carruthers.

About 10 days ago, Betsy's principal called her into his office.

"He asked if I'd like to be a page girl in Toronto. We phoned my parents and first made sure that I had a place to stay."

Pages stay with friends or relatives during their six to 10 weeks of duty and study under a tutor two days a week.

The girls have been fitted for uniforms, designed by Elen Henderson of Toronto.

"They're black velvet pant suits with long sleeves and ties. The tie will be okay; it's no different from wearing scarves."

Betsy said in an interview at home she has not been interested in politics in the past.

"I took the American Revolution . . . that got me sort of interested. So far in Canadian history we haven't got to the first prime minister or anything."

She says being a page will be a "really good experience."

"I don't know exactly what it will be like when I get there but it seems neat-o."

Asked how she feels about being surrounded by boys in her new post, she said she would feel better if they were all girls but conceded:

"You meet a lot of interesting people, even though they are boys."

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"It'll cost you approximately thirty bucks, a cup of coffee and a jelly doughnut."

DEAR ABBY . . .

Truth Is Best

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Our son, 23, spent two years in Viet Nam and came home in '68 with lots of medals. He has been a wonderful son in every way and has never given us any trouble.

He met a sweet girl a year later and they were married. The marriage lasted seven months, and a divorce was agreed upon.

Now he has met another girl (also very nice) whom he wants to marry as soon as his divorce is final, but he doesn't want to tell her he has been married before. I told my son that this is no way to start a marriage, and somewhere along the line she'll find out and be hurt. My son claims if he tells her, she won't want him.

He wasn't raised that way Abby. I think ths girl should know the truth, but if I tell her I may lose my son. What steps shall I take? Where to Turn.

DEAR WHERE: Start by trying to convince your son that he must tell his fiancee the truth, and if she won't have him because of his previous marriage, he's ahead to know it now. The very basis for a lasting marriage is the willingness of both parties to accept the other as he is! If your son is not mature enough to realize this and refuses to listen, he stands to be a two-time loser in short order.

DEAR ABBY: A boy (I'll call him Bertram) asked me to the St. Valentine's Day dance at school. He is 15, and so am I. My mother helped me to make a dress, and I was so excited the night before I could hardly sleep.

The morning of the dance, Bertram called, and in a very weak voice said he couldn't go because he had been in a bad motorcycle accident. I was surprised as I never knew Bertram even drove a motorcycle. I felt terrible about missing the dance, but told him to just get well fast and not to worry about me.

An hour later my mother called Bertram's mother to find out what hospital he was in so we could send him a plant. His mother said, "Hospital? He's not in any hospital. He looked feverish and his forehead felt hot so I took his temperature. It was 101, so I told him he couldn't go out."

Now when I see Bertram at school he avoids me. Abby, why did he make up that lie about the motorcycle? I would have understood if he had told me the truth. I'd like for him to know I don't hold anything against him, but how can I without running after him. Lost Out.

DEAR LOST, He made up that lie because he was too embarrassed to tell you the truth. Besides, a "motorcycle accident" sounds much more glamorous than a temperature of 101. He's avoiding you because he knows his mother tipped his mitt. Be patient. He'll come around.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069.

Fashion Artistry Still Appreciated

By EUNICE FRIED

BEVERLY HILLS — In the American fashion world "couture" doesn't mean hand-made clothes. It means ready-to-wear made of expensive fabrics and with all the quality detailing found in hand-made clothes. Naturally, such ready-to-wear is expensive, and in recent years the New York couture firms have been struggling for their lives. Not so in California.

Five years ago, just when the New York couture was beginning to fall upon hard times, Marilyn Lewis created the firm of Cardinali. Perhaps because she was located in Southern California, she had the idea that clothes could be high-style yet light-hearted, elegant yet young.

Talking with her in her Beverly Hills home, one notes that her own appearance makes the same clear statement. A slender, graceful blonde, Marilyn Lewis sat gracefully in a Louis XVI chair wearing a white and blue dotted blouse, a midi skirt, an intricately-worked silver belt and white boots: The fabric was elegant, the belt a masterpiece, yet the total effect was fresh and youthful.

"I do all the designing at Cardinali," Marilyn explained. "It is a total involvement, the best kind of liberation I know."

She also keeps a hawk's eye on the 60 employees who do the fine tailoring and finishing.

"You know, it's been said that Cardinali clothes can be worn inside out. Some claim that kind of quality is no longer relevant, but I take it as a tribute to my sewers, who are among the greatest artisans in the world. Neither they nor I could do less and live with our consciences."

Are there women who will still appreciate and pay for artistry in fashion? The Cardinali customers include Edye Gorme, Mrs. Alfred Bloomingdale, Mrs. Ronald Reagan and Marlo Thomas. There is hardly a fashion store in the country now which doesn't carry Cardinali clothes.

MARILYN LEWIS . . . "best kind of liberation"

Like many Californians, Marilyn Lewis came from elsewhere, Cleveland. For 15 years, she and her husband, Harry Lewis, worked to build a successful chain of restaurants known as Hamburger Hamlets. Marilun designed the places, using ketchup red as their color signature. As the red is also called cardinal red, she took the adjective for the name of her fashion house, Cardinali.

"I still felt I wanted to do something which would establish my own identity, and in fashion design I could have that. Each collection gives me that satisfaction. I enjoy running the factory and travelling with the collections."

Like most creative designers, Marilyn Lewis generally starts with a fabric. She calls designing "interpreting in fabric. I'm particularly fond of sensuous fabrics like French jersey or chiffon. Chiffon is becoming a little passe now, but I just try to find new ways of using it."

Again like other top designers, Marilyn imports most of her fabrics. Asked about American mills complaints about imports, she explained "European establishments are small and used to creating specialties. American fabrics mills were founded on quantity. I must have the finest, most original fabrics for my kind of fashion."

Is California a better place for a couture house than New York?

"California has two disadvantages: capital is often lacking, and we are at a great distance from many markets. However, Beverly Hills itself forms an immediate market for fine clothes; we have space, leisure and a feeling of co-operation among people which I love."

9 IN MEMORIAM

WOOD—In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather, Henry James (Harry) Wood, passed away March 4, 1957, and our dear mother and grandmother, passed away March 30, 1968.

To hear their voice and see their smile,
To sit and talk with them a while,
To be together in the same old way,
Would be our dearest wish today.
—The sons and daughter.

CABLEVISION 10 LISTINGS. 7 p.m., Ladies First; 7:30 p.m., Project Travel; 8 p.m., Comparisons — Three Grandmothers; 8:30 p.m., Victoria Outdoorsmen, Hunting and Fishing edition; 9 p.m., You and the Law — Saanich Police; 9:30 p.m., Outlook — Helen Beirnes.

SMITH FAMILY. 6 p.m., Channel 2. The after-the-romance blues have hit young Cindy. But they seem to evaporate shortly after she meets the young police rookie assigned as father Chad's partner. A new romance seems in blossom until a combination of misunderstanding and parental concern interjects.

REACH FOR THE TOP. 7:30 p.m., Channel 2. Teams from Oak Bay Senior Secondary and Esquimalt Senior Secondary clash in this test of wits and knowledge.

MOD SQUAD. 7:30 p.m., Channels 4 and 8. Who Are the Keepers, Who Are the Inmates? This is the first rerun of the season for Mod Squad. It has Line feigning insanity to gain admittance to a private mental hospital. His investigation was touched off by the death of a friend who attempted to escape from the institution. This was one of the better episodes of the season, worth seeing.

SOUL CONCERT SPECIAL. 8 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. We're All In This Together, Folk singer Tobi Lark leads a moving sing-along in a Toronto Catholic church. Freedom Train, Just a Simple Thought, People We Love and title song We're All In This Together are some of the numbers you'll hear during this 30 minutes.

TELESCOPE. 8:30 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. Canada's popular new singing star Anne Murray is profiled. The former teacher from Springhill, Nova Scotia, is seen at home with her parents and five brothers, filming an appearance with Glen Campbell, and on opening night at a Toronto nightclub.

NASHVILLE NORTH. 8:30 p.m., Channel 8. Kenny Rogers and the First Edition, Ian and Sylvia and singers Ray Griff and Beverly Glen-Copeland perform. Songs include Muddy Wajers, Somethin's Burning, What Can I Say, Lovin' Sound and Complainin' Blues.

TUESDAY NIGHT. 10 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. . . . to be an Indian. This is a study of Indian life in Canada. Viewers will see a montage of still photographs with commentary by Indians to illustrate such facets of native life as the tent camp of Chief Smallboy in Alberta and the Frog Lake Reserve.

TONIGHT'S MOVIES

5:30: Channel 12: Return to Teasure Island (1954 Adventure). Tab Hunter, Dawn Addams. Young student battles crooks after buried treasure.

8:30: Channel 4: The Sheriff (TV Movie, Drama), Ossie Davis, Kaz Garas. The action centres on a black sheriff and his white deputy as they try to nail a white man who raped a black college student.

9:00: Channel 5: The Big Country (Conclusion), Gregory Peck, Jean Simmons. This story of hatred on California's San Rafael range focuses on four antagonists: two proud ranchers engaged in combat over water rights, a ranchman and an easterner vying for an attractive schoolteacher.

11:00: Channel 13: Shadow Man (British, 1953 Mystery), Cesar Romero. Excellent thriller which has some pretty tense moments as London Gambling saloon owner Romero, gets involved with murder, romance, jealousy and Scotland Yard.

11:50: Channel 2: The Magician (Swedish; 1958 Drama), Max von Sydow, Ingmar Bergman directed this study of the fine line between reality and illusion.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Dr. Arthur Master, one of the leading heart specialists in the United States, recently estimated that a million or more people in America may be having small "silent" heart attacks every year — attacks which cause no symptoms, or perhaps only brief and mild ones.

★ ★ ★

I can remember many a time at an autopsy, when the pathologist (a person who studies dead tissues) sliced the heart muscle, revealing small white scars, each obviously due to the plugging up of a tiny artery. Evidently, then, the man had had dozens of small heart attacks. He was lucky, because no single one of them had destroyed enough of his heart muscle to cause either death or a frequent angina (pain in the heart) or a lingering illness.

I strongly suspect that often when a man has one of these pluggings-up of a tiny artery, he gets a sharp pain which lasts for perhaps a minute. I know that in the past 15 years or so I have had perhaps a dozen such brief spells of pain in my chest. At the time, I thought it was the type of pain which could be arising in my heart. Fortunately, these pains left me feeling perfectly well.

Interestingly, when the great Canadian physician, Sir William Osler, was talking to some of his old friends as he was leaving Baltimore for England, he, who had once been a pathologist, spoke of the probability that the "tugs at his heart" were leaving many white scars in his heart muscle.

FIGHT POSTPONED

TURIN, Italy (AP) — The world middleweight boxing championship bout between Carlos Monzon of Argentina and Italian challenger Nino Benvenuti has been postponed to May 8. It had been originally scheduled for April 17.

BEARS NEED COACH

EDMONTON (CP) — Harvey Scott, one-time performer with Calgary Stampeders and B.C. Lions, has resigned as head football coach of the University of Alberta Golden Bears following his appointment to the university's faculty of physical education.

TACKLES IN FOLD

WINNIPEG (CP) — Two import tackles, vetern Bill Frank and rookie Bob Grenfell, are the latest players to sign Western Football Conference contracts with Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

BUTTONS MATCHES

Gregarah defeated Metchosin for the bronze buttons but lost the silver to Ardmore in Lower Island Nine-Hole Golf Association competition.

ESKS SIGN END

Edmonton (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos have signed David Vaughan, a six-foot-four tight end from Memphis State University, to a Western Football Conference tryout form.

NOT MOMENT TOO SOON

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — If city council decides to accept a proposal to buy new chairs for its council chamber, the decision won't come a moment too soon for Alderman Don Macgregor.

Monday night Ald. Macgregor's chair fell apart under him during a council meeting and he fell to the floor.

The incident took place just after Mayor John Rhodes announced the appointment of Carmen Provenzano as the new assistant city solicitor.

As Mr. Macgregor got up, Mayor Rhodes told Mr. Provenzano:

"There's your first case."

Finn Crisis Ends

HELSINKI (AP — A Finnish government crisis was solved when Premier Ahti Karjalainen announced that three dissident Communist cabinet members would lose their portfolios. He stressed this constituted "only a reshuffle, nothing else." Incumbent non-Communists simultaneously withdrew their resignations

Spearheads Found

ATHENS (AP) — Two solid steel spearheads, said to date from the sixth or seventh century BC, have been discovered at Mycenae, the home of King Agamemnon, a Greek scientist announced. Metallurgist George Varoufakis said archeologist George Mylonas gave him three spearheads found at Mycenae during recent excavations.

Shadow Mischief

Belkin Grabs Tennis Cash

BROOKVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — Davis Cupper Mike Belkin of Toronto beat Sandy Mayer of the U.S. 6-3 and U.S. indoor title holder Clark Graebner 6-1 Sunday to win the $5,000 Long Island indoor tennis championship.

The winner, however, wasn't decided until Graebner beat Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Tex., 6-4. The issue had to be settled after Richey had beaten Belkin, 6-4 in a round-robin match following his first two victories.

After Richey lost, Belkin, of Toronto, took the $2,000 prize for first place with a total of 17 points.

Alcindor Leads Scoring Parade

NEW YORK (AP) — Lew Alcindor, Milwaukee Bucks' seven-foot, two-inch giant, added the scoring championship to his most-valuable-player award, the National Basketball Association's final regular-season statistics have confirmed.

Alcindor, voted the MVP last week, averaged 31.7 points a game, scoring 2,596 points in 82 games as he led the Bucks to the Midwest Division title.

John Havlicek of Boston Celtics was second with a 28.9 average and Elvin Hayes of San Diego Rockets third at 28.7.

'SALVAGE LOST PRESTIGE'

Saigon Plans New Laos Foray

By JOSE KATIGBAK

SAIGON (Reuter) — South Vietnam's foray into Laos is over, but the inevitable soul-searching as to whether achievements justified losses is just beginning.

Presumably to counter adverse press reports that the operation was a failure, the Saigon high command has announced new plans for another offensive against the North Vietnamese.

Fresh troops have been sent to northern Quang Tri province, springboard for the Laotian operation. But whether this indicates a prelude to another foreign adventure or just a plot to salvage lost prestige is uncertain.

Was the operation a victory, as Washington and Saigon say, or a defeat, as Hanoi says?

It is difficult to arrive at a clearcut answer. Both sides' concept of what constitutes victory vastly differ.

Based on body count the operation can only be termed a resounding South Vietnamese success, for if the Saigon high command is to be believed, government troops killed 13,688 North Vietnamese while suffering 1,146 killed—a ratio of 13 to 1.

By Hanoi's definition of what constitutes defeat, it is evident that the South Vietnamese suffered a major reversal in Laos, for it was they who retreated.

TROOPS WITHDREW

Saigon says the government troops did not retreat—they withdrew because they had accomplished their mission of disrupting the Ho Chi Minh Trail, the key infiltration route from North to South Vietnam.

Seen against the background of the trail, which is a complex network of roads, rough tracks and waterways winding about 450 miles through the jungles and mountains of southeastern Laos, it is unlikely that Saigon's forces could have accomplished much during their 45-day stay in the area.

The North Vietnamese, for psychological reasons, have always put more stock on winning or retaining battlefield positions regardless of casualties suffered.

Hanoi's latest "victory" will undoubtedly boost the morale of the Viet Cong who in the last few months have been relatively quiet. But whether this will signal a revival of intense guerrilla warfare in South Vietnam remains to be seen.

Australia Cutting Viet Force

CANBERRA (Reuter) — Australia will withdraw about 1,000 men from South Vietnam in four to six months from next May, Prime Minister William McMahon announced today.

The reductions will be spread over the three services, leaving a force in Vietnam of about 6,000 men compared with a peak of 8,000 in 1968-70.

McMahon said that all the remaining forces, including the two-battalion task force in Phuoc Tuy province, would retain "an effective operation capability."

"The tasks of our forces will continue to change as the Vietnamese territorial forces accept increased responsibility," he told the House of Representatives.

SWITCHED-OFF MARRIAGE

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Polk County deputies said they needed no aviation experts to determine the cause of a private plane crash Saturday that slightly injured a man and his wife.

Inspector Chuck Keeney said the couple began arguing and the woman snatched the keys from the ignition. They were at 1,500 feet. Both were treated for cuts and bruises after the powerless plane crashed in an orange grove.

Crown Corporation Keeps Publisher Quebec-Owned

MONTREAL (CP) — A Quebec Crown corporation, la Societe Generale de Financement, has acquired 50 per cent of the shares of a Montreal textbook publisher, le Centre Educatif et Culturel, at a cost of $2.3 million, it was announced Monday.

The other major interest in the firm has been acquired by the Societe Hachette Internationale Canada, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Hachette of France which holds 45 per cent of the shares.

Jean Deschamps, president and director general of SGF, said that the stock purchase keeps alive the Quebec character of the publishing house which could otherwise pass into foreign hands, and it permits the corporation to participate in a profitable undertaking.

Mr. Deschamps said that through Hachette's distribution network, the company will be able to sell its products not only in Canada but wherever French is taught as a second language.

The Centre Educatif et Culturel supplies more textbooks to the Quebec department of education than any other publisher and plans to extend its operations in Canada and the United States to bring in a possible $1 million a year of sales in the near future, he said.

"We believe that in recent years, in English Canada as well as in Quebec, the publishing area has been one of the most sought after by foreign investors," Mr. Deschamps said.

Red Choir Picketed

LONDON (AP) — About 500 demonstrators with banners demanding freedom for Soviet Jews picketed a concert Monday night of the Soviet Union's Red Army choir. Some demonstrators wore faded pajamas reminiscent of Nazi concentration camps. Police reported no incidents.

Fund Proposed

EDMONTON (CP) — Ray Latzlaff, Alberta's minister of industry and tourism, introduced in the legislature Monday a bill which would set up a $10 million industrial incentives fund. The fund would make loans available to manufacturing industries for up to one-third of the cost of a plant or $500,000, whichever is less.

Co-Operation Needed

EDMONTON (CP) — Progressive Conservative leader Robert Stanfield said Monday Canada could get a badly-needed national building code if business, labor and government would co-operate. Varying standards across the country add unnecessary costs, paperwork and trouble to any building job, he told the Edmonton Construction Association. He said the initiative for such a code must begin with the federal government.

B.C. News Briefs

Parents Convicted

HOPE (CP) — The parents of a two-year-old girl who died in a fire near this Fraser Valley town Nov. 15 were each given two-year suspended sentences Monday on charges of child abandonment. John and Audrey Peters pleaded guilty to the charges March 15, after pleading not guilty. Ruth Peters was one of six children left unattended in the frame home at which fire broke out during the night. The others escaped the blaze.

Boy, Girl Must Pay . . . Or Die

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Unless college sophomore Gary Holt, 20, and his 17-year-old sister, Paula, can pay their $20,000 debt to a medical supplies company, they will die.

Gary and Paula are victims of acute nephritis, a rare hereditary kidney disease that requires them to spend 15 hours a week channelling their blood through a machine in order to keep on living.

The machine consumes a non-reusable liquid chemical, saline solutions and coils which cost Gary and Paula as much as $360 a month each. Gary has only a six-week supply left, and the artificial organs division of Travenol Laboratories, Inc., which manufactures the machine, has refused to sell the Holts additional supplies until they pay up their account.

"On our last bill they had an article tacked on there that they wouldn't sell us any more supplies until we settle our bill, but we air-freighted in enough for six weeks for Gary," Gary's mother said. She said the company would not sell them more supplies, however, unless they pay their bill.

Three student organizations at Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos, where Gary commutes from Austin, plan an emergency fund-raising drive Monday and Tuesday to raise at least part of the money.

Three of the 10 children in the H. V. Holt family have already died of the kidney disease and three other Holt children are still in the 16-20 age range during which the disease usually strikes. Holt drives a bread truck and his wife operates a day nursery in their home, and Gary works part-time in an Austin shoe store, but the family's combined earnings cannot come near meeting medical expenses.

News of the Holts' problem has just begun to spread around Austin, and the Pleasant Hills Baptist Church has started a Holt family kidney fund to help out.

CYCLIST LOSES BIT BY BIT

GHENT, Belgium (UPI) — Entering a drugstore, a man left his bicycle against a pile of boxes the storekeeper had put on the sidewalk for the garbage collectors.

When he came out of the shop, the wheels had gone. He traced them to a neighbor who explained he believed the bicycle was meant for the garbage dump.

The man recovered his wheels, only to find that the garbagemen in the meantime had carted away the rest of his bicycle.

Joey to Try to Cut Supply Debate

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Premier Joseph Smallwood was to make a motion in the Newfoundland legislature today to close debate on his government's record $99,780,000 interim supply bill.

The motion, which can't be debated under the legislature's standing orders, would invoke a rule to limit speakers to 20 minutes and end the debate by 2 a.m.

Elsewhere across the country, bills restricting the right to vote to Canadian citizens were introduced in the Nova Scotia legislature, the Saskatchewan government got second reading for a bill placing teachers and trustees under compulsory arbitration and Premier Harry Strom dropped a hint in the Alberta legislature that he will announce changes in his cabinet Wednesday.

At St. John's, the Newfoundland house voted 21 to 6 to allow Mr. Smallwood to give notice of his motion.

Earlier in the day, Opposition leader A. J. Murphy (PC—St. John's Centre) and John C. Crosbie (Ind Lib—St. John's West), leader of a three-man Liberal reform group, said they would be willing to vote for a smaller amount.

Interim supply provides funds to pay government expenses, including payrolls, between the end of the fiscal year and the approval of the budget. The fiscal year ends Wednesday and the debate started last Thursday.

AFFECTS BRITISH SUBJECTS

In the Nova Scotia house, the bills proposed by Municipal Affairs Minister William Gillis will allow British subjects to continue to vote in municipal elections only for a five-year period ending in December, 1975.

After that time, only Canadians by birth or naturalization would have the franchise.

Saskatchewan government members voted 25 to 22 to give approval in principle to amendments to the Teacher Salary Agreement Act.

The proposed legislation would give the education minister the authority to send the dispute to compulsory binding arbitration, said Education Minister J. C. McIsaac.

Premier Strom told the Alberta house he hopes to make an announcement Wednesday after Hugh Horner (PC—Lac Ste. Anne) asked which minister will be responsible for the proposed Hospital Services Commission.

The commission is part of a government reorganization program which will establish a new department of the environment and a new department of culture, youth and recreation, merge the departments of health and social development and eliminate the provincial secretary's portfolio.

The Alberta house also gave second reading to a bill reducing the age of majority in the province to 18 from 21.

First Look At New Premier

TORONTO (CP) — Today's opening of the legislature gives Ontario its first official look at the policies of its new premier and strong clues on when he'll call his first election.

The throne speech is the first since Premier William Davis was elected to head the Progressive Conservative party, and marks the opening of the fourth session of the 28th Ontario legislature.

The cabinet has been reorganized since the third session was prorogued last fall by retired premier John Robarts. Only three of the Robarts ministers have retained their portfolios.

Officers Named By RCAF Group

Roy Kennedy has been elected president of the RCAF Association 800 Pacific Wing.

Other officers are Hal Loeppky, first vice-president; Ted Dover-Masters, second vice-president; Ora Collard, secretary; and Jim Adkins, treasurer.

In God's Name, 15,000 Killed; A City Crushed

(EDITOR'S NOTE): As the Pakistani army moved in force into Dacca last week to crush Sheikh Mujibur Rahman's 25-day-old independence movement, all foreign journalists in East Pakistan, confined at gunpoint in the Intercontinental Hotel since the beginning of the fighting, were rounded up and deported to Karachi. However, Simon Dring of The London Daily Telegraph evaded the roundup by hiding on the hotel roof, despite repeated attempts by the army to find him. With the only other foreign newsman believed to have escaped the net, Associated Press photographer Michel Laurent, Dring managed to make an extensive tour of the burning city. He flew to West Pakistan Sunday and then reached Bangkok. He cabled the following report.)

By SIMON DRING
The London Daily Telegraph

DACCA, East Pakistan — In the name of "God and a united Pakistan" Dacca is a crushed and frightened city.

After 24 hours of shelling by units of the Pakistan army as many as 7,000 people are dead, large areas of the city have been leveled and East Pakistan's fight for independence has been put to an end.

Despite claims by President Yahya Khan, head of Pakistan's military government, that the situation is now calm, as late as Sunday tens of thousands of people were fleeing to the countryside, the city streets were almost deserted and the killings were continuing in other parts of the province.

There was no doubt that the army was more or less in control of all the towns and major population centres and that resistance was minimal and apparently ineffective.

As of Sunday, people were still being shot at what appeared to be the slightest provocation, buildings were still being destroyed and the military appeared to be more determined than ever to assert its control over the 73 million Bengalese in East Pakistan.

Conflicting reports are reaching the west from Karachi and New Delhi. Radio India says the "liberation army" in East Pakistan has regained control of much of Dacca and key military areas.

But Pakistani officials deny this saying that Dacca and other cities in the east are calm and that life is returning to normal.

Although an accurate estimate of civilian casualties is impossible, reports filtering in from outlying areas, including Chittagong, Comilla and Jessore, put the figure, including Dacca, at about 15,000 dead.

★ ★ ★

The depth of death and destruction in Dacca was obvious: Students dead in their beds, butchers in the markets killed behind their stalls, women and children burned to death in their houses, Pakistanis of Hindu religion shot en masse, bazaars and shopping areas razed by fire. By Sunday, the Pakistani flag flew over nearly every building in the city.

Military casualties are not known but at least two soldiers have been wounded and one officer killed.

Whatever, the Bengali uprising seemed to be over for the moment. Sheikh Mujibur was seen being taken away by the army and nearly all the top members of his Awami League Party have also been arrested.

Leading political activists were arrested, others were killed and the offices of two newspapers that supported Mujibur's independence movement were destroyed.

The first target of Pakistani army tanks that rolled into Dacca Thursday night was the students.

An estimated three battalions of troops were used in the attack on Dacca — one armored, one artillery and one infantry. They started leaving the barracks shortly before 10 p.m.

COLLINS
. . . born in China

Ottawa Names Peking Envoy

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's first ambassador to China will be Ralph E. Collins, a high external affairs department official who was born in China and speaks the Chinese language.

Informed sources disclosed Monday that Collins, 56, has been officially accepted by the Peking government as Canada's nominee.

Similarly, Canada has accepted the candidate proposed by Peking as its first ambassador in Ottawa.

Railway Dispute Talks Set for Today

VANCOUVER (CP) — Talks aimed at settling a railway work stoppage that has paralysed traffic in British Columbia and threatens to close the port of Vancouver were scheduled here today.

Contract negotiations in which the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National promised to "negotiate to a conclusion" were to be held in Montreal.

Don Tysoe, a federal mediator, and Ray Perrault, parliamentary secretary to Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey, were to meet in Vancouver with engineers who have been booking off sick in British Columbia and Alberta to protest delay in the contract negotiations.

Mr. Tysoe said in an interview Monday: "The name of the game is to get the men to listen to reason and return to work."

Talks in Montreal concern the engineers' contracts with CP Rail, which expired March 15, 1970, and the CNR, which ran out April 30, 1970. The talks broke off last week after a three-man conciliation board reported to the federal government that it was unable to reach agreement on a wage settlement.

L. O. Hemmingson of Montreal, the union's assistant grand chief engineer, said in an interview Monday:

"We have had nothing realistic in better than a year of negotiation."

This had led to the work stoppages on the West Coast.

SERVICE PARALYSED

Meanwhile, in Vancouver, spokesmen for both railways said Monday that freight and passenger service is paralysed in B.C.

Acting Port Manager William Duncan said the port of Vancouver will be closed in about a week if work does not resume.

About 200 Vancouver-area engineers booked off work last Wednesday and about 5,000 railway employees have been laid off by CP Rail and CNR.

Some 7,500 railway carloads containing more than 15 million bushels of grain have been stranded between Vancouver and the Prairies.

"The grain picture is bad," Mr. Duncan said, "with elevator stocks already far below normal. Coal shipments are practically at a standstill. The stockpile of bulk products such as potash and sulphur will hardly last the week."

"I'm very pessimistic," he said. "We can expect diversions of cargo to Seattle or other ports very soon."

MAY SET EMBARGOES

CNR and CP Rail said Monday in a joint statement that total embargoes may become necessary in B.C. and the affected parts of Alberta if the work stoppages continue to keep rail operations at a standstill.

Russia Proposes End Of Red, NATO Pacts

REALISTIC MODEL of a 10-foot killer whale, held here by Ray Beckett (left) and Dave White, has been made in plastic by the provincial parks department at Langford and will be erected at the Miracle Beach parksite south of Campbell River. The department has taken on extra men and organized two shifts in order to meet the demand posed by the new parks that will be in operation this year.

World N-Talks Also Sought

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Leonid Brezhnev, Soviet Communist party chief, proposed today that the world's five big nuclear powers sit down at a disarmament conference and also offered to dismantle the Warsaw pact alliance if the West did away with NATO.

Brezhnev announced the Soviet peace plan in his wideranging televised address to 5,000 delegates at the opening of the 24th Soviet Communist party congress.

The nuclear powers he named are the Soviet Union, the U.S., China, Britain and France.

The Russian party secretary also proposed a worldwide disarmament conference, the liquidation of military bases on foreign territory, curtailment of military expenditures—especially by the major world powers—and a series of bilateral and multilateral treaties.

THINGS ARE BETTER

On another critical subject, Brezhnev said Moscow is sure that good relations with China will be restored but warned that the Kremlin will not yield to Chinese demands that it change course.

Brezhnev said there has been a certain normalization in Sino-Soviet relations in the last 18 months and described an exchange of ambassadors and signing of a new trade agreement as "useful steps."

But Moscow also sees anti-Soviet propaganda continuing in Peking, he said, and it rejects "slanderous" accusations against Soviet policies spread in China.

Brezhnev said the current situation calls for solidarity

Geneva Deadlock End Near?

GENEVA (Reuter) — The Soviet Union and its allies today tabled a draft convention to ban biological warfare which they said is aimed at ending a deadlock in the 25 - nation Geneva disarmament Conference on biological and chemical weapons.

The new draft would ban biological weapons separately first, thus dropping previous Soviet insistence on outlawing them together with chemical weapons in one composite agreement.

The new Soviet-sponsored draft was immediately welcomed outside the conference hall by officials of the United States and British delegations.

They, together with other Western delegations here, have been, backing a British draft which would also ban germ weapons separately first.

BRITISH PLAN SIMILAR

The new Soviet draft is similar in general content to the British one, but there are a number of differences of detail.

Soviet delegate Alexei A. Roshchin told United States Ambassador James F. Leonard— Roshchin and Leonard are co-chairman of the Geneva conference—of the new Soviet draft Monday, the sources said.

He also told the heads of most of the other delegations here.

On their way into the conference hall, United States and British delegation officials welcomed the new Soviet draft.

Communist delegation sources said the draft is being supported by the delegations here of Poland, Czechoslovakia, Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Mongolia.

NEWS BRIEFS

Building Rocked

NEW YORK (AP) — An explosion outside the Communist party headquarters early today blew in the front door and shattered several windows.

Wheat Pact Signed

TUNIS (Reuter) — Canada agreed today to supply Tunisia with 14,000 tons of wheat worth $1 million in an accord signed here.

Kidnapped, Again

MONTEVIDEO (Reuter) — Left-wing guerrillas Tuesday kidnapped Ulises Pereira Reverbel, administrator of the Uruguay state electricity and telephone company, for the second time. Police said the official apparently was shot and wounded as he resisted capture by four men and a woman.

Not Many Finish

OTTAWA (CP) — Only 2,000 of 22,000 public servants who started the government's second-language training courses finished them, the Commons committee on miscellaneous estimates was told today.

Convention Set

FREDERICTON (CP) — New Brunswick Liberals will hold a leadership convention here Oct. 15-16 to choose a successor to former premier Louis J. Robichaud.

Tories Send Down 'Rich Man's Budget'

LONDON (CP) — Higher old-age pensions and lower corporation income taxes were among changes announced by Anthony Barber today as he sought to apply a stimulus to Britain's sluggish economy.

Hugh Scanlon, left-wing leader of the big engineers union, immediately labelled it a "rich man's budget" with little in it for the average working man

In one of the longest budget speeches since the Second World War, Barber, the chancellor of the exchequer, also promised far-reaching tax reform during the next few years.

He said this reform will simplify Britain's complicated tax system and reduce the overall burden.

Old-age pensions, now $12 a week for a single person and $19.50 for a married couple, will rise next September by $2.40 for a single person and $3.80 for a couple.

The corporation tax, which was trimmed last fall to 42.5 per cent from 45, is to be reduced again to 40 per cent.

The chancellor of the exchequer estimated that his over-all measures will boost the economy by about three per cent this year, leaving businessmen wondering whether this will be sufficient to prevent large-scale unemployment.

Some of Barber's measures seemed to favor the Conservatives' best friends — the wealthier members of the community.

For example, the peak income tax surcharge rate of 91 per cent on the extremely wealthy is being reduced to 75 per cent during the next tax year beginning April 6.

Tax on capital gains is to be eliminated for the small investor, those making profit of $2,200 a year or less. The current exemption is $220.

Reds Mass At Border

LONDON (CP) — The Soviet Union had between 30 and 32 divisions in the area of its border with China by the end of 1970, says a London-based military study group.

They included two or three divisions in Mongolia and were backed up by about 1,000 combat aircraft, the Institute for Strategic Studies reported in its latest survey of defence and world security.

The independently-financed institute said the general effectiveness of the planes "was increased during the year by the installation of a co-ordinated air defence system in Mongolia."

Extra Court Guards After Tate Sentence

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — Extra guards were posted at the Hall of Justice here today amid threats of reprisals after a jury recommended that Charles Manson and three women followers be sent to the gas chamber.

Additional guards moved in almost immediately after the jury delivered its death-sentence recommendations for the convicted killers of actress Sharon Tate, four friends and a middle-aged married couple.

LED AWAY SCREAMING

Judge Charles Older, prosecutor Vincent Bugliosi, and jury members were escorted to their homes by special sheriff's deputies.

Manson threatened last week that if he were sentenced to death "murder and bloodshed would follow."

In the courtroom Monday, as the jury returned its verdict in the penalty phase of the 10 - month - old trial, defendant Susan Atkins, 22, was led away screaming: "Look your doors. Watch your kids. It's gonna come down hard."

Patricia Krenwinkel, 23, shouted: "The whole system is a game." And 21-year-old Leslie van Houten yelled at the court: "You've all just judged yourselves. Watch your children."

Manson yelled at Judge Older: "You don't have any authority over me. Half of you aren't even as good as me." He was led from the court before the verdicts were read. The girl defendants broke into shouts of "Judge yourselves", and "You're all blind." They also were taken from the courtroom before they heard the verdicts.

LIFE IN PRISON, OR DEATH

Calley Returns for Sentence

FORT BENNING, Ga. (AP) — Bright-eyed and cheerful after his first night in the stockade, Lieut. William Calley Jr. returned to the courtroom today for a sentence of life or death that can be tempered only by a long string of reviewing authorities.

He was escorted by six military policemen to the little one - storey courthouse where a jury of six combat officers convicted him Monday of murdering at least 22 civilians in the blood bath of My Lai.

Lawyers were in court this morning to work with the military judge on instructions he'll give to the jury. The arguments on the sentence were to begin at 1 p.m. and were likely to be concluded today.

During the night someone threw a bottle of gasoline at the courthouse where Calley's trial spanned the seasons from autumn into spring. The bottle landed on the lawn and burned only a small patch of grass.

SHAKEN BY VERDICT

Calley, of Miami, Fla., took the jury's decision with head high, his manner soldierly correct. But he was shaken by a verdict he didn't expect.

The night in the stockade's private officers' quarters—in a two-room suite—was Calley's first time in confinement since he was charged 1½ years ago.

SAIGON (Reuter)—South Vietnam's militant anti-war Buddhists called today for clemency for Lieut. William Calley.

Venerable Huyen Quang, general secretary of the Unified Buddhist Church, said "What good is it to kill one more man after more than 100 people have already died?"

Philippine Jet Hijacked to China

HONG KONG (AP) — Five young men hijacked a Philippine airliner to Communist China today, but the Chinese are expected to send the plane and the 25 other persons aboard back quickly. It was believed to be the first airliner hijacked to China.

The passengers were flown to Canton, on the South China mainland, after five armed men diverted the twin-engine jet from a domestic flight in the Philippines.

An airline spokesman said the hijackers were all 17 to 25 years old, spoke a central Philippine dialect and told passengers they were seizing the BAC-111 jetliner for "ideological reasons."

One passenger said four of the hijackers were Filipinos and the fifth appeared to be Eurasian or Chinese.

Hong Kong airport officials said they expected Chinese authorities to return the plane, passengers and five crew members "rather quickly—possibly even later today."

The plane was diverted about half an hour after taking off from Manila for Davao, on Mindanao Island. It first made a 90-minute stop for fuel in Hong Kong, and there 20 of the 45 passengers were released.

The airline spokesman said four of the hijackers carried .22-calibre pistols and one a pair of scissors. They were "very courteous to the passengers," he said, although one of the hijackers threatened to blow up the plane unless it went on to China.

One hijacker told airport control officers they wanted to go to Peking; the Chinese capital but airport officials said the plane could not hold enough fuel for the 1,200-mile trip. Canton, South China's largest city, is 90 miles northwest of Hong Kong.

Filipino Foreign Secretary Carlos Romulo said he has asked the British and Indian embassies in Manila to ask the Chinese to return the passengers and crew. Both countries have diplomatic relations with Communist China while the Philippines does not.

One thing about Soviet conferences—even when they're in public y' don't know what's goin' on.

. . . 15,000 KILLED; DACCA CRUSHED

By 11, firing had broken out, and the people who had started to hastily erect makeshift barricades — overturned cars, tree stumps, furniture, concrete piping — became early casualties as the troops rolled into town.

Mujibur was telephoned and warned that something was happening but he refused to leave his house. "If I go into hiding they will burn the whole of Dacca to find me," he told an aide who escaped arrest.

The students were also warned, but those who were still around later said most thought they would only be arrested.

★ ★ ★

Led by American-supplied M-24 Second World War tanks, one column of troops sped to Dacca University shortly after midnight. Troops took over the British council library and used it as a fire base to shell nearby dormitory areas.

Caught completely by surprise, some 200 students were killed in Iqbal hall, headquarters of the militantly anti-government Students Union as shells slammed into the building and their rooms were sprayed with machine-gun fire.

Two days later bodies were still smouldering in their burned out rooms, others were scattered outside, more floated in a neaby lake, an art student lay sprawled across his easel, seven teachers died in their quarters and a family of 12 were gunned down as they hid in an outhouse.

★ ★ ★

The military removed many of the bodies, but the 30 bodies still there could never have accounted for all the blood in the corridors of Iqbal hall.

At another hall the dead were buried by the soldiers in a hastily dug mass grave and then bulldozed over by tanks.

People living near the university were caught in the fire too, and 200 yards of shanty houses running alongside a railway line were destroyed during the attack.

Army patrols also razed a nearby market area, running down between the stalls killing their owners as they slept. Two days later, when it was possible to get out and see all this, some of the men were still lying as though asleep, their blankets pulled up over their shoulders.

In the same district the Dacca Medical College received direct bazooka fire and a Mosque was badly damaged.

★ ★ ★

As the university came under attack columns of troops moved in on the Rajabag headquarters of the East Pakistan police on the other side of the city.

Tanks opened fire first, and then the troops moved in and levelled the men's sleeping quarters, firing incendiary rounds into the buildings.

It was not known, even by people living opposite, how many died but out of the 1,100 police based there not many are believed to have escaped.

As this was going on, other units had surrounded Mujibur's house. When contacted shortly before 1 a.m. Friday he said he was expecting an attack any minute and that he had sent everyone except his servants and a bodyguard away to safety.

A neighbor said that at 1:10 a tank, an armored car and trucks loaded with troops drove down the street firing over the house.

★ ★ ★

"Sheikh, you should come down," an officer called to Mujibur in English as they stopped outside. He replied by stepping out on to his balcony and saying "Yes, I am ready but there is no need to fire. All you need to have done is call me on the telephone and I would have come."

The officer then walked into the garden of the house and told Mujibur: "You are arrested."

He was taken away along with three servants, an aide and his bodyguard, who was badly beaten up when he started to insult the officer. One man was killed — a night watchman hiding behind the fence of the house next door.

By 2 a.m. fires were burning all over the city, troops had occupied the university and surrounding areas, where shooting at students still in hiding and were were replacing Bengali independence flags with Pakistani national flags.

★ ★ ★

There was still heavy shelling in some areas but the fighting was noticeably beginning to slacken. Opposite the Intercontinental Hotel, where foreign journalists were detained, a platoon of troops stormed the empty offices of "The People" newspaper, burning it down along with most houses in the area and killing a long night watchman.

Shortly before dawn most firing had stopped and as the sun came up an eerie silence settled over the city, deserted and completely dead except for noise of the crows and the occasional convoy of troops or two or three tanks rumbling by on mopping up operations.

But the worst was yet to come. At midday, again without warning, columns of troops poured into the old section of the city where more than a million people live in a sprawling maze of narrow winding streets.

For the next 11 hours they proceeded to systematically devastate large areas of the "old town" as it is called where Sheikh Mujibur had some of his strongest support among the people in Dacca.

"They suddenly appeared at the end of the street," said one old man, "then they drove down it firing into all the houses."

★ ★ ★

The lead unit was followed by soldiers carrying cans of gasoline. Those who tried to escape were shot. Those who stayed were burned alive. About 700 men, women and children died there that day between noon and 2 p.m.

The same was repeated in at least three other areas, all of them covering anything up to a half square mile or more.

As they left, the soldiers took those dead they could away with them in trucks and moved on to their next target. Police stations in the old town were also attacked.

"I am looking for my constables," a police inspector said on Saturday morning as he wandered through the ruins of one of the bazaars. "I have 240 in my district and so far I have only found 30 of them — all dead."

★ ★ ★

One of the biggest massacres of the entire operation in Dacca took place in the Hindu area of the old town. There the soldiers made the people come out of their houses and then shot them in groups.

This area, too, was eventually razed.

Meanwhile, troops of the East Bengal regiment were being used in the suburbs to start moving out toward the industrial areas of the city — Tongi and Naranganj — both about 10 miles from the city centre and both areas of leftst support for Mujibur.

Firing continued in these areas until early Sunday morning but the main bulk of the operation in the city was completed by Friday night.

★ ★ ★

One of the last targets was the daily Bengali language paper "Ittefaq." Over 400 people had taken shelter in its offices when the fighting started.

At 4 p.m. Friday four tanks appeared in the road outside. A half hour later the building was an inferno. By Saturday morning only the charred remains of corpses huddled in back rooms were left.

As quickly as they appeared the troops disappeared off the streets. On Saturday morning the radio announced the curfew would be lifted from 7 a.m. until 4 p.m.

It then repeated the martial law regulations banning all political activity, announcing press censorship and ordering all government employees to report back for work and for all privately owned weapons to be handed in to the authorities.

★ ★ ★

Magically the city returned to life and panic set in. By 10 a.m., with palls of black smoke still hanging over large areas of the old town and out in the distance toward the industrial areas, the streets were packed with people leaving town.

By car, in rickshaws, but mostly on foot carrying their possessions with them the people of Dacca were fleeing.

By midday they were on the move in the tens of thousands.

"Please give me a lift, I am old man" — "In the name of Allah help me" — "Take my children with you."

Silent and unsmiling, they passed and saw what the army had done. It had been a thorough job, carefully planned and meticulously executed and they looked the other way and kept on walking.

Those who were not fleeing wandered aimlessly around the smoking debris of what was once their homes, lifting the blackened twisted sheets of corrugated iron used in most shanty areas as roofing materials to salvage what they could from the ashes.

★ ★ ★

Nearly every other car — if it was not taking people out into the countryside — was flying a Red Cross and convoying dead and wounded to the hospitals. And in the middle of it all occasional convoys of troops would appear, the soldiers peering equally unsmiling down the muzzles of their guns at the silent crowds.

On the Friday night as they pulled back to their barracks they shouted "Narai Takpir," an old Persian war cry meaning "we have won the war." On Saturday, when they spoke, it was to shout "Pakistan zindabad" — "long live Pakistan."

Most people took the hint. Before the curfew was reimposed the national flag of Pakistan, apart from gasoline, was the hottest selling item on the market.

As if to protect their property in their absence, the last thing a family would do before they locked up their house would be to raise the flag.

At 4 p.m. the streets emptied again, the troops reappeared and silence fell once more over Dacca.

But firing broke out again almost immediately. "Anybody out after four will be shot," the radio had announced earlier in the day.

A group of Hindu Pakistanis living around a temple in the middle of the race course were all killed, apparently for no reason at all except they were out in the open.

And refugees who came back into the city when they found roads leading out the city were blocked by the army told how many had been killed as they tried to walk across country to avoid the troops.

Beyond those road blocks was more or less no man's land, where the clearing operations were still going on Sunday. What happened out there is anybody's guess, except the army's. Only one thing is sure — it was a one-sided battle.

★ ★ ★

Hardly anywhere was there evidence of organized resistance to the troops in Dacca or anywhere else in the province. Even the West Pakistani officers scoffed at the idea of anybody putting up a fight.

"These bugger men," said one Punjabi lieutenant, "could not kill us if they tried."

"Things are much better now," said another officer, "nobody can speak out or come out. If they do we will kill them — they have spoken enough — they are traitors and we are not. We are fighting in the name of God and a united Pakistan."

As the evacuation of the city continued over the weekend it became increasingly obvious that the army had achieved exactly what they had set out to do. The operation, apparently planned and led by General Tikka Khan, the West Pakistani military governor of the East, has succeeded in driving every last drop of resistance out of the people of Bengal.

Federal Rail Move Sought By Bennett

Premier W. A. C. Bennett today called for immediate federal government action to end work stoppages that have tied up CN and CPR rail operations in B.C.

Bennett said the railway work stoppages are hurting the B.C. economy including the forest industry.

He said it was federal inaction that started severe economic difficulties last spring during the towboat strike, which was also under federal jurisdiction. He also referred to an earlier tie-up by longshoremen as further evidence of Ottawa's failure to protect B.C. economic interests.

"It is time for the federal government to have legislation to deal with these important matters, such as Bill 33," Bennett said.

"I call for immediate action."

Bill 33, otherwise known as the Mediation Commission Act, allows the B.C. government to stop strikes and lockouts under its jurisdiction by passing a cabinet order.

Plane, 2 Men Reported Lost

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP) — A float plane with two men aboard was reported missing Monday on a flight along the southern British Columbia coast.

The Trans Mountain Air Services Cessna 180 from Campbell River was piloted by Gordon Jeune, 39, and was carrying a passenger identified only as H. Young. Both men were reported to be from Campbell River.

An air search begun late Monday afternoon was to resume today, joined by a Canadian Coast Guard cutter.

. . . RAILWAY DISPUTE TALKS

CP Rail has already placed embargoes on shipments of livestock and perishable commodities to and from Field, B.C., Crowsnest, Alta., and points west.

The book-off spread Sunday to Prince George in northern B.C. CP Rail services in Calgary and Lethbridge have also been hit by the stoppage.

A CNR spokesman said in Vancouver that only three or four engine crews had not stopped working on the CNR line between Jasper, Alta. and Prince Rupert, B.C. But these crews were at the ends of the line and could not keep traffic moving.

CP Rail has one B.C. system still operating—the dayliner service between Victoria and Courtenay.

About 200 enginemen in Edmonton have voted to withdraw from service if engineers in B.C. are disciplined for booking off.

B.C. Hydro and Power authority said 80 employees on its Lower Mainland rail operation were laid off, effective Sunday midnight, because there was no work on lines connecting with CNR and CP Rail.

More than 3,300 CP Rail employees have been laid off in the Pacific region and the jobs of another 1,500 employees are threatened if the book-off continues.

The CNR has laid off between 500 and 600 men between Kamloops and Vancouver.

About 790 workers on both railways are involved in the book-offs.

In the report made Friday, the three-man conciliation board reported on only two of 24 points of dispute—and they failed to agree on these two points: Wages and duration of agreement.

SUGGEST INCREASES

Board Chairman R. A. Gallagher of Winnipeg, appointed by Mr. Mackasey, suggested the engineers receive pay increases of eight per cent the first year and seven per cent in each of the succeeding years of a three-year contract.

A. William Cox of Halifax, board member appointed by the CNR and CP Rail, urged increases of 6.5 per cent the first year and seven per cent in each of the remain ing two years.

Marc Lapointe of Montreal, named to the board by the enginemen, recommended a 13-per-cent increase in the first year and an additional nine-per-cent raise in the second year of a two-year contract.

All three suggested the wage settlements be retroactive to the expiry dates of th contracts.

The board members also said they decided not to deal with other issues because of their technical nature. It was felt these could be settled after the wage dispute was ironed out.

No Push For Family Act Changes

No recommendation for action on major amendments to the Wives and Children's Maintenance Act will be made by the legislative welfare committee because of lack of opportunity to hear testimony from the community.

The committee today voted to recommend that the bill be referred back to it next year during the legislative session.

The bill, which makes women equally as liable as men for the support of children and widens the definition of children to include mentally or physically infirm persons over the age of 19, was referred to the committee about two weeks ago.

The committee recommendation does not specifically say that the government shouldn't proceed with the bill.

Uvic Music Sound Fills Packed Gym

The huge gymnasium of the University of Victoria was filled to standing room only Monday when the university's chorus and orchestra presented Faure's Requiem and Poulenc's Gloria.

Led by George Corwin, the 250 singers and musicians completely conquered the awesome acoustics of the former army drill hall.

The Sanctus in the Requiem proved to be an outstanding choral presentation. Soprano Audrey Farnell met the challenge of the sound chamber effects with ease and soloist Charles Dorrington had excellent control and tone.

Composed in 1959, Poulenc's Gloria is in modern idiom, with a gay veneer overlaying a sadness and pathos that was well interpreted by the musicians.

The well-balanced chorus of 170 singers was outstanding in its rendering of the In Parisium which concluded the Requiem, showing a coupling of tight discipline and feeling of excitement.

Held to raise funds to support the Taylor Scholarship Fund for deserving students of music, the concert's popularity might indicate the worth of a repeat performance.

Five Killed In Plane Crash

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Five persons were killed in a plane crash near Benny, 50 miles northwest of here Monday when a plane went through the ice of Bannerman Lake, police said today.

Killed were the pilot and four passengers, apparently fishermen from the area of Pogamasing almost 80 miles northwest of Sudbury.

Names of the victims were not released.

The Sudbury Aviation Ltd. plane apparently plunged nose first into the ice. One body was flung clear and it was six hours later before the others were recovered.

The bodies were brought to Sudbury for an autopsy.

Moorings Rings Would Get Spot

Mayor Courtney Haddock said today the owners of the Reid waterfront property have agreed to set off a small portion of the shoreline as an historic site to preserve some antique mooring rings.

The site, to be named Queen Elizabeth Square, would become part of the waterfront access in the Reid development should it be constructed, Haddock said.

Shorts Banned

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A Beirut newspaper has unearthed a 30-year-old law forbidding the wearing of shorts by women, just as the hot pants craze catches on in Lebanon. Al Anwar said the law, based on a 1920 French presidential decree, dates from a ruling in 1941 by the French administrator of the then-mandated territory.

and the Soviet Union is ready for "the re-establishment of good neighborliness and friendship, and we express the certainty that in the final analysis this will be achieved."

He said China has demanded that the Kremlin go back on the course adopted at the 20th party congress in 1956, when former premier Nikita Khrushchev denounced Joseph Stalin and assured Russians there would be no return to the late dictator's methods.

Brezhnev also said that international Communist solidarity is stronger than ever despite certain difficulties in the last five years.

PROMISES VIETNAM AID

He said North Vietnam could continue to rely on Russian help, warned that delay in ratifying a Soviet-West German non-aggression treaty could lead to distrust of Bonn and that the position of the Arab countries is a realistic basis for peace in the Middle East.

Brezhnev said in his keynote speech htat the only way to solve the Vietnam question is to accept proposals put forward by North Vietnam, which has the firm support of the Soviet Union.

Referring to U.S. policy in Indochina, he said: "The principal atrocity of modern colonialists, the shame of America, is the continuing U.S. agression against the peoples of Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos."

He was greeted with loud applause from delegates when he assured them that "the Soviet Union will continue firmly to support our Arab friends."

He declared that Israeli leaders surely could not believe they could succeed in holding on to conquered Arab territory.

By its stand Israel had clearly shown who stands in the way to peace, the Soviet leader said.

He called for the Mediterranean to be turned into a sea of peace and friendship.

MENTIONS PROBLEMS

On relations among the Communist states, Brezhnev said: "Some difficulties and complications have continued to appear in the socialist world, and this has also had an effect on the development of relations between individual states and the Soviet Union.

"However, this has not changed the dominant tendency of strengthening friendship and cohesion of the socialist countries."

In the opening part of his report he did not name any of the difficulties and complications to which he referred, but it was assumed here he had in mind relations with China and the 1968 Czechoslovak crisis.

He was greeted with applause as he told delegates that Poland has been able to overcome difficulties which arose there, though he did not refer directly to the December riots.

Brezhnev told the congress that the events in Czechoslovakia have shown that in Communist countries there are still internal anti-socialist forces which in certain conditions become active and can "even go as far as counter-revolutionary actions, counting on support from outside—from imperialism."

Brezhnev, looking healthy and well-groomed, shook hands with foreign guests and took his seat beside President Nikolai Podgorny before starting his report on party activity at the modern Palace of Congresses.

Premier Alexei Kosygin also sat beside Podgorny, who announced that 4,949 delegates were present, each representing 2,900 of the 14 million Soviet party members.

REFORMS DELAYED

Elections act changes covering the voting age and other matters won't be introduced this year, Premier Bennett confirmed today.

The long-awaited reforms, expected to simplify voting and other election procedures, have been under study for several years. Bennett wouldn't say why the legislation is being delayed.

Canadian Killed

PARIS (AP) — Francois Bachand, believed to be a Canadian political activist, was found beaten to death in a friend's apartment near the Flea Market, police reported today.

DAVID MOTORS SOLD

Two Victoria men have bought the imported car business established here nearly 10 years ago by David Carere.

David Motors Ltd., 1101 Yates, will be operated from April 1 by M. A. Tony Nugent, and N. C. Cam McCallum.

Nugent is an investor and McCallum, with 22 years experience in General Mots sales, is a former sales manager at Empress Pontiac Buidk Ltd.

The business they have bought was founded with the Volvo franchise, to which was added the Datsun line nearly five years ago. Carere said his firm pioneered the Japanese car in Victoria by building Datsun into a full scale dealership.

Today Japanese cars rank near the top in North American imported car sales.

Carere said he has no plans for the future.

INDIANS COLLECTING

Got a Billboard to Build? 'Reserve'—Beat the Law

For the passing motorist, three more messages.

By DOUG MacRAE

Highway billboards are frowned upon, right?

So what's that extravaganza rearing it's multi-colored head on the Pat Bay Highway near Mount Newton Crossroad?

The sign is the result of an interesting conflict in provincial and federal law, which could result in billboards peppering B.C. highways in direct contradiction of the provincial Highways Act.

Provincial law makes it illegal to erect a billboard within 1,000 feet of the higway, unless it's on your own property, in an "unorganized" area — that is, anywhere outside incorporated municipalities.

In most cases, municipal governments have gone along with the intent of the province and have outlawed billboards within their boundaries. So B.C. roads are relatively sign-free, and the admirers of scenery like it that way.

. . . "we don't object"

The hitch in the case of the Pat Bay sign is that it is on lang belonging to the East Saanich Indian Reserve.

●

The Supreme Court of Canada has ruled that although reserve Indians must comply with municipal and provincial law, the restriction doesn't extend to land use. Thus, if an Indian wants to lease his land to a sign company, and he gets the approval of the band council, the province finds itself with its hand tied.

The sign in question is a Roto-Vision billboard, erected by Neon-Seaboard to advertise Block Brothers Realty, The Empress and Undersea Gardens. It consists of vertical triangular pillars, which are automatically rotated at intervals to present three different messages to the motorist.

In return for permitting billboards on their property, road-side land owners can collect anywhere from $10 to $60 a month from the builder, depending on size, display and complexity.

"In this case there is a considerable sum involved," band manager Victor Underwood Jr. said Monday. "We don't object so long as the builder and the land-owner go through the proper channels.

"Our position is that the signs are on Indian land, so no one can do anything about it," Underwood said.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said today it is clear municipal statutes do not govern Indian land, and suggested the conflict was something the federal government would have to decide.

●

But in Ottawa, a spokesman for the department of Indian affairs and northern development said Minister Jean Chretien felt it was "strictly a matter for the Indians to decide."

A B.C. Highways department official noted that Indian land bordering highways has always been a sensitive area, one which the province is reluctant to get involved with.

He said the Indian affairs department had been approached on a number of cases and "their attitude has varied, with the money involved being a factor. There appears to be no fixed policy. It's 'yes' here and 'no' someplace else."

Island municipalities have largely gone along with the intent of the provincial ban, but there are scattered exceptions.

Roy Ward of Bayliss Signs Ltd. notes there are clusters of poorly maintained roadside signs up-Island in the Nanoose, Parksville and Qualicum areas.

"They're eyesores, but they are apparently ignored by the provincial government," Ward said. "They are erected by local sign-painters, and they're not maintained, so weeds grow and they're not painted and broken and half blown down, to the point they may become hazardous.

●

"Reputable firms don't do this. We are bound (he included Neon-Seaboard) to abide by the requirements of the province, or we don't get any more permits."

Cam Massey of Neon-Seaboard said his firm had been "coerced" into putting up the sign, and said two others were planned on the opposite side of the highway facing the northbound traffic.

"If we hadn't done it someone else was going to," Massey said.

His firm had insisted on three things before building the sign: the advertisers had to be reputable, the sign had to be an expensive one and the message had to be tourist-oriented.

"We don't suggest for one minute that the circumstances are good here," he said. "We have no intention of circumventing the law. But we were placed in the position that if we didn't do it, someone else was going to.

"And we felt we could do the best job."

Marina Expansion Cleared By Esquimalt Zone Change

Marina improvements and dredging costing $600,000 are ready to go ahead today at West By, following creation of a new zoning category for the area by Esquimalt council Monday night.

Council approved the zoning changes after a public meeting at which no opposition was voiced. The new bylaws create an M-2 zone category designed to govern marina and waterfront development.

West Bay Marina immediately announced it will proceed with restaurant, lounge, berthing and other facilities to cost up to $500,000. Only department of transport approval is awaited by the owners to begin the initial stage of development, which includes dredging and increasing berth capacity to 400 vessels.

The dining and lounge facilities are designed to allow patrons to look over the boats and take in a panorama including the Legislative Buildings and the Empress. The dining room will seat 176.

FISHERMEN'S BASE

Owners Rod Wells and Les Howe also see the expanded marina becoming a home base for fishermen headed for Oak Bay, Pedder Bay and Brotchie Ledge.

The rezoned area included four acres of waterfront land, previously zoned industrial, running back to Head Street from Work Point to Paradise Street.

The city owns five rocky lots of the total 35 lots. In addition to West Bay Marina, the area also includes Nu-Marine Ways and Boat Works Ltd., owned by Frank Humphries. Under the new zoning, Humphries plans dredging and other improvements to his operation, which offers boat building and repair and diving instruction.

"My first targets are a major clean-up and dredging," Humphries said.

'EYE FOR BEAUTY'

Mayor Art Young said development will be governed by the municipality "with an eye to beauty." Long-range city plans also may include development of public parkland.

Among uses permitted under the new bylaws are restaurants, boat showrooms, a marine fueling station, a store to handle bait, tackle, food, chandlery and gifts, boat rental and charter services and offices.

Off-street parking will be required to accompany any development, and boat houses, metal plate work generating too much noise and public boat-launching ramps will be prohibited.

The aim is to encourage development of a complex similar in scope and appearance to the successful Oak Bay Marina.

Time Limit Set On Project Ideas

A decision on what recreation project will be built in the Cedar Hill area of Saanich and where it will be located will be made early in May, the chairman of the study committee said today.

Ald. Alan Newberry said the Cedar Hill recreation study committee set a deadline of April 30 at its meeting Monday night for accepting briefs or hearing in person from citizens or groups.

People who want to submit their views should contact the municipal clerk at Saanich municipal hall on Vernon Avenue.

The committee, comprised of aldermen and citizens, appears to have narrowed choice of projects to three and potential sites to four, said Newberry.

★ ★ ★

Projects leading are an ice skating surface, a swimming pool or a community centre-gymnasium complex. The ice surface doesn't mean an arena, said Newberry. The budget of $260,000 precludes that.

The four sites getting close consideration are the intersection of McKenzie and Blenkinsop, the now empty old Cedar Hill school, also known as the Braefoot annex, which is on Cedar Hill Crossroad near Cedar Hill Road, a site near Reynolds school and the south end of Cedar Hill Park, at Cedar Hill Road and Finlayson.

The committee held a public hearing on the project March 5.

$3.7 MILLION FOR SCHOOLS

Surplus capital and the cancellation of certain projects has provided the school board with an extra $3.79 millions which will be used to develop school sites and generally refurbish Greater Victoria schools in 1972.

At a special meeting Monday trustees were told the school district has unexpended capital left over from referendum 10, amounting to $724,922. Funds not borrowed for school projects no longer considered necessary amounts to $2,087,992.

Trustees approved spending of the funds on 1972 priorities. The decision is subject to approval of Education Minister Donald Brothers.

The new priorities have a total value of $3.79 million and would require a referendum for approval of some $1 million.

The new priorities have a total value of $3.79 million, $1 million more than the surplus amount, and so a referendum would have to be held to carry the building program through.

Largest of the new projects is $1.7 million year-round high school in the Colquitz-Tillicum area.

Other projects are $260,000 in site development, buildings and equipment for Esquimalt Senior Secondary, $231,000 for Blanshard Elementary, $293,000 for Lansdowne Junior, $125,000 for Oak Bay Junior, $109,000 for Central Junior, $91,000 for Oak Bay Senior and $64,000 for S. J. Willis Junior.

Projects which have been axed by the board include four proposed elementary schools in the Hillside, Glendenning, Rogers Road and Ten-Mile Point vicinities.

60 Jobs In City For Students

Victoria city hall hopes to provide about 60 jobs for students this summer, charging the entire cost of about $150,000 to the federal government.

Under Ottawa's $57 million make-work project to curb student unemployment expected this year, city hall expects to create the jobs in parks and public works departments, council's B Committee was told today.

There will also be about 30 jobs for students under city hall's normal summer work program, city manager Bill Hooson said.

Officials estimated that at least 150 students will have already applied for work with the city.

In 1969 and 1970 there were 47 and 38 students employed by the city.

Some of the work involved will be clean-up, trimming and watering.

Haddock Leads Move For Design Control

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE

City hall moved today to ask the provincial government to give Victoria the power to control exterior design of buildings.

The measure passed through council's B Committee over objections by one alderman that a person should be able to build what he wants on his own property.

The action is sponsored by Mayor Courtney Haddock, who says he wants to prevent recurrences of buildings like the gas station on the north-east corner of Hillside and Douglas.

The committee passed a resloution that would ask for the special power from the province. The measure must first get past council.

The legislation would "prohibit the construction or alteration of buildings or structures without the approval of the exterior design" by a special board or committee set up by the city.

Ald. Harold Olafson, who voted against the measure, said that when persons buy property for the purpose of making money, "frankly, I think they should be entitled to build what they want."

He said he agreed that he doesn't like many designs, including the Hillside gas station, but "I doubt that we can sit in judgment."

Haddock and Ald. Hugh Ramsay voted for the measure.

Haddock said he thought some developers are actually "promoters" who come into town, erect a building, "sell it for a fast buck and then they're gone."

He added that "I don't think they get a feeling for the city."

The board or committee would likely be composed of architects and report to the advisory planning commission, Haddock said.

Inside Staff Accepts 15%

Inside employees of Victoria city hall voted Monday night to accept a two-year 15 per cent wage hike settlement brought down by a mediation officer last week.

Frank Preston, president of local 388 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, said today the membership voted "quite significantly in favor" of the settlement.

The contract, which involves about 180 employees in indoor jobs, also involves a reduction of the work week from 37½ to 35 hours.

City council accepted the settlement last week.

Gov't Action 'Despicable'

Victoria Ald. Harold Olafson blasted the provincial government today for the "despicable" way it is creating parking lots around the Legislative Buildings.

During a meeting of council's community planning committee of which Olafson is chairman, he said the city loses tax revenue when the government buys houses in the government precinct, demolishes them and paves them for parking.

When Mayor Courtney Haddock objected that the government has a "long-term plan" for the development of the precinct, Olafson replied: "There's no long-range plan."

"It's a despicable way to treat the government precinct," he went on. "Right now they do just what they darn well please in our city."

When Haddock objected that a private citizen could do the same with a house, Olafson said:

"As an individual you can't do it — you are not above God."

Normally, he said, the off-street parking lots of the government kind need annual off-street parking permits.

Arthur Mayse . . .

ABOUT ONCE A MONTH and sometimes oftener, in comes a request that goes more or less like this:

"I want to write a novel. All my friends tell me I should because they find my letters so interesting. The problem is, I don't know how to get started."

You start a novel by thinking about what goes into it, and eventually by staring down at an empty expanse of paper. In this moment of truth, many a would-be writer learns that he really hasn't anything to say, after all.

The discovery can be a painful one. But better to make it early than later — and here we come to a problem much tougher and sneakier than getting started. This is how to keep going once the novel is launched.

I can only guess how many aborted novels begun in high hopes are gathering dust in this city. From distress calls received, I can assure you that there are plenty such, with more added to the number each year.

Everything goes fine for a while. Then, mysteriously, a blight sets in. Situations that seemed solid fall apart. Characters mush out, or wander aimlessly in search of motivation.

Writer struggles on determinedly until the truth about his predicament can no longer be avoided. What looked like a broad highway has turned itself into a dead-end road.

This has happened to me. It hurts, as any fractured hope or lost endeavor is bound to do. It can even throw the victim into such a state that he will never find the confidence to make the attempt again.

And that can be a pity. I've read more than one failed effort that might have gone the course and won a publisher's nod if the writer had taken the time and trouble to fix himself up with some insurance.

If you feel you have a book-length story in your system, and that you won't rest easy until you've had a go at it, here's the nearest approach to a recipe that I can come up with.

First, think about your story — the people in it, what they're going to do, and the troubles that will come between them and their journey's end. At this point, you might note that if they haven't got troubles, it's no story.

If you think to any purpose, you should presently find that you're taking a growing jumble of ideas to bed with you, also to meals and through the day's routine.

Don't talk about your story, no matter how tempted. If you do, the chances are that you will blow off in speech what should be reserved for paper.

But do make notes. Not ordinary notes — what you want is a well-plumped set of files to which you can turn later.

As soon as they're roughly shaped in your head, note the main happenings of your story down in considerable detail. Stick this treatment in an envelope: label it 'plot' if you like. As further plot notions occur, scribble them on anything handy — backs of envelopes, odd scraps of paper, insides of match folders if need be.

But get them down before you lose them, and put them in the envelope.

Give all your important story people the same treatment. Don't stint on them. Set down even such minutae as how they react to minor emergencies and what they like for breakfast, if by so doing you can come to know them better. File each of these character studies in a separate, named envelope, and add to the contents as more thoughts strike you.

Next, take out your story synopsis and break it into sections or chapters. Allot to these, in skeleton form, as much or as little of your plot as you feel it should contain. When you've done so, enlarge each section by feeding into it those supplementary notes I mentioned earlier, along with any bits of business that may present themselves.

What you have now achieved is a story outline, and a cast to go with it.

Finish off the spadework by taking a large sheet of brown wrapping paper and drawing a map of your fiction scene, in detail, and complete with main compass points. The map will keep you from muddling the geography of your story, it can also lend what your imagination cooked up a pleasant illusion of reality. This map can be an aid and a comfort as your story proceeds.

Finally, on a day when you feel that you can't hold off any longer, begin the actual writing of your book. Follow your section outlines, expanding them if you see fit, but not departing from them in any major particular. You do so at your peril.

They, and those character studies, are your lifelines. Because of them, you aren't in the position of the hasty starter who runs himself off a cliff and has nowhere to go but down.

When trouble strikes, they may make the difference between finishing what you started and dropping out of contention. That is how the recipe has twice worked for me.

The result may not be a good book. It may never find a publisher. But it will be an accomplished fact, and you at least will be proud of it!

UNIVERSITY OF VICTORIA TENDER
PRIMARY ELECTRICAL SYSTEM IMPROVEMENTS 98-131

Sealed tenders for the construction of Primary Electrical System Improvements (98-131) will be received by the University up to 2:00 p.m. Pacific Standard Time on Friday, 16 April, 1971, and will be opened publicly immediately thereafter.

The work includes the supply and installation of 13,000 volt switch gear and the installation of 13,000 volt underground cable.

Tenders shall be made out on the forms provided by the University and shall be delivered to the Vice-President (Admin.), Room 8, Sedgewick Building, University of Victoria.

Plans, specifications and tender documents may be obtained by general contractors from the Director of Campus Planning, Building D, University of Victoria, upon payment of $25.00 in cash or certified cheque. This sum will be refunded if plans and specifications are returned to the Director of Campus Planning within two weeks after the date set for the closing of tenders.

Tenders shall be good for sixty days and shall be accompanied by a bid bond for $5,000.00 in the form set out in the contract documents. A performance bond in the amount of fifty (50%) percent of the contract price shall be furnished by the successful bidder.

The lowest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted.

J. T. Kyle,
Vice President (Admin.)
University of Victoria.

Beef Shortage Shakes Argentines

BUENOS AIRES (WP) — The Argentine, traditional supplier of beef for Europe and South America, faces the probability of empty butcher shops at home. Past governments have tottered for as much.

President Roberta M. Levingston announced via nationwide television at the weekend a massive government intervention in the beef business to resolve a crisis of rising internal prices and collapse of the export industry.

Exporters closed down when steer prices pushed them out of international markets. Gen. Levingston now has fixed a price equivalent to 14 U.S. cents per pound, of the hoof. He said special taxes and cutoff off internal consumption would be enforced to maintain that price.

If necessary, he said, retail sales will be cut off for two weeks each month.

EXPORT

This is to assure that enough animals will be available for export. Though great herds still roam the Pampa, internal consumption is so voracious that exports have suffered.

Argentines eat an average of 180 pounds of beef apiece annually. The key man of construction crews here is the charcoalser, who tends lunch steaks the size of small cement sacks on a grille fashioned from steel reinforcing rods.

But lately this has become a costly custom. As Levingston said, prices have risen 130 per cent in 14 months. Beef is still cheaper than in the United States, where per capita consumption runs a third lower, but income levels are only half as high here.

MILITARY COUP

The last government to impose meatless days on the Argentines was that of president Arturo Illia. Shortly thereafter, in June of 1966, he was ousted by a military coup.

There was no public resistance to the end of constitutional government at that time, and one explanation was the meatless days — which the military promptly suspended.

The price of steak is one of the few issues that has consistently stirred popular agitation, and the military government now must deal with it at a time of national divisions over the issue of nationalism, socialism, return to civil rule, and the future role of followers of one-time dictator Juan Peron.

In his address, Levingston also announced longer term measures including subsidies to modernize slaughterhouses and to build up production of chicken and fish to diversify the local diet.

BRIEFS

FIGHT POSTPONED

TURIN, Italy (AP) — The world middleweight boxing championship bout between Carlos Monzon of Argentina and Italian challenger Nino Benvenuti has been postponed to May 8. It had been originally scheduled for April 17.

BEARS NEED COACH

EDMONTON (CP) — Harvey Scott, one-time performer with Calgary Stampeders and B.C. Lions, has resigned as head football coach of the University of Alberta Golden Bears following his appointment to the university's faculty of physical education.

TACKLES IN FOLD

WINNIPEG (CP) — Two import tackles, vetern Bill Frank and rookie Bob Grenfell, are the latest players to sign Western Football Conference contracts with Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

BUTTONS MATCHES

Gregarsh defeated Metchosin for the bronze buttons but lost the silver to Ardmore in Lower Island Nine-Hole Golf Association competition.

ESKS SIGN END

Edmonton (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos have signed David Vaughan, a six-foot-four tight end from Memphis State University, to a Western Football Conference tryout form.

NOT MOMENT TOO SOON

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — If city council decides to accept a proposal to buy new chairs for its council chamber, the decision won't come a moment too soon for Alderman Don Macgregor.

Monday night Ald. Macgregor's chair fell apart under him during a council meeting and he fell to the floor.

The incident took place just after Mayor John Rhodes announced the appointment of Carmen Provenzano as the new assistant city solicitor.

As Mr. Macgregor got up, Mayor Rhodes told Mr. Provenzano:

"There's your first case."

Finn Crisis Ends

HELSINKI (AP — A Finnish government crisis was solved when Premier Ahti Karjalainen announced that three dissident Communist cabinet members would lose their portfolios. He stressed this constituted "only a reshuffle, nothing else." Incumbent non-Communists simultaneously withdrew their resignations

Shadow Mischief

Belkin Grabs Tennis Cash

BROOKVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — Davis Cupper Mike Belkin of Toronto beat Sandy Mayer of the U.S. 6-3 and U.S. indoor title holder Clark Graebner 6-1 Sunday to win the $5,000 Long Island indoor tennis championship.

The winner, however, wasn't decided until Graebner beat Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Tex., 6-4. The issue had to be settled after Richey had beaten Belkin, 6-4 in a round-robin match following his first two victories.

After Richey lost, Belkin, of Toronto, took the $2,000 prize for first place with a total of 17 points.

Alcindor Leads Scoring Parade

NEW YORK (AP) — Lew Alcindor, Milwaukee Bucks' seven-foot, two-inch giant, added the scoring championship to his 'most-valuable-player' award, the National Basketball Association's final regular-season statistics have confirmed.

Alcindor, voted the MVP last week, averaged 31.7 points a game, scoring 2,596 points in 82 games as he led the Bucks to the Midwest Division title.

John Havlicek of Boston Celtics was second with a 28.9 average and Elvin Hayes of San Diego Rockets third at 28.7.

Power Passed Back to People In Hungary

By ALFRED FRIENDLY

BUDAPEST — A dose of grass-roots politics is to be administered to Hungarians this spring, a first cautious reversal of a centuries-old autocratic tradition strengthened by the last 25 years of central Communist rule.

Legislation just passed by Parliament gives 1,800 municipal councils new revenues and responsibilities. Officials hope that the new provisions, as well as altered election laws designed to encourage ballot-box contests, will improve local government and erode the entrenched apathy of the average citizen toward his government.

"Both the new council and election laws are aimed at spreading democracy," said one official who helped draft them. "We expect to see direct services to the population improve as a result," he added, "and thus involve people more in local affairs."

'HEAR THE VOICE'

A leading party theoretician defined the goal another way: "We do not want to build Hungary on a silent majority," he told a recent visitor. "We want to hear the voice of this majority and give it some effect."

Hungarians concede that the idea of consulting ordinary people about their own affairs, instead of leaving such decisions to an all-known central authority and Communist party, carries a faint whiff of heresy to orthodox Marxists. Janos Kadar in his opening speech last November to the 10th congress of the Hungarian party he heads, noted this concern.

"There are people who think that further decentralization in guidance and the enhancement of the councils' independence endanger the stability of people's power," he said. But, he added, the new developments in "socialist democracy" represent "a correct class policy that strengthens our state and the power of the working people.

HAS LIMITS

"The essence of the further development of the life of our state," he said in reassuring worried centralists, "is the simultaneous strengthening of central power and of the autonomy of local bodies."

Like most innovations in Hungary, the new local council law has its limits. Town and village governing bodies still must work within the framework of national development plans. With no direct tax-raising powers of their own, the governing bodies will instead get a four-year state allotment to spend far more freely than before.

Additionally, because some of their revenues will be tied to the earnings of local enterprises, they will, it is hoped, be stimulated to make their existing factories work better.

New industrial and farm investments, sponsored by the municipalities, should also be more thoughtfully planned and carefully supervised by the increase in local interest.

Britain Seeks Training Base

OTTAWA (CP) — A British military reconnaissance team began a two-day inspection visit Monday to the defence research board establishment at Suffield, Alta.

The British Army is interested in using part of the 1,000 square-mile area as a training base for tank units, though no formal request has yet been made to the Canadian government, a defence department source said.

In God's Name, 15,000 Killed; A City Crushed

EDITOR'S NOTE: As the Pakistani army moved in force into Dacca last week to crush Sheikh Mujibur Rahman's 25-day-old independence movement, all foreign journalists in East Pakistan, confined at gunpoint in the Intercontinental Hotel since the beginning of the fighting, were rounded up and deported to Karachi. However, Simon Dring of The London Daily Telegraph evaded the roundup by hiding on the hotel roof, despite repeated attempts by the army to find him. With the only other foreign newsman believed to have escaped the net, Associated Press photographer Michel Laurent, Dring managed to make an extensive tour of the burning city. He flew to West Pakistan Sunday and then reached Bangkok. He cabled the following report.)

★ ★ ★

By SIMON DRING
The London Daily Telegraph

DACCA, East Pakistan — In the name of "God and a united Pakistan" Dacca is a crushed and frightened city.

After 24 hours of shelling by units of the Pakistan army as many as 7,000 people are dead, large areas of the city have been levelled and East Pakistan's fight for independence has been put to an end.

Despite claims by President Yahya Khan, head of Pakistan's military government, that the situation is now calm, as late as Sunday tens of thousands of people were fleeing to the countryside, the city streets were almost deserted and the killings were continuing in other parts of the province.

There was no doubt that the army was more or less in control of all the towns and major population centres and that resistance was minimal and apparently ineffective.

As of Sunday, people were still being shot at what appeared to be the slightest provocation, buildings were still being destroyed and the military appeared to be more determined than ever to assert its control over the 73 million Bengalese in East Pakistan.

Conflicting reports are reaching the west from Karachi and New Delhi. Radio India says the "liberation army" in East Pakistan has regained control of much of Dacca and key military areas.

But Pakistani officials deny this saying that Dacca and other cities in the east are calm and that life is returning to normal.

Although an accurate estimate of civilian casualties is impossible, reports filtering in from outlying areas, including Chittagong, Comilla and Jessore, put the figure, including Dacca, at about 15,000 dead.

★ ★ ★

The depth of death and destruction in Dacca was obvious: Students dead in their beds, butchers in the markets killed behind their stalls, women and children burned to death in their houses, Pakistanis of Hindu religion shot en masse, bazaars and shopping areas razed by fire. By Sunday, the Pakistani flag flew over nearly every building in the city.

Military casualties are not known but at least two soldiers have been wounded and one officer killed.

Whatever, the Bengali uprising seemed to be over for the moment. Sheikh Mujibur was seen being taken away by the army and nearly all the top members of his Awami League Party have also been arrested.

Leading political activists were arrested, others were killed and the offices of two newspapers that supported Mujibur's independence movement were destroyed.

The first target of Pakistani army tanks that rolled into Dacca Thursday night was the students.

An estimated three battalions of troops were used in the attack on Dacca — one armored, one artillery and one infantry. They started leaving the barracks shortly before 10 p.m.

COLLINS
. . . born in China

Ottawa Names Peking Envoy

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's first ambassador to China will be Ralph E. Collins, a high external affairs department official who was born in China and speaks the Chinese language.

Informed sources disclosed Monday that Collins, 56, has been officially accepted by the Peking government as Canada's nominee.

Similarly, Canada has accepted the candidate proposed by Peking as its first ambassador in Ottawa.

Railway Dispute Talks Set for Today

VANCOUVER (CP) — Talks aimed at settling a railway work stoppage that has paralysed traffic in British Columbia and threatens to close the port of Vancouver were scheduled here today.

Contract negotiations in which the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National promised to "negotiate to a conclusion" were to be held in Montreal.

Don Tysoe, a federal mediator, and Ray Perrault, parliamentary secretary to Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey, were to meet in Vancouver with engineers who have been booking off sick in British Columbia and Alberta to protest delay in the contract negotiations.

Mr. Tysoe said in an interview Monday: "The name of the game is to get the men to listen to reason and return to work."

Talks in Montreal concern the engineers' contracts with CP Rail, which expired March 15, 1970, and the CNR, which ran out April 30, 1970. The talks broke off last week after a three-man conciliation board reported to the federal government that it was unable to reach agreement on a wage settlement.

L. O. Hemmingson of Montreal, the union's assistant grand chief engineer, said in an interview Monday:

"We have had nothing realistic in better than a year of negotiation."

This had led to the work stoppages on the West Coast.

SERVICE PARALYSED

Meanwhile, in Vancouver, spokesmen for both railways said Monday that freight and passenger service is paralysed in B.C.

Acting Port Manager William Duncan said the port of Vancouver will be closed in about a week if work does not resume.

About 200 Vancouver-area engineers booked off work last Wednesday and about 5,000 railway employees have been laid off by CP Rail and CNR.

Some 7,500 railway carloads containing more than 15 million bushels of grain have been stranded between Vancouver and the Prairies.

"The grain picture is bad," Mr. Duncan said, "with elevator stocks already far below normal. Coal shipments are practically at a standstill. The stockpile of bulk products such as potash and sulphur will hardly last the week.

"I'm very pessimistic," he said. "We can expect diversions of cargo to Seattle or other ports very soon."

MAY SET EMBARGOES

CNR and CP Rail said Monday in a joint statement that total embargoes may become necessary in B.C. and the affected parts of Alberta if the work stoppages continue to keep rail operations at a standstill.

Russia Proposes End Of Red, NATO Pacts

REALISTIC MODEL of a 10-foot killer whale, held here by Ray Beckett (left) and Dave White, has been made in plastic by the provincial parks department at Langford and will be erected at the Miracle Beach parksite south of Campbell River. The department has taken on extra men and organized two shifts in order to meet the demand posed by the new parks that will be in operation this year.

World N-Talks Also Sought

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Leonid Brezhnev, Soviet Communist party chief, proposed today that the world's five big nuclear powers sit down at a disarmament conference and also offered to dismantle the Warsaw pact alliance if the West did away with NATO.

Brezhnev announced the Soviet peace plan in his wideranging televised address to 5,000 delegates at the opening of the 24th Soviet Communist party congress.

The nuclear powers he named are the Soviet Union, the U.S., China, Britain and France.

The Russian party secretary also proposed a worldwide disarmament conference, the liquidation of military bases on foreign territory, curtailment of military expenditures—especially by the major world powers—and a series of bilateral and multilateral treaties.

THINGS ARE BETTER

On another critical subject, Brezhnev said Moscow is sure that good relations with China will be restored but warned that the Kremlin will not yield to Chinese demands that it change course.

Brezhnev said there has been a certain normalization in Sino-Soviet relations in the last 18 months and described an exchange of ambassadors and signing of a new trade agreement as "useful steps."

But Moscow also sees anti-Soviet propaganda continuing in Peking, he said, and it rejects "slanderous" accusations against Soviet policies spread in China.

Brezhnev said the current situation calls for solidarity

Geneva Deadlock End Near?

GENEVA (Reuter) — The Soviet Union and its allies today tabled a draft convention to ban biological warfare which they said is aimed at ending a deadlock in the 25 - nation Geneva disarmament Conference on biological and chemical weapons.

The new draft would ban biological weapons separately first, thus dropping previous Soviet insistence on outlawing them together with chemical weapons in one composite agreement.

The new Soviet-sponsored draft was immediately welcomed outside the conference hall by officials of the United States and British delegations.

They, together with other Western delegations here, have been backing a British draft which would also ban germ weapons separately first.

BRITISH PLAN SIMILAR

The new Soviet draft is similar in general content to the British one, but there are a number of differences of detail.

Soviet delegate Alexei A. Roshchin told United States Ambassador James F. Leonard— Roshchin and Leonard are co-chairman of the Geneva conference—of the new Soviet draft Monday, the sources said.

He also told the heads of most of the other delegations here.

On their way into the conference hall, United States and British delegation officials welcomed the new Soviet draft.

Communist delegation sources said the draft is being supported by the delegations here of Poland, Czechoslovakia, Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Mongolia.

Tories Send Down 'Rich Man's Budget'

LONDON (CP) — Higher old-age pensions and lower corporation income taxes were among changes announced by Anthony Barber today as he sought to apply a stimulus to Britain's sluggish economy.

Hugh Scanlon, left-wing leader of the big engineers union, immediately labelled it a "rich man's budget" with little in it for the average working man.

In one of the longest budget speeches since the Second World War, Barber, the chancellor of the exchequer, also promised far-reaching tax reform during the next few years.

He said this reform will simplify Britain's complicated tax system and reduce the over-all burden.

Old-age pensions, now $12 a week for a single person and $19.50 for a married couple, will rise next September by $2.40 for a single person and $3.80 for a couple.

The corporation tax, which was trimmed last fall to 42.5 per cent from 45, is to be reduced again to 40 per cent.

The chancellor of the exchequer estimated that his over-all measures will boost the economy by about three per cent this year, leaving businessmen wondering whether this will be sufficient to prevent large-scale unemployment.

Some of Barber's measures seemed to favor the Conservatives' best friends — the wealthier members of the community.

For example, the peak income tax surcharge rate of 91 per cent on the extremely wealthy is being reduced to 75 per cent during the next tax year beginning April 6.

Tax on capital gains is to be eliminated for the small investor, those making profit of $2,200 a year or less. The current exemption is $220.

Soviets Mass At Border

LONDON (CP) — The Soviet Union had between 30 and 32 divisions in the area of its border with China by the end of 1970, says a London-based military study group.

They included two or three divisions in Mongolia and were backed up by about 1,000 combat aircraft, the Institute for Strategic Studies reported in its latest survey of defence and world security.

The independently-financed institute said the general effectiveness of the planes "was increased during the year by the installation of a co-ordinated air defence system in Mongolia."

Extra Court Guards After Tate Sentence

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — Extra guards were posted at the Hall of Justice here today amid threats of reprisals after a jury recommended that Charles Manson and three women followers be sent to the gas chamber.

Additional guards moved in almost immediately after the jury delivered its death-sentence recommendations for the convicted killers of actress Sharon Tate, four friends and a middle-aged married couple.

LED AWAY SCREAMING

Judge Charles Older, prosecutor Vincent Bugliosi, and jury members were escorted to their homes by special sheriff's deputies.

Manson threatened last week that if he were sentenced to death "murder and bloodshed would follow."

In the courtroom Monday, as the jury returned its verdict in the penalty phase of the 10-month-old trial, defendant Susan Atkins, 22, was led away screaming: "Lock your doors. Watch your kids. It's gonna come down hard."

Patricia Krenwinkel, 23, shouted: "The whole system is a game." And 21-year-old Leslie van Houten yelled at the court: "You've all just judged yourselves. Watch your children."

Manson yelled at Judge Older: "You don't have any authority over me. Half of you aren't even as good as me." He was led from the court before the verdicts were read. The girl defendants broke into shouts of "Judge yourselves", and "You're all blind." They also were taken from the courtroom before they heard the verdicts.

LIFE IN PRISON, OR DEATH

Calley Returns for Sentence

FORT BENNING, Ga. (AP) — Bright-eyed and cheerful after his first night in the stockade, Lieut. William Calley Jr. returned to the courtroom today for a sentence of life or death that can be tempered only by a long string of reviewing authorities.

He was escorted by six military policemen to the little one-storey courthouse where a jury of six combat officers convicted him Monday of murdering at least 22 civilians in the blood bath of My Lai.

SAIGON (Reuter)—South Vietnam's militant anti-war Buddhists called today for clemency for Lieut. William Calley.

Venerable Huyen Quang, general secretary of the United Buddhist Church, said "What good is it to kill one more man after more than 100 people have already died?"

Lawyers were in court this morning to work with the military judge on instructions he'll give to the jury. The arguments on the sentence were to begin at 1 p.m. and were likely to be concluded today.

During the night someone threw a bottle of gasoline at the courthouse where Calley's trial spanned the seasons from autumn into spring. The bottle landed on the lawn and burned only a small patch of grass.

SHAKEN BY VERDICT

Calley, of Miami, Fla., took the jury's decision with head high, his manner soldierly correct. But he was shaken by a verdict he didn't expect.

The night in the stockade's private officers' quarters—in a two-room suite—was Calley's first time in confinement since he was charged 1½ years ago.

Philippine Jet Hijacked to China

HONG KONG (AP) — Five young men hijacked a Philippine airliner to Communist China today, but the Chinese are expected to send the plane and the 25 other persons aboard back quickly. It was believed to be the first airliner hijacked to China.

The passengers were flown to Canton, on the South China mainland, after five armed men diverted the twin-engine jet from a domestic flight in the Philippines.

An airline spokesman said the hijackers were all 17 to 25 years old, spoke a central Philippine dialect and told passengers they were seizing the BAC-111 jetliner for "ideological reasons."

One passenger said four of the hijackers were Filipinos and the fifth appeared to be Eurasian or Chinese.

Hong Kong airport officials said they expected Chinese authorities to return the plane, passengers and five crew members "rather quickly—possibly even later today."

The plane was diverted about half an hour after taking off from Manila for Davao, on Mindanao Island. It first made a 90-minute stop for fuel in Hong Kong, and there 20 of the 45 passengers were released.

The airline spokesman said four of the hijackers carried .22-calibre pistols and one a pair of scissors. They were "very courteous to the passengers," he said, although one of the hijackers threatened to blow up the plane unless it went on to China.

One hijacker told airport control officers they wanted to go to Peking, the Chinese capital but airport officials said the plane could not hold enough fuel for the 1,200-mile trip. Canton, South China's largest city, is 90 miles northwest of Hong Kong.

Filipino Foreign Secretary Carlos Romulo said he has asked the British and Indian embassies in Manila to ask the Chinese to return the passengers and crew. Both countries have diplomatic relations with Communist China while the Philippines does not.

One thing about Soviet conferences—even when they're in public y' don't know whut's goin' on.
